Gunman Frees 12

TOKYO (UPI) — A tattooed gunman who killed four persons in an aborted bank robbery in Osaka and demanded $250,000 freed 12 hostages today, including one man who was riddled by shotgun fire and had his left ear chopped off.

Police said the gunman, identified as Akiyoshi Umekawa, 30, refused to give himself up despite appeals by his mother, Mrs. Shizuko Umekawa, 73.

He threatened earlier to kill the captives "one by one" unless his demands were met.

Umekawa, armed with a shotgun, tried to rob the Mitsubishi Bank's Kitabatake branch in Osaka.

He seized 37 hostages, including bank employees and customers, and shot and killed two bank clerks and two policemen. He still held 23 persons.

By nightfall the gunman had released eight customers and five bank officials, including two women and three wounded men. A pregnant woman customer was freed shortly after the attempted holdup on Friday and another woman escaped.

Welfare No Drawback

The B.C. government will allow welfare recipients to receive the free shares of the B.C. Resources Investment Corp. promised by Premier Bill Bennett, a government spokesman said Friday.

Current regulations limit assets allowed to be owned by people on welfare but these will be amended.

5 MILLION CHEER PONTIFF

Turbulent Talks Ahead for Pope

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II opens a Latin American bishops' conference today and some churchmen predict the meeting will be as rocky as the earthquakes that hit Mexico before his arrival.

"Those earthquakes may not have been as much a divine welcome of the Pope's first visit to Mexico as they were a presage of the problems he faces at the conference in Puebla," one prelate said Friday as the pontiff celebrated mass in Mexico City's Metropolitan Cathedral.

An estimated five million cheering, waving, joyous Mexicans showered the Pope with adulation today as he travelled slowly by motorcade through the heart of the Mexico capital to the national shrine.

At one point, the Pope stopped the motorcade, stepped down from his open vehicle and mingled with the multitude, touching hands, blessing babies and acknowledging the roar of the adoring crowds.

The working sessions of the conference will be conducted in Puebla, 105 kilometres southeast of the capital, where the pontiff will travel Sunday.

Two years in the planning, the conference is billed as the most significant meeting of Latin American churchmen in a decade. It has drawn 250 prelates to plan the future of the church in the turbulent social and political life of Central and South America, home of almost half the world's 750 million Roman Catholics.

John Paul will celebrate mass at the Basilica and deliver a pastoral sermon setting the tone for the conference. It is expected to be his most important encyclical since becoming Pope last October.

Observers predict his toughest task will be to reconcile liberal prelates who want to involve the church more deeply in the social, political and economic problems facing Latin America, and conservatives who would restrict the church's role in sectarian affairs.

Liberals are expected to demand even-greater church involvement with the poor than they did at the last bishops' conference in Medellin, Colombia, in 1968. Observers say they may try to use the current 13-day meeting to push the church into more direct conflict with governments and even the church's own conservative community.

About 60 per cent of the 330 million Roman Catholics in South and Central America live in extreme poverty, and many of them are ruled by the authoritarian military governments that dominate the region.

The poor "have turned to the church as the only institution that can help them," said one prelate.

Mexico enforces sharp church-state separation, a legacy of an anti-clerical revolution in the last century. Since Mexico has no relations with the Vatican, the pope was welcomed unofficially as a "distinguished visitor."

Meat Checks Too Costly - Minister

Agriculture Minister Cyril Shelford said Friday province-wide meat inspection would hurt rather than help the B.C. livestock industry as a recent legislative report suggests.

The Select Standing Committee on Agriculture found filthy conditions in some of the smaller slaughterhouses outside the province's two inspection areas.

The researchers suggested that since large retailers buy only inspected meat, province-wide inspection would lead to more purchases of B.C. livestock.

But Shelford said the prohibitive cost of paying for federal inspectors in isolated areas would either drive the small slaughterhouses out of business or mean the farmer would receive even less for his products.

He said the small producers and slaughterhouses could not possibly break into the supermarket trade.

Safeway, for example, cuts all of its beef in Alberta. Even the B.C. cattle are shipped to Alberta for butchering for Safeway.

Shelford says in his long experience with the industry the small slaughterhouses in the uninspected areas cause no health problems.

He noted all meat inspection was turned over to the federal government in 1977. And it would be too costly to have a federal inspector pay regular visits to every farm or small slaughterhouse that butchered a handful of beef every week.

He said he's never seen any health hazards but if there are any specific companies not operating sanitary operations he would look into it.

"I would hate to see all the small ones get put out of business as a result of the cost of inspection," he said.

Province-wide inspection as the report recommends is a step in the wrong direction as far as the farmer is concerned as well, he added.

The minister said the farmer who takes his beef to be slaughtered sees what condition the slaughterhouse is in.

Shelford said he didn't expect farmers would patronize filthy slaughterhouses.

The legislature's study blamed unsanitary conditions it discovered in some interior meat plants on a lack of government inspection outside the Lower Mainland and Victoria.

Woman Killed In Crash

A city woman is dead and a man partially paralysed in hospital following a three-vehicle collision at Cook and Johnson Friday night.

Dead is Janice Campbell, 18, of 1146 Leonard, who was a passenger in a van driven by Ronald Cheeke, 17, of 1664 Burton.

Another passenger, Norman Liimatta, 18, of 1504 Oakland, is in Victoria General Hospital in stable condition, paralysed on his right side with spinal injuries.

A city police spokesman said the accident occurred at 10:41 p.m. as the van entered the intersection and was hit broadside by two cars.

He said the Campbell girl and two others, Leanna Jane, 17, of 2115 Lorne Terrace, and Kerry O'Gorman, 16, address unavailable, were riding in the back and were hurled to the street.

The latter two escaped injury but the Campbell girl was pinned between a lamp standard and the van. She died moments after police arrived.

Neither Cheeke nor the drivers of the other two vehicles, Christina Lambe, 18, of 5770 Old West Saanich Road, and Dawn Miller, 21, of 2079 Crescent, were hurt.

A sixth passenger in the van, Tracy Stavdal, 16, of 2106 Marne, also escaped injury.

The traffic fatality was the first in the city this year but the fourth in Greater Victoria.

Court Overturns Essay Order

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Supreme Court has ruled that the B.C. Police Commission cannot order a police constable to write a 2,000-word essay on the care and handling of prisoners.

Constable Leslie Mitchell of the Matsqui municipal force was reprimanded and given the essay assignment after a prisoner suffered a broken jaw while he was being processed into jail.

Mr. Justice K. E. Meredeth ruled Thursday that the commission exceeded its power because it ordered the constable to pass the essay through superior officers to the commission.

"There is a hint here that Constable Mitchell is not the only person against whom the discipline is directed," he said. "I suspect that in this case the commission is looking less for a 2,000-word essay than an apology from Constable Mitchell."

The judge said the forced apology was the only way the commission thought Mitchell and others could be taught the lesson, but added he thinks it would do little to educate Mitchell or others who might read it.

Geoffry Mortimer, commission chairman, said the judge has done the commission a favor by clarifying the Police Act.

"Policemen now know that the commission can't give unfair discipline," he said.

"Although I don't think the order was unfair, I can see now that it might have been possible for some vindictive commissioner to hand down very punitive penalties without this definition of our power."

Alberni Socred Used Pull for Grant: Dailly

A Port Alberni woman used her political connections to get a grant from the provincial lottery fund, Eileen Dailly, New Democratic MLA for Burnaby North, charged Friday.

Dailly said the approval of an application for a $9,875 grant submitted by Port Alberni Social Credit Association executive member and radio openline hostess Paula Anderson is another example of the government using the lottery funds for partisan political purposes.

Anderson, in a letter dated Nov. 20 to Grace McCarthy, then provincial secretary, appealed for the funds to buy a 15-passenger van for the Port Alberni Islander Blues, an intermediate B hockey club.

"As a member of the Social Credit constituency executive I would ask that you consider this request for funding as I believe that this is the type of help that wins community support," Anderson said in her letter.

She ended by offering the services of her open line radio show to "help in any way giving public information about your department."

Dailly said she had hoped when Hugh Curtis was appointed provincial secretary the disbursement of lottery funds would not be tainted with partisan politics.

"But events of the past few weeks suggest that Mr. Curtis has chosen to continue the questionable practice of using the funds to help Social Credit candidates at the expense of the Opposition," she said.

Dailly said Curtis has misled the public by suggesting all members of the legislature have been advised of the procedures for seeking lottery fund grants.

"While I have no doubt that the members of Mr. Curtis' party have been advised, other members of the legislature have been led on merry chases when they have sought information," she said.

"Social Credit MLAs are allowed to waltz into the provincial secretary's office anytime they want and leave with grants for footbridges, parking lots and breakwaters."

Curtis was unavailable for comment today.

Bakhtiar to Visit Exiled Khomeini

TEHRAN (UPI) — Prime Minister Shaphour Bakhtiar sealed Iran's airports today to block the triumphal return of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini but said he would fly to Paris within 48 hours for talks with the exiled religious leader whose return could threaten civil war.

Bakhtiar's message was broadcast on Iranian state radio and television after its text was approved by Khomeini, the announcement said.

The government closed Iranian airports including Tehran International "until further notice" to block Khomeini's return despite massive street demonstrations in Iranian cities by millions of the ayatollah's supporters demanding his immediate return from 15 years of exile. Eleven persons were shot to death during the day.

Western diplomats have warned that Khomeini's return could touch off a civil war involving his followers and the army which so far has backed Bakhtiar. On Friday the army opened fire on pro-Khomeini demonstrators in the streets of Tehran, killing 28 in what anti-Bakhtiar people called the "Friday Massacre."

Less than two hours after he told the nation he would go to Paris if his talks with Khomeini reached a decisive stage, Bakhtiar announced his plans to visit Iran's main opposition leader in exile "for an exchange of views on the current situation in the country."

Bakhtiar insisted earlier in a broadcast interview that Khomeini delay his arrival and hinted at an assassination threat to the exiled Shiite Moslem leader, whose title means "beloved of Allah" and is roughly equivalent to the title of cardinal in the Roman Catholic Church.

Airline officials said the airline companies had received official notice advising them the Tehran International and other international airports in the country would remain closed until further notice.

Martial law authorities closed the airports three days ago for "security reasons" but originally had proposed to reopen them tonight.

In the pro-Khomeini demonstrations at least 11 persons were shot dead in the cities of Abadan and Gorgan and scores were wounded but the largest march in Tehran involving more than a million protesters passed peacefully with the army withdrawing most of its troops from the capital to avoid confrontation.

Victoria CBC Goes on Air March 31

CBC television broadcasting from its Victoria transmitter will start March 31, carrying Vancouver and network programming for an interim period.

A ruling Friday by the Canadian Radio-Television and Telecommunications Commission permits the nominal start of local broadcasting, although no Victoria production facilities will be involved.

The signal will be picked up by microwave from Vancouver and relayed at reduced power from the CBC's Saturna Island transmitter.

This is expected to give limited coverage in the Victoria-Gulf Islands area.

Victoria and Vancouver television watchers can continue to view all of the American stations.

Since it will be broadcasting at less than full power, the Saturna Island transmitter will not be considered a Vancouver local station so the CBC will lose its priority to bump an American station off the dial.

However, the commission said it will consider allowing Victoria to operate at full power when it can produce a minimum of seven hours and 10 minutes of local production from Victoria.

Victoria CBC production facilities are a victim of federal budget cuts. A new building is nearing completion at Kings and Blanshard but equipping and staffing has been postponed, possibly for a year.

When that happens it is expected the CBC will claim Channel 10 for its Victoria outlet.

A management spokesman for Cable 10 said there had been no communication regarding the Friday decision of CRTC and he expected cable programming will continue uninterrupted.

It is firm CRTC policy to give local and area television stations priority on the cable, meaning new stations can bump others off the cable when they go into business.

Victoria CBC Manager R.W. McGall said he had been given no details concerning the CRTC move. He expected much will depend on what transmitting power will be allowed for the rebroadcast of CBUT-TV Vancouver, determining how far the signal would go.

CHEK-TV Victoria has applied to be affiliated with the CTV network when the CBC starts Victoria broadcasting, freeing it from its CBC affiliation.

MPs from B.C. and thousands of residents for years have protested the feared loss of an American channel because of the Victoria station.

A strong opponent of the Victoria station is Simma Holt (L — Vancouver-Kingsway) who Thursday unsuccessfully sought to have the CBC abandon the Victoria project.

In the Commons, Holt said a second CBC outlet 20 miles from Vancouver is redundant.

Train Walkouts Called Off

Times News Services

LONDON — Britain's 27,000 railroad locomotive drivers agreed Friday to call off a series of crippling 24-hour walkouts but demanded immediate hearings on their pay demands.

At the same time, a judge ordered truck drivers to stop picketing a factory in a decision regarded as a major setback to the country's labor unions.

Locomotive drivers leader Ray Buckton said a special tribunal reprsenting management and all three rail unions should start studying his men's claims immediately.

"We will resume normal working, provided there is no delay," he said. "But we have been assured the tribunal will start hearings immediately."

Four drivers' strikes in the past two weeks to press demands for a 10 per cent pay bonus shut down the entire national railroad system and threw major cities into turmoil.

The agreement to convene a tribunal was reached at a series of meetings between drivers' union leaders and Len Murray, General Secretary of the 12 million member Trades Union Congresss.

In a related labor matter, Justice Sir Desmond Ackner ruled in the London High Court that striking truckers must stop picketing a firm — United Biscuits Co. — not directly involved in their dispute.

The ruling was a major setback for the unions which have relied heavily during the current strike on such so-called "secondary picketing." However, legal experts said the truckers were certain to appeal the decision.

Meanwhile, a senior minister has warned truck drivers that their action has put Britain's industry in jeopardy.

Industry Minister Eric Varley told Parliament Friday night that although over-all production was only 10 per cent down from normal during the week, output will decline and may get much worse.

In an effort to work out a new over-all deal on wages and economic policy, Chancellor of the Exchequer Denis Healey and four other senior cabinet ministers met top Trades Union Congress officials.

The government said the two-week nationwide strike caused widespread raw material shortages, hit imports and resulted in 100,000 workers being laid off so far.

GLAZIERS ON JOB MONDAY

About 450 glassworkers in B.C. will be back at work Monday after staging a four-day walkout this week to protest what they see as an erosion of their traditional work by other construction trades.

The decision came Friday following a ruling from the Labor Relations Board the day before that the walkout was illegal.

There are about 575 glassworkers or glaziers in B.C., 40 or 50 of them in Victoria.

Finn Hildebrandt, business manager for the Glaziers Union Local 1527, said Friday from Vancouver the members are returning under protest because their complaints have not been resolved.

However, one upshot of the walkout, he said, is that there will be meetings between the Construction Labor Relations Association and a special jurisdictional committee in an effort to resolve the issues.

Carter Cuts Tourism $$

WASHINGTON (AP) — Foreign tourists may have to find their way to the United States without help from the U.S. government. The Carter administration has called for an 80-per-cent reduction in the budget of the U.S. Travel Service, which operates offices in six countries. Senators from states which depend heavily on tourism are expected to oppose the measure.

What does the Construction industry mean to the Canadian economy?

Construction represents:

16% of the GNP.

625,000 direct jobs and an equal number in allied industries and professions.

An estimated 10 billion dollars in taxes paid to governments.

Construction is a vital force behind Canada's growth and prosperity. It provides Canadians with their essential needs:—shelter, energy, transportation, conservation and sanitation.

The Canadian construction worker has the skills to provide the structures and facilities required, while putting our manpower to work and using Canadian made material.

Construction stimulates growth and prosperity in many areas of the Canadian economy—lending institutions, real estate, resource and energy producing industries, home furnishings, office equipment and transportation. In periods of economic stagnation and high unemployment, construction acts as a catalyst since it creates employment, while generating revenues for governments and for reinvestments by the private sector. This in turn assures a climate of confidence which is so vital for a healthy economy.

We are proud to be a founding member of the Canadian Construction Association since 1918.

Leukemia victim Chad Green, 3, and mother

Tot Gets Laetrile At Tijuana Clinic

TIJUANA, Mexico (AP) — Three-year-old Chad Green's parents, who fled Massachusetts in defiance of a judge's orders, checked him into a clinic here Friday to begin receiving Laetrile for leukemia.

Calling their flight from Massachusetts a "last, desperate, drastic act," Chad's mother said: "The principle is not as important as our son's life and I have to protect him first."

A Massachusetts judge on Tuesday ordered the parents to stop giving their son Laetrile, a controversial fruit pit derivative which some claim helps treat cancer but others say is worthless or even harmful.

Despite a court order prohibiting them from leaving the state, the Greens left Massachusetts late Wednesday, turning up at this border town Friday morning.

"My wife and I discussed it and we thought it would be in the best interest of our son in saving his life," said Gerald Green, the boy's father. "They're using our son as a political pawn and I wouldn't put up with it any longer."

"We have to be allowed some kind of fight to help our son in a way that we know," Mrs. Green said.

Jonathan Brant, an assistant attorney-general in Massachusets, said: "This precipitous action is very dangerous for Chad. We're concerned whether he can get adequate care in Mexico."

In Mexico, the Greens are beyond the reach of Massachusetts law, said Brant. Six months ago, after the Greens lost a court fight to treat Chad with health foods instead of chemotherapy, Volterra made the boy a ward of the state.

After they fled, Volterra said the parents risked being charged with kidnapping the son.

Another Delay On U.S. Pipe

By MARJORIE NICHOLS
Times Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The builder of the U.S. section of the Alaska natural gas pipeline officially informed the U.S. government two weeks ago there would be a further one-year delay in the completion date of the project.

In an appearance before the executive policy board, Northwest Alaskan Pipeline of Salt Lake City said bureaucratic delays had once again forced them to revise their construction schedule. Each one year delay will add at least $1 billion to the cost of the project.

Curiously, Northwest Alaskan refused on Friday to either confirm or deny the reports of the new delay, even though the presentation made to the policy board is a matter of public record. A spokesman for Northwest Alaskan in Washington would say only: "I can't confirm it yet."

The executive policy board is the central agency established by the U.S. administration to co-ordinate pipeline activities by all of the various American agencies and departments.

A spokesman for the policy board said he had attended the meeting at which Northwest Alaskan announced the one-year delay and said it was his view that the company was "firm" on the new projected date of completion, the heating season of 1984-85.

When agreement was reached between Canada and the U.S. for construction of the 4,800-mile pipeline, the target date for delivery of the northern gas to southern markets was the fall of 1982.

Mideast Hurdle Remains

CAIRO (AP) — U.S. envoy Alfred Atherton, wrapping up 10 days of Middle East negotiations, said today there still are problems to be solved before Israeli-Egyptian peace talks can be resumed.

After an hour-long conference with Premier Mustafa Khalil, the U.S. ambassador-at-large told reporters: "There is still a gap. I think it is fair to say that." He did not elaborate on differences between the two states.

Khalil agreed with Atherton's assessment but said the remaining problems "are not insurmountable."

Atherton said he will return briefly to Jerusalem before flying back to Washington to report to U.S. State Secretary Cyrus Vance. He came to the Middle East 10 days ago carrying U.S. proposals designed to break a deadlock in peace talks.

Israel and Egypt are at odds over several issues.

Egypt wants a treaty linked to a timetable for implementation of home rule on the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip. Israel has refused such "linkage" fearing Egypt may abrogate the treaty if the timetable is not met.

Other problems involve an Egyptian demand that the treaty be reviewed in five years.

Rockefeller Dies at 70

NEW YORK (AP) — Nelson Rockefeller, a multimillionaire who became New York state governor and U.S. vice-president but saw his dream of the presidency dashed three times, died Friday night of a heart attack. He was 70.

His spokesman, Hugh Morrow, said Rockefeller died while working at his desk at Rockefeller Centre, the midtown Manhattan business and entertainment area that bears the family name.

Morrow said Rockefeller collapsed at about 10:15 p.m. EST as he worked on a book featuring his extensive modern-art collection.

Security personnel tried in vain to revive him. He was taken to Lenox Hill Hospital, where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

The body was taken to a funeral parlor in Tarrytown, N.Y., where the family has an estate.

Funeral plans were to be announced later today.

Rockefeller, a Republican who served as New York's governor for 15 years, spent a normal day at his office before the incident, Morrow said.

"Rockefeller was enjoying life since leaving politics and has not suffered any illnesses," Morrow said.

Rockefeller gestures back at demonstrators in 1976

Rockefeller's wife, Margaretta, arrived at the hospital after her husband died. Morrow said she was "grief-stricken, but composed."

There was no immediate comment on Rockefeller's death from President Jimmy Carter, who is at Camp David, Md., for the weekend.

Morrow said that at about 5 p.m., Rockefeller had accompanied his wife and their two sons, Nelson Jr., 15, and Mark, who turns 13 today, to Nelson Jr's. private school for a speech by former state secretary Henry Kissinger. Kissinger, a long-time friend, had been an adviser to Rockefeller during his years as New York's governor.

The family then returned to their Fifth Avenue apartment for dinner, and afterward Rockefeller went back to his office to work on his art book.

Since leaving the vice-presidency and politics in 1976, Rockefeller had devoted his time to retail sale of reproductions of works in his art collection. He printed a catalogue before Christmas offering the high-priced and high-quality works.

Nelson was the oldest surviving brother of the sons of John D. Rockefeller Jr. His brother John D. III, eldest of the the third generation of the financial dynasty started by John D. Rockefeller, died last July in an automobile accident on the family estate, Poncantico, in Westchester County. He was 72.

Who puts it back in?

Every year in B.C. countless bridges are carried away by torrential rain, rivers, mud, snow and rockslides. Usually these bridges are a vital link to things like hospitals, schools, homes and jobs.

Just the building of a bridge in the beginning is hard enough. But having to replace it—usually under difficult weather conditions—is even harder.

But somehow it always seems to get done.

Thanks to the people who work for the B.C. Ministry of Highways. People like the surveyors. The labourers. The carpenters. The asphalt crews. The flag people. All working as a team to keep our roads open.

These people are only a few of the more than 43,000 members of the B.C. Government Employees' Union working for you all over the Province.

At all kinds of jobs.

Under all kinds of working conditions.

All people whose skill, experience and dedication have made our provincial public employees among the most efficient anywhere in North America today. And that's something to be proud of.

Dangerous Pennypinching

In what must be a nomination for Understatement-of-the-Year Award, Victoria General Hospital Board chairman Alan Patterson said this week: "It looks to me that we are going to be in for a very difficult year."

Hospital administrator Jim Fair went further. He predicted 1979 might be a disaster.

That doesn't seem too strong a word for the financial mess in which the hospital — along with many other B.C. hospitals — finds itself as a result of the unyielding, unreasonable attitude being taken by the provincial government towards its budget.

Hospital boards have been lumped in with municipalities and other forms of local government and are being restricted to budget increases of five per cent for 1979.

Just how the hospital boards are supposed to accomplish this feat doesn't appear to have been taken into account.

In the case of Victoria General, for example, the hospital has been forced to go almost $1 million over budget for 1978. That's just about five per cent, so it means that in effect, the hospital will have to get along in 1979 on exactly the same amount as it actually spent last year.

Then there are wage increases. Wages make up 75 to 80 per cent of the hospital's budget, but the hospital board usually doesn't have much real control over wage increases. Since hospital employees are not normally allowed to strike, wage increases are frequently decided by arbitration. Arbitrations in the public sector have been running on average about eight per cent for the year. That would mean a six per cent increase in the hospital's budget right there.

As for the rest of the budget, the general inflation rate is expected to run at 7.5 per cent to eight per cent for the year. Food costs, a major hospital purchase, probably will increase by 10 or 12 per cent, or even more. All in all, it means that a hospital would have to increase its budget by at least eight per cent just to hold its current level of services.

So, if it is not allowed that type of increase, what can a hospital do? There's only one thing — it can cut back services and close beds, thereby making the ill and helpless, the very weakest members of our society, the victims for the provincial government's tax-saving schemes.

Hospitals, at least in the Victoria area, do not have fat to pare from their budgets. They are already operating with the least-possible nursing staff, some might even say below optimum levels. And occasionally they are having to cancel elective surgery because they are operating at more than 100 per cent capacity with true emergency cases. We have to ask how much farther back they can cut before patient care begins to suffer, despite the best efforts of their dedicated staff.

Hospitals are not like municipalities where some services are less urgent than others, where road repairs or park improvements can be put off until another year without actually hurting anyone. There are few parts of a hospital providing anything other than essential services. You can't put off feeding the patients, or giving them medication, or using sophisticated equipment until financial times get better.

Also, the population of hospitals, unlike that of school districts, is not declining. Indeed, the same demographic trends that are causing rapidly dropping enrolments in schools are causing a rise in the proportion of the population aged 60 and more, that section that needs hospitals the most.

Another interesting argument against the strict provincial policies is a suggestion that they may end up backfiring on the government. If hospitals are forced to cut back farther, those who will lose service will be those whose complaints are not yet emergencies but who need surgery or other treatment to correct some condition — the "electives," as they are known in hospital jargon. After all, no hospital would refuse to treat those whose conditions had become true emergencies, who were in agonizing pain or whose lives hung in the balance.

Yet, as the "electives" are pushed farther and farther into the background, their condition, in many cases, worsens. A grumbling appendix, for example, flares up into a full-blown attack of appendicitis, demanding an immediate operation. By the time these people do get into hospital, the worsening of their conditions means that they will require longer or more expensive treatment, thus perpetuating the health-care cost spiral.

Fiscal responsibility for hospitals is one thing. But financial pennypinching that jeopardizes essential health care for the sick and old of our community is quite another. The government should move immediate to introduce much more flexibility into budget controls for hospitals.

Victoria School Board: A Failure So Far in '79

For some, the November elections to the Greater Victoria school board were a dream come true. The election of Martin Levin and Win Mott, two candidates from the "opposition," "educational-quality" side of the Victoria education debate gave them, for the first time, a majority on the board previously dominated by the so-called budget-balancers.

For some on the other side, the election was the portent of a nightmare. They envisioned the new majority spending tax dollars wildly and irrationally, forking the money through school doors with never a thought for the poor taxpayers.

One month into the year, the new school board is indeed becoming a nightmare but not for the reasons originally suggested. It is becoming a nightmare because the two sides, deeply divided by ideology and philosophy, have become warring factions in the battleground of the board room.

There have been few indications that the new majority is remembering its goal of providing the best eduction for the children of this area. There have been few indications that the budget-balancing group, now in opposition, is remembering its goal of providing the best deal for the taxpayers. There have been many indications that both sides have succumbed to the goal of raw power, and even vengeance.

Normally the board hold two meetings each month, each lasting about 2½ hours. Occasionally extra meetings are held to discuss specific topics of importance.

So far this month, the board has held five regular 2½-hour meetings and it still hasn't finished the month's ordinary agenda.

Quite simply, almost nothing is getting accomplished. In all this time, there have been few great debates on educational philosophy. Instead there have been endless wrangling over procedures and semantics, endless debates over trivia and minutiae that don't really need ever to come to the board at all.

Regrettably, much of the blame for this situation must go to the new board chairman and vice-chairman, Carol Pickup and Levin. Imbued with a new sense of power, Pickup, Levin and their supporters became trigger-happy much too quickly and began introducing closure motions to end what they saw as the tedious and irresponsible debate of the opposition trustees.

The new opposition, however, has been anything but blameless in the whole fiasco. They have spent hours asking incredibly trivial questions based on previous meetings' minutes, have launched oblique attacks on personalities and even on the administration. They have, it would appear, tried to slow the process down until it reaches a dead halt.

The sad thing about all this is that everyone loses, and the biggest loser of all is the school system of Greater Victoria. It does neither the schoolchildren nor the taxpayers any good to have the board taking up so much time with petty squabbling.

It is not a bad thing to have a wide range of deeply held views on a school board or other governmental body. The introduction of new viewpoints, perhaps minority viewpoints, has undoubtedly added to the responsiveness and effectiveness of Victoria city council in the past year or so.

But when the lines between groups harden so that no compromise is possible, so that trustees vote in blocs regardless of the issue, so that the main goal is a "win" over the other side at all costs, the whole system of local government begins to disintegrate.

If the Greater Victoria school board wants to have the district in a little better shape in 1980 than in 1979, it should forget the entire past month and start again — this time as a governing board, rather than as a microcosm of the provincial legislature. — B.McL.

A Future Together?

Excerpts from the report of the Task Force on Canadian Unity, which was made public this week by co-chairmen Jean-Luc Pepin and John Robarts.

It would be foolish for Canadians to think of the challenge which lies ahead solely in terms of the forthcoming referendum on the independence of Quebec. A victory for the federalist cause in the referendum will accomplish little if no effort is made to address the sources of discontent which have occasioned it.

Yet it would be a mistake to regard this situation as a crisis only, for it is also an opportunity — an opportunity to build anew that sense of common interest, of common purpose and of common will which the present crisis shows us to have been so seriously eroded.

Further erosion of the common will in which our society is ultimately grounded would almost certainly spell the end of the Canadian experience.

We believe that the heart of the present crisis is to be discovered in the intersecting conflicts created by two kinds of cleavages in Canadian society and by the political agencies which express and mediate them.

The first and more pressing cleavage is that old Canadian division between "the French" and "the English". . . .

Each, if ignored or left unsatisfied, has the power to break the country, and each must accept the other if a new period of harmony is to be achieved.

□

Quebec will continue to be the pillar of the French fact in all of North America; it will perform this function inside the Canadian federal system or outside it.

So the challenge is not to try to confer on Quebec a role that it has in any case played for centuries, but to demonstrate that it is a role which can be played more effectively within a restructured federal system which is expressly cognizant of Quebec's distinctiveness and its sources. . . .

□

The sovereignty of Quebec, if it came about as planned by the Parti Quebecois, creates two unities, two states which probably would not feel themselves obliged to recognize fully the continuing presence of duality within their frontiers. . . .

What pequistes [the Parti Quebecois] have in mind, so far as one can tell, is some kind of one-to-one association between Quebec and the rest of Canada. That this is a possible objective seems to be assumed, rather than demonstrated.

But what is the "other" to which Quebec would relate? It is not unified, but multiple and various; yet the logic of the sovereignty-association option presses hard on regionalism to deny itself for the sake of a duality which is little more than the Cheshire cat's smile.

Canadians would be diminished if they were to be denied the enriching experience derived from the often creative interplay between two linguistic and cultural orientations and among a diversity of regions and provinces. We do not want our children and grandchildren to be deprived of this heritage.

> This, on the face of it, does not strike most Canadians outside of Quebec, nor many inside Quebec, as a particularly seductive invitation.

The goal of reform, then, is not to thwart or deny these realities which are an integral part of Canadian life, but to accommodate them more adequately, to accept and channel them within Canada as a whole so that all might prosper from their presence.

□

We believe that it is now appropriate that specific attention be paid to the issue of the constitutional position of the first Canadians.

More specifically, both provincial and federal authorities should pursue direct discussions with representatives of Canada's Indians, Inuit and Metis, with a view to arriving at mutually acceptable constitutional provisions that would secure the rightful place of native people in Canadian society.

Secondly, we recommend that the central and provincial governments meet to settle their respective areas of constitutional responsibility in the provision of essential services in the fields of health, social welfare, housing and education to status and non-status Indians, to Inuit, and to Metis on reserves, Crown land, rural centres and large cities.

In the 1930s, the Depression called the whole economic and financial structure of Confederation into question and led to a new and enhanced role for central government direction in the management of the economy. The Second World War greatly increased this predominance and to a large extent this situation remains with us today.

Given the forces of dualism and regionalism in Canada, it is not surprising that provincial governments, Quebec being the most vocal of them, have reacted to this concentration of fiscal resources — and the power that goes with it — in the hands of the central government. The pendulum has been moving in their direction in recent years, but this, too, has added to intergovernmental tensions. . . .

We feel the central government should have wide responsibility for regional economic balance and the broad taxing and spending powers to meet it. This, of course, does not mean Ottawa should use its powers without regard to the interests of the regional governments or without limitations.

□

While advocating major revisions to our constitutional and political structure we believe that Canada should retain the combination of parliamentary institutions and a federal system . . .

Our proposals for major changes in the Canadian federal system are focused in six key areas:

- the clarification and adjustment of the constitutional distribution of powers between the central and provincial governments;
- better methods for handling federal-provincial relations, in particular through the replacement of the Senate by a Council of the Federation composed of provincial delegates;
- a revamped and formally independent supreme court of Canada;
- provision for constitutional amendment and flexibility;
- electoral reform to improve the regional representativeness of parties in the House of Commons;
- constitutionally entrenched fundamental rights.

We see the essential role and responsibilities of the central government as being to sustain, encourage and symbolize a Canadian identity and pride, to ensure the security and preservation of the Canadian federation, to have an overriding responsibility for the conduct of foreign policy, to control the major instruments of economic policy, to oversee interprovincial and international trade, and to stimulate economic activity within the federation.

In addition, because the resources and economic advantages of Canada are not spread evenly throughout the country's 10 provinces, the central government must be in a position to assume equitable benefit sharing for all Canadians. This means that it must have a responsibility for combatting regional disparities, establishing appropriate minimum standards of living for all Canadians where appropriate, and redistributing income between individuals and between provinces.

We see the essential role of the provinces as being to take the main responsibility for the social and cultural well-being and development of their communities, for the development of their economies and the exploitation of their natural resources, and for property and civil rights. This implies exclusive — or occasionally concurrent — jurisdiction over matters pertaining to culture, education, health, social services, marriage and divorce, immigration, manpower and training, the administration of justice, natural resources including fisheries, regional economic development, trade within the province, consumer and corporate affairs, urban affairs, housing and land use, and environment.

It implies, as well, correspondingly adequate powers to tax. The provincial governments should also have the right, as long as they abide by Ottawa's overriding foreign policy, to establish some relations with foreign countries and to sign treaties in matters coming under their jurisdiction.

In the case of Quebec, it should be assured of the full powers needed for the preservation and expansion of its distinctive heritage. This would require either exclusive or concurrent jurisdiction assigned to all provinces generally or to Quebec specifically, over such matters as language, culture, civil law, research and communications, as well as related power to tax and to establish some relations in these fields with foreign countries.

> It seems to us that Quebecers will not be convinced to stay in Confederation by others raising the spectre of the dire economic consequences of secession, although it might be wise for Quebecers to think carefully about the possible risks.

While we support the continuation of federal-provincial conferences as the forum for constitional discussion, we believe that there should be a popular ratification of the results.

This would mean that, after an agreement on a new constitution arrived at by the federal and provincial governments, a Canada-wide referendum would be held, and approval of the new constitution or set of constitutional amendments would require a majority vote in each of the four regions of Canada — the Atlantic region, Quebec, Ontario and the western provinces.

Thus, final responsibility for constitutional change would rest with the people themselves.

The principle of the equality of status, rights and privileges of the English and French languages for all purposes declared by the Parliament of Canada, within its sphere of jurisdiction, should be entrenched in the constitution. . . .

Each provincial legislature should have the right to determine an official language or official languages for that province, within its sphere of jurisdiction.

□

If, in the course of the next few years, Quebecers decided, definitely and democratically, to secede, ought that decision to be respected and accepted by the rest of Canada?

To that question we answer an unequivocal yes. Our response is a virtual corollary of our acceptance of the democratic process. . . .

It is for the people of Quebec to declare themselves on their political and constitutional preferences, and not the country as a whole.

We recognize that both the government of Quebec and the government of Canada, as a result of the democratic process, represent the people of Quebec in their respective spheres of jurisdiction; it is important, therefore, that whatever process is employed to determine the will of the people of Quebec is accepted as legitimate by both governments.

But it is the Quebecois themselves who must make the decision.

The point on the other side is also clear. The provinces and communities of English-speaking Canada have interests which must be respected and they have an equal right to determine what arrangements suit them best, should Quebec wish to secede. . . . Our study and consultation do not lead usto believe that sovereignty-association as advanced would have great appeal in the other nine provinces.

Chinese Legal Reform: Party of the First Part

By JAY MATHEWS
The Washington Post

PEKING — China is beginning to move toward a more equitable legal system, with public trials and trained defence attorneys, but lengthy conversations here reveal a great gap between popular demands for more human rights and the policy of the Communist Party.

In a wide-ranging exchange with American journalists, two law experts from Peking University refused to concede that China's most famous political prisoners — the infamous Gang of Four — had any right to a speedy or open trial until the party decided it was ready for one.

As the Carter administration prepares to discuss its human rights concerns with visiting Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping, the chance for any real understanding on such matters seems slight.

Instead, the Chinese seem to be trying to patch up, bit by bit, a legal fabric ripped to shreds by two decades of political typhoons.

Open Trials

Trials are opening to the public again, except in cases of national security or sexual offenses. Universities are training lawyers to replace amateur defence counsels. People at the bottom, even political outcasts like former landlords, are being given hope of fairer treatment, but high political criminals like the Gang of Four are still considered beyond any rules.

The gang includes four former politburo members, led by Chiang Ching, the widow of Chairman Mao Tse-tung, who were arrested on Oct. 6, 1976, for allegedly trying to take over the government.

Prof. Shen Chung-ling and lecturer Wu Ji-ying, both of Peking University's law faculty, confirmed here that no criminal charges have been filed against the four and they have not had a trial. Yet the two law experts insisted the four's arrest was justified because it was "the will of the people."

"How did anyone at the time know it was the will of the people?" an American listener asked. It took much of the rest of a morning to arrive at an answer vaguely comprehensible to minds used to Western standards of law.

It was the people's will because people supported the arrests after they were made. Earlier arrests and purges, such as those suffered by Teng, turned out not to be the people's will because people did not support them after they had been announced.

What Party Says

The party is the representative of the proletariat and "the law is the embodiment of the party's policy," Shen said. Despite the moves toward reforms, the law remains only what the party says it is.

"They are trying to avoid the worst abuses of the nightmare of the last several years," said Harvard Law School professor Jerome Cohen in an earlier interview in Hong Kong. "They are trying to get back to 1956, when people had a minimal kind of security. It's not free speech, but at least it's better than they've had lately."

The party has not given up its power to administer justice as it sees fit, but it has decided to administer it with a lighter hand, in hopes that morale and economic production will increase.

Peasants and workers complaining of discrimination and hunger are allowed to march in Peking apparently without, so far, anyone being arrested. Three men arrested in 1974 for a pro-democracy wall poster in Canton, written under the pseudonym Li Yi-che, have been released in the last month, according to a report by Agence France-Presse.

A recent article in the Kwangming Daily, a Peking newspaper aimed at intellectuals, even called for legal limits on "inner party struggles," which have filled China's jails in the past with political prisoners.

Shen seemed unwilling to tread too far into this domain of the party, other than to say, "I personally would like to see a public trial of the Gang of Four."

In some areas, official broadcasts call for harsher justice, quite the opposite of what many appeals from friends and relatives of prisoners in Peking are saying in wall posters here.

"Some immature young people do not have the slightest impression of law and discipline and cannot distinguish between right and wrong or good and evil," the Peoples Daily complained last month in an article that revealed a serious outbreak of juvenile crime. A Kansu provincial broadcast said "criminals have not been dealt blows vigorously."

The campaign for more vigorous justice is called "maintaining public order and establishing good social order." Some officials have tied it to the legal reform effort by arguing that order can be restored only when everyone knows what the law is.

Gang of Four members hang in effigy

Soviet Parallels

The lack of a widely disseminated criminal code in recent years allowed some political leaders to arrest people on flimsy pretexts. Many police stations in Canton and other Chinese cities have recently posted specific criminal statutes outside their doors.

The Peoples Daily has proposed giving legal protections even to people like former landlords, who have been subject to official discrimination since the Communists took power in China in 1949. This means rewriting the concept of class struggle as the Soviet Union did during the post-Stalin reforms.

Officials are now being re-established in every locality to weigh evidence and throw out dubious police cases before going to trial. Shen and Wu said they are also trying to train as many people as possible to serve as public defenders, a job currently left to a relative or friend of the defendent.

"People are still suspicious of trained lawyers" from the pre-liberation days, Wu said, but "we think it better to have public defenders because they know more about the law."

Still, the Peking University law faculty will graduate 60 students this year, far from what is needed to staff legal offices across the country.

The Chinese system also continues to emphasize confessions. Suspects know punishments will be lighter and their chances better if they simply admit to the charges, and give up any effective defence.

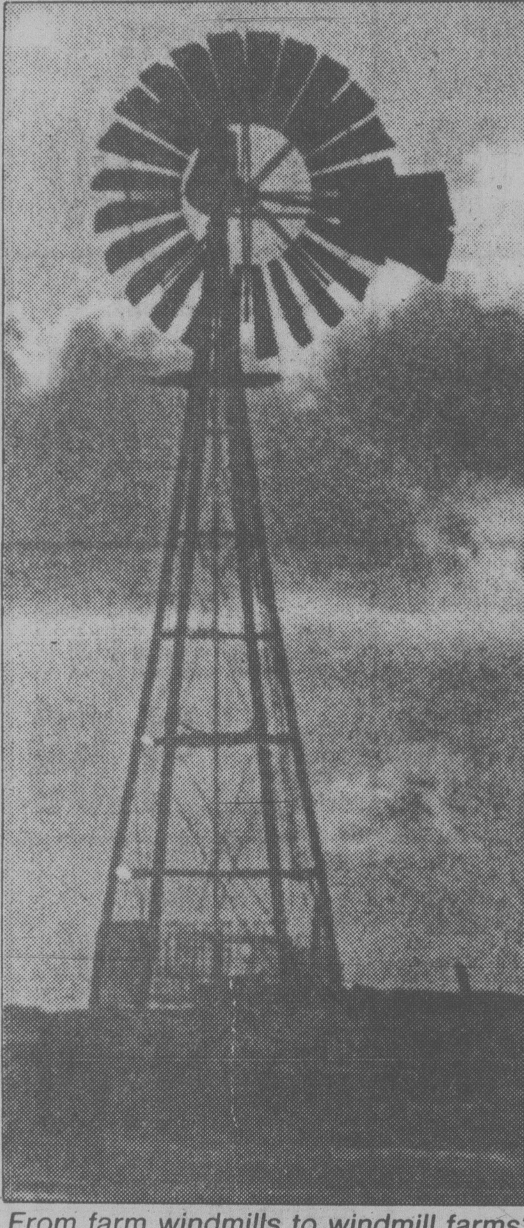
'If You Confess'

Wu denied, however, that police carried this to the extreme of saying, "You will be released immediately if you confess, or, if you don't confess, you will be punished severely."

Political criminals, they indicated, will be treated generously. Chinese sources report that one of the Gang of Four, Chang Chung-chiao, is now in a hospital being treated for cancer. Others suffer a kind of house arrest, waiting to see what the party decides the law in their case should be.

California Lures 'Wind Farmers' In Hopes of Big Energy Savings

THE ECONOMIST



From farm windmills to windmill farms?

SAN FRANCISCO — "Prospecting for wind," the harnessing of wind power for commercial energy, is making substantial strides forward throughout America.

In California a 500-windmill "farm" is already planned on a strategic mountain pass and another 200-unit "farm" may be erected in the Palm Springs desert. California's state energy commission estimates that ultimately about 10 per cent of the state's energy needs can be pulled from the winds that blow down from Alaska, cut across the Pacific coastline and howl through mountain canyons.

Next year the Southern California Edison company will put up a 190-foot tower in the windy San Gorgonio pass, north of the Palm Springs resort. This is the most ambitious single venture so far. The three-blade rotor will be 165 feet in diameter and, with winds of 40 miles an hour, the single windmill is expected to generate three megawatts of power; with 20-mile-an-hour winds, 375 kilowatts. Larger windmills have been built, but at less windy sites.

The imaginative attitude in California towards unconventional sources of power has persuaded a Massachusetts company, U.S. Windpower, to undertake its first major electrical generating venture in the state, in conjunction with electricity companies. Using windmills with a 50-foot blade designed to produce 50-kilowatts of power, they are considering putting a large number of mills on land, such as Palm Desert, which is too windy to be inhabited. Some 500 are being considered for a site at Pacheco Pass, 60 miles south of San Francisco in the coastal mountain range. They expect to duplicate such "wind farms" in other regions of California. The firm believes that 500 windmills, to develop 25 megawatts of electricity, can be put into production for about $15 million, considerably less than it would cost to use coal or nuclear power.

But such an array of windmills presents problems. It requires a large expanse of land because the blades must be spaced well apart to prevent excessive turbulence in the air. The machines can be built to make relatively little noise but they do not lend themselves to towns or areas of natural beauty.

Yet wind energy is more immediately applicable to the production of electric power than the sun's warmth. The federal support program is small — $60 million for the current year — but enthusiasm has increased.

When utilities were invited by the department of energy to propose sites of wind energy tests, 65 proposals were offered. From this list, 17 were chosen; windmills are already producing power on three of them, and three more will be completed this year.

The first, with 125-foot rotors, is yielding 200 kilowatts of power at Clayton, New Mexico, a very isolated community previously dependent on diesel generators. Two others are planned for islands off the New England coast, another in Puerto Rico and one in Hawaii.

The largest of all, with blades 200 feet in diameter, is planned for North Carolina at Howard's Knob, where 24-mile-an-hour winds are frequent.

While the federal program is directed towards technological development, California is bent on demonstration projects to persuade private firms to become active with their own funds and engineering talent. Already six windmill manufacturers are in business in the state. California has an $800,000 budget for this purpose and a commitment to more than $1.6 million next year.

Some legislators dispute the value of such esoteric ventures and hope to cut back the energy commission's funds in the economy wave that has engulfed California government. Time, and the wind, may prove them wrong.

Cheek-Cheek Call Promises Spring

I'm at it again — pushing the season, that is.

This time it was a sound that brought to mind visions of sunny warm days, bright golden and mauve crocuses, and splendid yellow daffodils.

It continually amazes me how, above the din of day-to-day living downtown, a gentle natural sound breaks through to remind me that even in the concrete and steel "jungle" the heartbeat of nature can still be heard.

Such was the case a week or so ago when, while crossing Belleville at Government, I heard a familiar sound above the traffic noises. It was the distinctive call of a Robin. Not a Robin's song but the penetrating cheek-cheek that I associate with male Robins when they first begin to re-assert their territorial rights.

This fellow was calling from somewhere on the grounds of the Empress so I made a little detour through the gardens, just to have a look.

It was a gratifying detour. The hotel's gardeners had apparently just finished a cleanup of the place because the earth under the trees was bare and the marks of rakes were everywhere; more importantly, there were birds everywhere too. There were Song Sparrows, Golden-crowned Sparrows — even Fox Sparrows. There were also Robins, half a dozen of them in a little group. All were enjoying the buffet of soil life that had been exposed when the leaves and vegetation had been cleared away. But my Robin was not among them.

I watched the little group for a while, thinking of how, passing through the garden several times a week, I'd missed most of them in the past. I was also thinking how a little food does wonders in attracting birds.

It was during these musings that my Robin began calling again. This time I found him easily, at the other end of the garden but just as engrossed in gleaning whatever the soil offered.

But his cheek-cheeks suggested there was more on his mind that food. Deep in his tiny mind, a signal was beginning to sound, a signal that told him it was time to think about territories, and mates, and nests, and young robins.

It was a signal that had been triggered by nothing more than the lengthening days. Yes, the days are noticeably longer now, at least a half an hour longer, and that's enough to make a Robin sit up and take notice.

This Robin was different than the other Robins at the far end of the garden. They, while subject to the same lengthening days, hadn't felt the signal yet. They were transients; their homes lay far to the north and the mystery that makes birds of the same kind react differently to the same stimulus, was revealing itself in them. They would get their signal in time, but it would first be a signal to begin their journey — and that signal lay some weeks off.

As for my Robin, he was on home ground. No long journey lay ahead for him. He'd probably been close by all winter, remaining unobtrusively among the debris of autumn.

To the casual eye, he looked no different than any other Robin. But to the discerning eye, he might have been recognized as a loner — who usually didn't mix with the rabble of temporary residents.

But, by the third week of January, on fine sunny days, to even the most casual glance he could be seen as a Robin in the prime — and his dark head, white eye-ring, bright-yellow beak and rich, red breast, as the marks of a male.

More than that, he is now a male asserting himself, making his presence known rather than sulking quietly in the foliage. And the first signs of his new assertiveness were that sharp cheek-cheek, I heard above the roar of the down traffic.

It may be a little way off but you know what the next sign of his developing assertiveness will be. Yes, song. And when that happens, it will truly be spring.

Gov't Probe In Nightclub Bias Charge

VANCOUVER (CP) — The provincial government will set up a board of inquiry to investigate complaints that a downtown discotheque discriminates against blacks, Labor Minister Allan Williams said Friday night.

Williams said in an interview he hopes the board will begin next week to deal with the complaints filed with the British Columbia Human Rights Branch. No one has been named to the board yet.

Branch director Kathleen Ruff said she has had 16 formal complaints from blacks alleging that they were denied entrance or were harrassed at the doors of Misty's Cabaret.

Complaints against a second discotheque, Sugar Daddy's, are also being examined by the branch.

Ms. Ruff said the branch has not been able to settle the issue with Misty's because the discotheque has been not been co-operative.

"I'm concerned that strong feelings of anger and humiliation are being built up (in the black community)."

Ms. Ruff said she is hoping for an early hearing into the complaints and said the branch might also seek a court order to obtain information from Misty's.

Blacks told the city's community services committee Thursday about specific instances of discrimination and violence at the two discos and asked that their licences be suspended.

Delicia Crump, president of the Black Solidarity Association, said the committee was being asked to help because no help had been received from the human rights branch.

Luke Warrington, a black, told the committee that blacks might take their own action if nothing is done about the discrimination.

Committee chairman Harry Rankin called for a second meeting with the night club owners named in the complaints to get their side of the story.

Axe Spree Man Shot By Police

VANCOUVER (CP) — An axe-wielding man who was shot Friday during an altercation with police at a supermarket in the city's East End was charged with attempted murder and possession of a dangerous weapon.

Charged was Jose Augusto Ribeiro, address unknown, police said. He was reported in poor condition in hospital.

Police said they were called after a man carrying an axe entered a supermarket and began causing a disturbance.

Further details were withheld.

"All Wardair Class"

Wardair Class – where you're more than just a passenger

When you fly Wardair each and every passenger receives our renowned, friendly, service. As you board our aircraft you will be warmly greeted by our experienced flight attendants, each one ready to look after your every need – a blanket, some juice or just a helping hand. On every flight you will be served a delicious and generous hot meal . . presented individually, fresh from the galleys. on attractive china dinnerware – not throw-away plastic. You will be offered chateau wines, liqueurs, bar service, tea, coffee, etc. . . . and it's all included in your fare. You'll get the best possible service at better than charter class fares on other scheduled airlines . . . that's Wardair Class.

Introducing New Flexibility – return whenever you want

Now, all you have to do is book 30 days ahead and be away from Canada a minimum of 6 days – then you can return on any date you want and still take advantage of the low-cost Pre-Booking Flights. This means you can stay for less than a week or more than a summer – just pick any date you want from the Holidays by Wardair International Schedule. Whether you're planning a holiday, a business trip or a bit of both . . . you still fly Wardair Class.

Introducing our New International Flight Schedule

Our new timetable and fare chart for Holidays by Wardair Pre-Booking Flights is now available. Simple to use, it gives our complete service at a glance . . . including day of departure, time of departure and the type of wide-body jet you will be flying. You will also see that all our flights are direct, no changing aircraft or long stopovers. The majority of our flights are NON-STOP, you get where you want to go faster. To help you choose your best flight "buy", fares are included in an easy-to-read chart form. Pick up a copy of our International Schedule today and plan your holiday or business trip and fly Wardair Class.

Introducing Child Fares – now the kids can go too

Yes! There is a discount for children! 20% OFF the adult Pre-Booking Flight fare to Britain and Europe and 10% OFF for Hawaii. These Child Fares apply to children 2-11 inclusive . . . infants under 2 years still travel at no charge! Today there is no need to shop around for "family bargain" fares . . . all you do is call your Travel Agent or Intervac and say "2 adults, 2 children" and you know you're getting low-cost travel for your entire family when you fly Wardair Class.

Introducing our wide-body jet fleet

With the addition of the new aircraft this year our whole International Fleet is now totally wide-body jets – you fly B-747 or DC-10. As you settle into your comfortable seat and look around you'll appreciate the bright, colourful decor and spaciousness of these "giants of the skies" . . . you can even take a stroll around the aisles! Large overhead bins hold your coat or jacket within easy reach. More galleys mean faster service and even hotter meals. This all adds up to the extra comfort you want and deserve when you fly Wardair Class.

Sample fare for low cost travel to Hawaii

Vancouver return

Honolulu $239

As you can see, it makes it even easier for you when planning a holiday to Hawaii, our fares are still offered as total return prices. And, of course, you still fly Wardair Class.

Our new fare structure gives you more flexibility

For your convenience we have arranged our fares to the U.K. and Europe on a separate outgoing and return basis. To calculate your total fare cost is simple. All you do is choose your destination, period of departure and price from the "EASTBOUND" chart. Then select, from the "WESTBOUND" chart, your period of return and price indicated beside your destination city. Add the two prices together and the result is your total fare cost.

For example:

Vancouver to London

Departure date: Monday, April 30	$235
Return date: Wednesday, Sept. 5	+ $259
Your total low-cost fare	$494

Once you have calculated your fare you'll discover that flying charter class on other scheduled airlines costs you more than flying Wardair Class.

Greenpeace Saves Geese

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Greenpeace Foundation has won a guarantee from federal wildlife officials that none of Penticton's troublesome Canada geese will be shot, foundation president Dr. Patrick Moore said Friday night.

He said a meeting has been scheduled in the Okanagan resort city Wednesday to try to get a better solution as a direct result of a Greenpeace plan to put their members between hunters and the geese.

Ian Robertson, regional wildlife biologist, said earlier that shooting was the only economical and efficient way of ridding the the community of geese.

The chamber of commerce has complained the geese, which numbered 860 on a Boxing Day bird count, are fouling the beaches of this city heavily dependent on tourism. Dr. David Clarke, South Okanagan medical health officer, said the geese are a danger to human health and an airport spokesman said they could be dangerous for aircraft.

Moore said the geese came to Penticton from a nearby nesting area set up by the Canadian Wildlife Service. They were attracted to the city because people fed them.

He said Greenpeace will propose at Wednesday's meeting that feeding areas for the geese be established where they will not be bothersome, that people be taught what to feed the birds and that a study be made of their numbers and habits in the Penticton area.

Moore said representatives of Penticton city council, the health unit and wildlife officials will attend the meeting along with himself.

Eyewitnesses Describe AirWest Crash

VANCOUVER (CP) — Eight witnesses, five of whom are pilots or are familiar with aircraft, testified Friday at the inquest into the deaths of 11 persons in an AirWest Airlines Ltd. Twin Otter plane crash Sept. 2.

Facing coroner Bernard Nash and lawyers representing several parties involved with the crash, witnesses gave detailed accounts of the seconds before the plane crashed into Coal Harbor near the downtown area leaving two survivors.

Commercial pilot Bob Stewart of Vernon, who was watching the plane from adjacent Stanley Park, said he heard an alarming bang that sounded like metal breaking on the aircraft and he knew something was wrong with the engine.

He said the plane — which was on a flight from Victoria with a group of Japanese tourists — then banked about 40 degrees to the left as it disappeared from sight.

Student pilot Thomas Thomson of Vancouver testified that the float plane was not on a normal flight path and appeared to be flying too low to land in Coal Harbor.

He said most planes follow a channel leading to the harbor before landing but the AirWest plane was flying in over boathouses and docks. Other witnesses said they had observed planes flying on the same path as the AirWest plane.

Thomson said that seconds before the plane banked and crashed, the sound from its engines increased, as if someone was applying power.

In testimony Tuesday, one survivor said as the plane was flying over Stanley Park, on its approach to the harbor, there was a low-pitch bang from the right side of the aircraft and the plane dropped slightly.

A few seconds later, the right engine started running at a higher pitch, the plane turned to the left and started losing altitude. Within 15 or 20 seconds it plunged into the harbor.

Student pilot Laurence Unrau of North Vancouver, who was playing soccer in Stanley Park at the time of the crash, said Friday the engine noise changed to an intermittent sputter as if it wasn't working properly.

He said he ran to the crash site and unsuccessfully tried with others to secure the sinking plane with a rope.

Unrau also said a diver at the site was delayed several minutes from entering the water because he did not have a weight belt.

Shannon Ralph White of the Lions Bay area near Vancouver, who witnessed a similar small plane crash in Calgary two years ago, said he saw the plane's left wing-dip violently to the left and the plane did not return to normal.

White, who specializes in aircraft insurance, said his initial impression was that the pilot had seen something on the water and was trying to avoid it.

The inquest continues Monday.

B.C. Tel Profit $33.7M

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Telephone Co. reported Friday net earnings of $33,772,000 or $1.55 a share for the year ended Dec. 31, 1978, compared with earnings of $29,019,000 or $1.54 a share in 1977.

Revenues in 1978 totalled $576,299,000, but this was reduced to $550,974,000 because of a decision by the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission requiring B.C. Tel to carry forward a portion of revenues to the 1979 fiscal year.

Gordon MacFarlane, chairman and chief executive officer, said increased use of long-distance services and telephone expansion contributed to the revenue growth.

More than 82,000 telephones were added to the B.C. Tel system in 1978, compared with a growth of 57,000 in 1977.

WHY DIAMOND PRICES VARY

Diamond jewelry prices vary more than those of any other item I know. That's because there are so many factors to be considered in arriving at a value for this highly coveted gemstone.

The 4 C's are most responsible for the variation. They are the Cutting, Color, Clarity and Carat Weight of the Stone.

The way a diamond is cut affects its beauty. If the stone is cut too deep, light entering from the top leaks out the sides, and the diamond appears black in the centre. If the stone is too shallow, light entering the stone is not reflected at all, and passes straight through. When the stone is properly proportioned, light enters the stone, bounces around inside, and is released to the eye of the beholder, resulting in a display of brilliancy.

Most diamonds have a hint of yellow or brown in them, but if this color is too noticeable, it decreases the value of the stone. The complete absence of color is considered top quality.

Clarity is a judgment of the nature and number of internal and external marks in a stone. A few tiny inclusions are not visible to the naked eye and won't visibly affect the beauty. The top clarity quality is flawless.

Carat weight is the final consideration in placing a value on a stone. Besides providing a figure to multiply by the per carat value arrived at after judging the other 3 C's, the carat weight may place the stone in a different pricing category. In general, the larger the stone the higher the price per carat.

We at Birks Jewellers know all about diamonds and are always willing to show and explain, to help you make a wise selection.

Geologist Plays Cool On Oil Deposit Data

EDMONTON (CP) — Estimates of 40-billion barrels of oil under the Lloydminster area are not necessarily an answer to Canada's energy dream, says a geologist employed by the federal government.

Bob McCrossan of the geological survey of Canada office in Calgary said his recent estimate was the most comprehensive assessment of known resources in the Lloydminster-Wainwright region, plus conservative speculation on unknown oil in the region.

The actual heavy oil present could even exceed the 40-billion-barrels figure, but none of it will mean much if it cannot be technically or economically extracted from the ground, he said.

Don Getty, who plans to resign the post of Alberta energy minister, said the major source of Canada's future oil needs should be the extraction of more oil from known resources, not from new finds.

Getty's major last thrust before he leaves office will be to devise an expanded development incentive program to redirect the petroleum industry from searching for new finds to attempting to extract more out of the holes they already have drilled.

Getty said the new incentives likely would cover experiments, field work and anything else the provincial Energy Resources Conservation Board judges could extract more oil from existing finds.

"The idea of having 60 to 70 per cent of the known oil in the ground is just basically wrong and we're going to have incentives of every kind to get it out."

McCrossan said getting major quantities of oil out of the Lloydminster-Wainwright area is a problem oil companies have been grappling with for some time. A federal government assessment of the totals the geologist has reported is likely to be ready later this year.

B.C. Man Denies PLO Murder Link

OTTAWA (CP) — A Vancouver man suspected by Palestinian guerrillas of helping assassinate a Palestinian Liberation Organization (PLO) official has told the external affairs department he was not involved.

Maurice Cutler, a department spokesman, said Friday Ronald Kolberg told Canadian officials he has been attending classes daily at an Israeli university for the last three weeks and was not involved in the death of Ali Hassan Salameh, reputed mastermind behind the killing of 11 Israeli athletes at the 1972 Munich Olympics.

Salameh, four bodyguards and four pedestrians died Monday when a car-bomb exploded in Beirut.

Meanwhile, Lebanese authorities said today they are holding an American and a Frenchman suspected of "complicity" in the assassination of Salameh.

The Lebanese state radio identified the suspects as Donald Webster Stecher, the American, and Philippe Robert Riveau, the Frenchman. Both names were transliterated from Arabic, so the spellings were uncertain. No hometowns were given.

The radio said both were arrested Friday and several passports of various nationalities were found on each of them. The broadcast said Lebanon's military prosecutor general, Asaad Garmanos, interrogated the pair separately.

The PLO, implicating Kolberg through his passport number, has alleged that he was one of at least three Israeli agents who had killed Salameh.

Cutler said the department tried to reach Kolberg to find out if his passport had been stolen or misused in any way.

He said Kolberg is in possession of his passport but that it would be fairly easy for anyone to obtain Kolberg's name and passport number.

The PLO earlier identified two other suspects as Peer Scriver, holder of a British passport and Erika Mary Chambers, whose passport was said to have been issued in London in 1975.

Reached at his Vancouver home, Kolberg's father said the PLO identification of his son is a case of mistaken identity.

"He is studying (biology) at university in Israel and with his 55 hours a week of study, he doesn't have time to get involved in anything else," he said.

"It's stupid to think that anyone doing that sort of thing would use his own passport."

N-Protesters Sentenced

SEATTLE (AP) — Judge Donald Vorhees of U.S. District Court has sentenced 176 protesters who were found guilty of re-entering the Trident nuclear submarine base under construction near Bangor, Wash.

Vorhees handed down 45-day suspended sentences Friday with three years of probation to 171 protesters.

He sentenced five persons to the federal penitentiary for 45 days without suspensions.

The 176 were convicted Jan. 2 as the result of a May 23 demonstration staged after the defendants were warned in letters from the Navy not to trespass again after they already had clambered over base fences once.

Voorhees, who heard the case last month, rejected the defence contention that their actions were justified because they were trying to prevent the greater evil of nuclear war.

Originally, 181 protesters were charged, but five were acquitted because of insufficient evidence.

Twenty-two of the protesters who received suspended sentences were Canadians. The base is 160 kilometres south of Vancouver.

Library Move Hangs by Thread

The central library move to quarters in a new provincial govermment complex on Broughton Street is hanging by a thread, Greater Victoria Library Board chairman Gordon Hutcheson said Friday.

But he said the board still is confident it will get a $400,000 provincial grant to enable the move from Yates and Blanshard.

He said it would be tragic if plans for the move fall apart.

His comments came after criticism of Victoria Socred MLA Sam Bawlf for reneging on a commitment 18 months ago for the $400,000.

Bawlf has denied making the commitment.

Fewer Male Smokers

TOKYO (Reuter) — The Japan Tobacco Corp. said Wednesday the number of Japanese men who smoked cigarettes and cigars fell last year to its lowest level since the Second World War. A survey showed 74.7 per cent of Japanese men smoked in 1978, compared with 83.7 per cent in 1966. The number of women who smoked in 1978 rose by 1.1 per cent to 16.2 per cent.

Modest Pay Boost Due for Grumbling MLAs

New Regulations Expected to Give Them Regular Increases Tied to Cost of Living

By PAUL NICHOLSON
Times Staff

B.C.'s MLAs who haven't had a pay raise in almost seven years — and are starting to grumble about it — can probably look forward to a modest increase this spring.

And from then on, it is likely they will get regular annual raises tied to the Consumer Price Index or another inflationary guide, the current practice in most other provinces.

MLAs receive a salary of $16,000 plus an additional $8,000 tax-free expense money for travel to and from their ridings and to live in Victoria during the session.

By the end of February the Judge Lawrence Eckardt year-long Royal Commission on Electoral Reform will release a five or six-volume report recommending broad changes in the provincial electoral system.

As well as a complete overhaul of the antiquated Provincial Elections Act, the report will revamp the regulations covering MLAs salaries, expenses and pensions.

And while B.C. legislators have generally fallen behind their counterparts in other provinces, Eckardt is, in the words of one of his chief researchers, being very frugal.

"The judge is observing the other provinces, but being terribly mindful of the public purse," said Dale Mearns, a researcher on Eckardt's staff.

But there seems to be little doubt that Eckardt will recommend some kind of bump in pay with regular follow-ups for the members.

In contrast to B.C.'s MLAs' salaries and expense money, Ontario and Quebec members of provincial parliament are better paid and received more lucrative expense allowances.

Ontario MPPs receive $21,000 annually plus $7,500 tax-free expense money. And depending on the location and size of their riding, qualify for up to $2,500 more for charter aircraft. The members also get 12 cents per kilometre gas mileage.

In Quebec, members of the National Assembly receive about $29,500 annually, and again depending on the size and location of their riding can qualify for up to $5,000 travel funds.

(Premier Rene Levesque receives his MNA wage on top of his $41,700 premier's salary bringing his annual income to more than $78,000, almost $25,000 a year more than Premier Bennett.)

In B.C.'s sprawling north, the lack of travel funding has led some members to claim they lose money by being elected to the legislature.

Jack Kempf, the Socred from the remote northern Omineca riding, filed a brief to Eckardt recommending expense allowances be increased by $6,000 a year.

Kempf says he spends between $2,000 and $3,000 over the existing allowance servicing his riding, and on top of that, the rough northern roads wear out a car every two years. And to get to some of the isolated spots, he has to rent a float plane at $185 an hour.

MLAs from around Victoria receive the same expense money, although they have but one residence to maintain and could service their riding by city bus.

A more equitable distribution is a certain recommendation in the pending report.

The Eckardt report, which will also covers such areas as alternate voting methods, voters' eligibility requirements, whether small parties should be granted full party status, guidelines covering the collection and expenditure of campaign funds and whether they should be tax deductible, will be ready for the spring session of the legislature.

That would give the legislature time to adopt changes before the next general election if it finds itself in agreement with the 72-year-old former provincial court judge's recommendations.

Last session Eckardt produced an interim report on constituency boundary changes which the Socred government adopted in its entirety, despite protests from the NDP the new boundaries favor Socred candidates.

The bill added two seats to the existing 55 although a number of ridings held by the NDP were wiped out in the process.

The Royal Commission held 44 pubic hearings and received 187 written briefs and 332 oral submission.

Then members of the research team travelled Canada, analysing salaries and expenses paid other politicians, attending electoral conferences and studying latest electoral changes initiated by other governments including the recent amendments to the national guidelines.

Every Wednesday the research team huddled with Eckardt pouring over latest information as draft reports slowly emerged.

Other than the rewrite of the Provincial Elections Act, the final draft reports are in Eckardt's hands for last-minute changes.

But the revamping of the Elections Act is proving to be an Herculean task for Col. Clive Rippon, the one-time air force pilot and lawyer with the Canadian Forces Judge Advocate General's department in Esquimalt who was enticed out of retirement by Eckardt to lend his legal expertise.

Rippon may be wishing he'd stayed retired.

His is the first extensive review in 25 years of the long, complex act which was originally written at the time of B.C.'s entry into Confederation in 1871 and amended piece-meal every four or five years since then into the patchwork bill it is today.

The new act will recommend that B.C. follow Ottawa and most of the other provinces and end voting eligibility for British subjects after only a year's residency in Canada.

If the act becomes law, only Canadian citizens who have lived in B.C. for six months prior to an election will be allowed to vote.

Eckardt is also looking into the preferential ballot where voters make a second and third choice in case one candidate doesn't emerge as a clear victor.

This was used in B.C. in the early 50s and generally led to confusion although it is supposed to be the truest form of democratic election.

Mumbo-Jumbo, Bafflegab To Be Bounced by Bawlf

B.C.'s civil servants must make themselves easily understood and get correspondence out in jig time under a new policy outlined Friday by Deregulation Minister Sam Bawlf.

His target is the bureaucrat who mumbles when in doubt and obscures the meaning of regulations in bureaucratese.

"My investigation of complaints and concerns expressed by the public indicates that many people are experiencing unnecessary delays, buck-passing and unexplained requirements and action by bureaucracy," said Bawlf.

A policy of his ministry, set up in a cabinet shuffle last month, says all communication, instruction and notices concerning the application of a regulation will be in plain language and replies sent within a time specified by the minister or by law.

The new policy soon will be posted in every government office in the province.

"Regulations are too often written by the legal profession with the legal profession in mind," Bawlf said.

"You give a lawyer a regulation to write, and he'll use a $10 word where he needs a 50-cent word. We've got to get back to basics."

In efforts to cut down on the buck-passing, Bawlf said officials with authority to act or decide under any regulation will be clearly designated.

"There is no question that governments generally in this country are handling too much paper and requiring too much information from individuals," the minister said.

Under the policy, government and officials will only request information required by law.

"I have found instances where overzealous agencies are asking all sorts of questions which are beyond their immediate authority in law. They have just become enamored with collecting more and more information from people."

Bawlf said a small business probably has to fill out as many forms as a large corporation but usually has little income to offset that expense overhead and his ministry is examining that area.

The minister outlined his policy which says every person is entitled to fair, just and reasonable consideration in the application of any regulation; a clear explanation of procedures to be followed; a clear statement of reason and any right of appeal.

He said all officials and agencies have been asked to co-ordinate their activities to minimize public inconvenience.

Bawlf said he will soon eliminate about 80 obsolete pieces of legislation.

He admitted it won't be easy to clean up the fuzzy language used by some veteran civil servants but says he is determined.

"People have a basic right to be able to understand regulations and there is no earthly reason why they can't be writing in understandable language."

He said all government agencies will be instructed to review their practices and dealings with the public to make sure they are complying with the new policy.

Girls Injured In Car Crash

Two 16-year-old girls were injured early today when a car smashed into three parked cars in the 3800-block Quadra.

Lisa East, address unavailable, is in fairly good condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital recovering from a concussion and head cuts, Saanich police said.

Victoria Gerrand, whose address also was unavailable, was treated for cuts to her face and released.

They were passengers in a car driven by Paul Tatters, 20, of 2169 Trans-Canada Highway.

Seer Out on Limb On Sick Tree Vibes

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

British psychic Simon Alexander would like to see at least a one-day seminar on clairvoyance included in the training program of all police personnel.

If that achieved nothing else, he says, it might save the officers concerned some embarrassment if they ever had to call in a clairvoyant to help them solve a murder case or find a multiple rapist.

Alexander, who will give Victorians a demonstration of his talents at The Empress on Thursday, has worked with a number of police departments including Britain's New Scotland Yard.

But wherever he goes offering his free services to fight crime he comes up against rather sheepish, embarrassed-looking police officers.

One English bobby even booked a private consultation wearing a "civvy" raincoat.

"But his thick blue trousers and great big boots were a dead giveaway," the psychic recalled.

ALEXANDER
. . . image flashed

Alexander, 35, a supremely self-assured, nattily-dressed person with a definite showbiz flair, has had his own television talk show in Britain, a syndicated radio show and newspaper column.

In addition to helping police — he claims his sensitivity to vibrations helped track down a notorious criminal called the Cambridge Rapist — he is retained as a consultant by various business groups.

He claims an 87 per cent accuracy rate, including such notable highlights as the exact day of the Richard Burton-Liz Taylor breakup, a romance between Liza Minelli and Peter Sellers, and the date of Richard Nixon's resignation.

Does Victoria give off any vibes?

"An image of trees dying flashed into my mind. I think you may have a disease of some kind which will kill off a lot of trees."

Among his other Canadian predictions: Joe Clark will narrowly oust Pierre Trudeau in a late winter election, and a sex scandal involving important public figures will rock Ottawa.

Alexander's show in the Crystal Ballroom at The Empress starts at 8 p.m. Thursday.

100-year-old Joe Hill has spent more than 40 winters here even though he's from the 'banana belt' of the Prairies

He Knows Way to Real Banana Belt

max low

While the sun, though watery, peeps through and we harbor thoughts of spring, our neighbors not too far to the east are still harboring two or three feet of snow in their yards.

Take Estevan. Now there's a place some proud Saskatchewan folk will tell you is on the "banana belt of the Prairies."

But Joseph Hill doesn't believe it and neither does his daughter Vera.

And Joe should know because he has farmed near there since the turn of the century and has been escaping the snow by wintering in Victoria for more than 40 years, the last 34 of them in a row.

"They say it's mild back home but it's often around minus 15 to minus 20 and it can get down to 45 below in a severe winter," says Vera Hill.

And so, rather than stay around and risk getting caught in a severe one, Joe Hill started coming west for the winters, at first with his wife Caroline and after she died with his daughter, in 1928. He has been in Victoria each winter since 1945 but every March 1 packs up and heads back to the farm.

"For many years we stayed at the Douglas Hotel and at that time there were 30 or 40 people who came out from the Prairies each winter," says Vera. "It was like a big happy family."

Last winter and again this time the Hills have stayed at the Yates Hotel, though Vera says they miss the crowd that used to come to the Douglas.

"Of course, they didn't all live as long as my Dad," she adds.

She's right. For Joe Hill is 100. He was born on Nov. 19, 1878, at historic old Moortown Farm in the village of Knowstone in North Devon.

"That was Lorna Doone country," he relates as he sits in his hotel room reminiscing about his school days and the time he sold his prized Exmoor pony so he'd have enough money to come to Canada.

That was 1898. He'd decided he wanted to homestead and found his ideal piece of land in Canada but right near the border with the U.S. close to the twin towns of Portal in North Dakota and North Portal in Saskatchewan.

"Our town was in Ripley's Believe It Or Not because at one time it had the only international golf course in the world," says Vera. "On the first hole you teed off in North Dakota and sank your putt in Saskatchewan!"

That feat was less tricky, though, than Joe Hill getting his permit to homestead. When he got to the land registry office he was told that, at 19, he was too young.

"But the man there said he'd see I got that land when I was 21," Joe says. "And on my birthday there I was on the doorstep of the registry office and I was the proud owner of a quarter section."

Those first 160 acres have been added to over the years and today the Hill farm has 800 acres of cultivated land and 400 acres of pasture where shorthorn cattle and Yorkshire pigs are raised. But Joe is still on the same spot that he first chose to homestead.

He has worked hard all his life, says his daughter, remembering how they had to depend on horses for power.

"We had to raise our own colts and break them in so we'd have good harness horses," she says. "And there's more work to that than tractors."

Even today Joe finds it hard to give up work and when it's fine you'll find him out there in the garden, though Vera says his eyesight is failing and she fears he whips out more carrots than weeds.

But why all these years has this hardy farmer made the trek — at first by train, then by bus and more recently by plane — to Victoria each winter and back each spring? Why not just retire here like so many do?

The answer is simple.

"He just likes being around the farm in the summertime," Vera says. "We don't care for the city in the summer. On the farm there are lots of lovely trees and Dad likes to sit in the sun."

"Besides, you can't keep me away from the pigpen when the pigs are making money," Joe adds with a chuckle.

And will he keep on coming west?

"Well, I'm a little over 100, you know," he says. "And I can't expect to be tramping up and down the old railway or the flying field forever . . .

". . . But, yes I'll be back next winter, God willing."

HOLMES TO HEAD HEART CAMPAIGN

George F. Holmes has been named local chairman of the B.C. Heart Foundation's fund campaign in February.

In announcing the 14-day residential canvass Feb. 14-28, the B.C. Telephone customer service manager for Vancouver Island said the Greater Victoria target is $200,000.

"Heart disease affects one out of four of the adult population and we need continuing support for education and research programs," he said.

Some 1,500 volunteers, some making it a family affair, will canvass the city in their available time during the two-week drive.

The foundation has set a V.I. objective of $250,000. The provincial target is $1.35 million.

Last year in Victoria alone, the foundation said, cardiovascular disease caused 719 deaths. Provincially, strokes and heart disease claimed 43 per cent of all deaths.

More than $700,000 was allotted to B.C. heart research in 1978, and this year the commitment is raised to $1.17 million, some of which will go to Royal Jubilee Hospital where research is being done by Dr. Richard T. Brownlee.

Red Tape Snarling Child Tax Credits

OTTAWA (CP) — Confessing that red tape has muddled its new child tax credit program, the revenue department issued instructions for applicants Friday.

Those eligible for the tax credit are usually mothers and in some cases, fathers with legal custody of the children.

The maximum credit of $200 a child is available if both parents' income does not exceed $18,000. The credit decreases gradually as family income rises above that level.

Here is what you need to apply: a social insurance number, a schedule 10 child tax credit application form, an income tax return and a copy of information slip TFAI stating family allowance paid to you. All of these papers must be submitted together to the taxation department or your application will not be processed.

The application form and the TFAI information slip were enclosed with your January family allowance cheque.

If you are working, you should receive an income tax return in the mail from the tax department.

If you are not working outside your home, you will soon get a package containing the tax return, the application form and instructions on what to do.

Even if you do not work and have no taxable income from any source, you must submit the income tax return. This is because the scheme provides a tax credit for applicants with taxable income and a rebate cheque for applicants without taxable income.

If you are a non-working mother whose husband works, make sure you apply for yourself. If your husband claims the credit on his tax return, it will be rejected. The credit is meant for mothers except in exceptional cases.

If you do not have a social insurance number, apply for one.

You must enter your own social insurance number on the tax return. Applications for social insurance numbers are available at post offices and Canada employment centres — sometimes called unemployment insurance or manpower centres.

The fastest method of getting a number is to go in person to an employment center with required documents—a birth or baptismal certificate and secondary identification such as a driver's licence.

If you have lost or thrown away some or all of the forms, you can get them at government offices. Post offices and district taxation offices have income tax returns. Taxation offices and regional family allowance offices have child tax credit application forms.

Convict Wins Skin Frisk Protest

OTTAWA (CP) — The Federal Court of Canada Friday ordered the Canadian Corrections Service to stop skin frisks of prisoner Conrad Gunn unless it has reasonable grounds to believe he is carrying contraband.

The injunction will be in force until the merits of Gunn's case against such body searches are decided by the court.

The case arises from an incident last Nov. 10 at Matsqui, a medium-security federal prison in British Columbia, where Gunn was ordered to strip, spread his legs and bend over so a guard could examine him.

The guard told him that Matsqui director Nicolas Caros had ordered skin frisks of all prisoners entering or leaving Matsqui.

Nuclear Critic Quits 'Derelict' Committee

TORONTO (CP) — David Brooks resigned Friday from his position on the federal government's Committee on Nuclear Issues, accusing the committee of dereliction of responsibility.

"I just got fed up," he said in an interview. "They (other members) weren't doing anything. My presence was legitimizing something that was no longer worth it."

Brooks, former director of the government's energy conservation office and current head of Energy Probe's Ottawa office, was the only known critic of government nuclear policies on the committee.

Organized by the Science Council of Canada and the Royal Society of Canada with $200,000 in government funds, the committee was established to set up nuclear information programs in various communities.

Meanwhile, Gordon Edwards, a spokesman for the Canadian Coalition for Nuclear Responsibility, has threatened to resign as a panelist at a three-day committee-organized conference to be held in Vancouver next month.

Earlier this week, Edwards told the committee he would resign unless there is some balance between the nuclear critics and what he says is a pro-nuclear slate of participants.

Chinese Expect Prosperity As Year of the Ram Begins

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

Midnight tonight marks the start of the Chinese Year of the Ram or the year 4677 by the Chinese calendar.

For members of Victoria's Chinese community, most of whom came from around Canton in southern China, it's a year of special significance because the outlook is for a year of prosperity.

That's what the ancient gods told the Cantonese when they rode through the city on five celestial rams many years ago.

They decreed that famine would never befall its inhabitants and the city would prosper.

Before returning to their heavenly abode, the rams were turned into stone. To this day they can be seen in Canton, which became known throughout China as the City of Rams.

The gods by their act also inadvertently set a clothing style that has lasted through the ages — coats made of sheepskins became a status symbol.

So much for the gods.

The celebrations starting tonight will last for 15 days, ending with a Chinese lion dance parade in Chinatown on Feb. 11 starting at 1 p.m.

It will include a Kung Fu or martial arts display staged by the Victoria Sheng Wong Kung Fu Club.

There will also be fireworks to drive away the evil spirits.

Other events will include New Year's Day visits by members of the Victoria Chinatown Lions Club to hospitals. They will present patients with envelopes containing lucky coins and fruits, candy and pastry.

But according to Bessie Tang, an authority on ancient Chinese customs, the Chinese New Year is mainly for family affairs.

It's a time for visiting and exchanging traditional greetings.

In Hong Kong, some businesses display murals of grazing goats and others show curly-horned rams and many residents are debating whether the eighth animal in the Chinese lunar calendar is a ram or a goat.

Some say the single Chinese character for the goat — yang — is the same as for the ram.

Regardless of the animal, the immigration department in Hong Kong says about 280,000 residents will travel to China for the holiday and 60,000 will journey overseas.

The Hong Kong tourist Association has not allowed the dispute to get its goat, either. It says today will usher in the year of the ram — a period of "innovation, fun, drama and some eccentricity."

College Did Not Admit Liability

VANCOUVER (CP) — A spokesman for Northwest Community College in Terrace says that the British Columbia Supreme Court dismissed a law suit against the college brought by a man who was injured after tripping over a rug.

The Canadian Press distributed an erroneous report Wednesday that the college admitted liability in the case.

A spokesman for the Insurance Corp. of B.C. said Friday in Vancouver that the provincial government was the only party to admit liability in the case.

Mr. Justice Lloyd McKenzie awarded Joseph Beauchamp, 55, of Kitimat, $67,000 for loss of future earnings, lost wages and loss of enjoyment of life. Beauchamp permanently injured his shoulder after he tripped over a rolled-up rug inside a door at the college.

The injury forced Beauchamp to leave his job as a pipefitter's helper in the north coast community.

PLANE CRASH KILLS W. VAN MAN

William Barrett Davie, 45, of West Vancouver was killed Friday in the crash of a Cessna 185 float plane near Kelsey Bay, RCMP at Alert Bay said today.

The pilot, Peter Bain, 26, of Campbell River is in stable condition in Vancouver General Hospital with undetermined injuries.

A spokesman for the Pacific Rescue Centre in Victoria said the plane left Campbell River at 8:30 a.m. for a 45-minute flight to Minstrel Island.

The crash occurred about 9 a.m. on Cracroft Island near the northern entrance to Johnstone Strait.

A search was mounted and the crew of a Buffalo aircraft from CFB Comox picked up a signal from the plane's emergency location transmitter and sighted the wreckage at 2:35 p.m.

Lockerby Serves Warning of Power

By JIM CREAR
Times Staff

Basketball fans in Victoria should know by now that Sudbury, Ont., produces its share of winners.

Ken Shields, for example, honed his coaching talents at Sudbury's Laurentian University before moving here three years ago to guide the first-place UVic Vikings.

And Vikings' leading scorer, Reni Dolcetti, is a product of St. Charles high school in Sudbury.

Even so, it came as a bit of a shock Friday when one of St. Charles' rivals from the nickel belt, Lockerby Vikings, ran through B.C.'s seventh-ranked high school team, Richmond Colts, in the opening game of the third annual Oakleaf Classic at Oak Bay senior secondary. The score was 88-58.

The tournament continues at Oak Bay today with Richmond meeting Mt. Douglas Rams at 3 p.m. and Nanaimo Islanders playing Viscount Bennett of Calgary at 5 in the losers' bracket. Lockerby meets Vancouver College at 7 p.m. while host Oak Bay Bays take on Ottawa Brookfield at 9 on the winners' side.

Competition winds up Sunday at the McKinnon Gym with four more games beginning at 9 a.m. The championship final is at 3 p.m.

Only host Oak Bay kept visiting teams from having their own way in tournament openers.

Oak Bay saved grace in the last game on the program with a 64-60 victory over Viscount Bennett, but the Bays came close to blowing it. They were ahead 42-20 at half time. The game was 15 minutes late starting because the Calgary team was delayed by weather at the Vancouver airport.

Earlier, Vancouver College breezed by Mt. Doug 71-42 and Brookfield took care of Nanaimo 84-62.

Vancouver College only had a three-point lead, 21-18, over Mt. Doug at the half but ran away with things after the break. Frank Schober scored 22 points and Steve Raverty 19 for College while Jay Loukes and Russ Mosher were the best of the Rams, each with 14.

Loukes was injured in the third quarter and forced to leave the game. He suffered facial lacerations and a possible concussion.

Brookfield, mainly a team of 19-year olds and ranked fifth in Ontario, simply had too much power for the Islanders, last year's B.C. provincial champions. Errool Nelson was practically unstoppable as he poured in 35 points while Bruce Pringle had 14, Pat Archibald 13 and Doug Nelson 12.

Nanaimo, which has lost nine members of its championship club, were paced by Mike Davidson with 22.

Lockerby is a tournament-wise team. This is the fourth one this season for the Vikings and they're gunning for their fourth title. They already have the silverware tucked away from a competition in Blind River, Ont., and the Laurentian and North Star invitationals in Sudbury.

They're also ranked fourth among Ontario high schools with a record of 16-1, their only loss coming in overtime to a senior "A" club.

As you might suspect, Lockerby has to hit the road to find worthy opponents.

"Nobody in the city has come within 40 points of us this year," coach Bill Morse explained.

Lockerby's big weapon Friday was hustle. Not a particularly big team — Frank Nalale at 6'4" is their tallest player — the Vikings were simply too fast for Richmond.

The scoresheet reflected good balance, too. Illario Pasquale and Bob Tassone had 16 points each, Doug Church added 12 and Mike Sheridan 10. Al Tait led Richmond with 28 points while Glen McClary scored 10.

OAK BAY (64) — Randy Hess 6, Charles Wuester 4, Julian Boissier 9, Cliff Reece 3, John Hewer 18, Wayne Andrews 24.

Late Tally High On Bad-Luck List

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

SEATTLE — Victories continue to elude Victoria Cougars, but it isn't because the slumping Western Hockey League team is short of determination, or good technical performances.

The injury-riddled Cougars showed both determination and excellent performance on the ice Friday, but had to settle for a 3-3 tie with the Seattle Breakers.

They deserved a better fate.

Going with only three defencemen, the Cougars could be deemed victims of "bad breaks".

The most obvious misfortune from a Victoria standpoint, was winger Anthony Thomas' second goal of the game. It came with 43 seconds remaining and enabled Seattle to salvage the draw.

As Victoria coach Jack Shupe sees it, Cougars biggest "misfortune" was referee Bob Hall.

Shupe was incensed over Hall's reluctance to give Seattle defenceman Ryan Hadfield a major penalty at the 15:03 mark of the final period. The Cougars led 3-2 at the time, were skating and in complete control. A five-minute penalty to Seattle at that time would have meant the Breakers would have finished the game without one skater.

The scuffle started when Victoria winger Greg Adams skated into Ken Hodge after the Seattle goalie had wandered out of his crease. That brought Hadfield around and he started throwing punches. Adams covered up, absorbed at least 12 to 15 blows for about 15 seconds without retaliating.

After it was over, Hall assessed Hadfield with two minutes for charging and two minutes for roughing. Adams also drew a double minor — for cross checking and "roughing".

As I saw it, the two minors against Adams were very borderline, and Hall's reluctance to tag Hadfield with a major penalty was a travesty of justice.

The seething Shupe saw it as "a gutless call".

"With less than five minutes to play," said Shupe, "Hall was not going to give the home team any five-minute penalty."

Hall, said Shupe, told the Victoria coach he did not see any punches thrown. If that was the case, he was the only one in the building who didn't.

Mark Robinson, who scored two of the Victoria goals, and Tony Feltrin and Ryan McAdams turned in outstanding performances to handle Cougar defensive chores. Goaltender Steve Amiss played extremely well and Victoria forwards were all in good form to give the Cougars a solid team effort.

Praise and the tie wasn't much of a consolation, however, as the Cougars continue to seek ways out of a slump that has seen them win only one of their last 10 games.

They'll try again tonight in Victoria's Memorial Arena against the West Division-leading Portland Winter Hawks.

Shupe doubts if any of the five injured regulars — George Fritz, Scott Lang, Robert Jacobson, Bob Smith and Todd Morton — will be ready. The only possibles are Lang, being treated for a back injury, and Jacobson, out with a wrist sprain.

"Our next game won't be until Wednesday," said Shupe, "and unless they are 100 percent, I'm not going to risk any more injuries."

Oldtimers Strut Stuff; All Finals at Memorial

East Kootenay and Spokane loomed as the power of "A" Division as the Western Canada Oldtimers Huff and Puff Hockey Tournament with 68 teams entered got under way all over town on Friday.

East Kootenay defeated Drumheller 4-0 at Oak Bay Arena while Spokane edged Medicine Hat 6-4 before about 400 fans at Memorial Arena in the most disciplined action.

Key games tonight are the "A" Division clashes between Drumheller and Medicine Hat at Juan de Fuca and Spokane and East Kootenay at Pearkes Arena. Both games are at 9:30 p.m.

In "B" Division, Nanaimo, generally rated the top B.C. club in the competition, tied 2-2 with Red Deer while Peace River defeated Calgary 3-1 in the other "B" game.

Nanaimo meets Calgary at the Panorama Arena in Sidney in a crucial "B" Division contest tonight while Red Deer and Peace River meet at the Racquet Club. Both games start at 9:30.

Semi-finals in "F", "E", "C" and "A" Divisions will take place at Memorial Arena starting at 8 a.m. Sunday. Other semi-finals are at other arenas.

All finals are at Memorial starting at 2 p.m., concluding with the "A" Division final at 9:30 p.m.

GRETZKY GETS 'LIFE' WITH EDMONTON CLUB

By Canadian Press

EDMONTON (CP) — "It looks like I'm here for life," remarked the just-turned, 18-year-old rookie centre.

'Life' in this case happens to be a 21-year pact that Wayne Gretzky signed Friday with Edmonton Oilers of the World Hockey Association.

Oilers' owner Peter Pocklington celebrated his star rookie's birthday Friday by announcing before Edmonton's game against Cincinnati Stingers a 14-year extension to a contract Gretzky had signed earlier with Nelson Skalbania of the now-defunct Indianaplois Racers.

The contract runs to 1999 and is reported to be worth $5 million, though terms were not disclosed.

However, the news and little ceremony prior to the game failed to impress the Stingers who beat the Oilers 5-2 in one of two WHA games. Birmingham Bulls edged New England Whalers 5-4 in the other game.

"I've been in four different cities in the last three years and I didn't see any sense in leaving Edmonton," Gretzky explained when asked about the length of the agreement.

"It (Edmonton) reminds me a lot of Toronto, in that there seems to be hockey fever everywhere with minor hockey programs and kids playing the game, even on the road."

Cincinnati's Robbie Ftorek led the Stinger attack with three goals to give him 26 on the season. Reg Thomas and Rick Dudley scored the other Cincinnati goals.

Edmonton got goals from Blair MacDonald and Dave Langevin.

Ftorek, who also happened to be at the game in which Gordie Howe celebrated his 50th birthday last year, was more impressed by the ceremony for Gretzky than his three goals.

"I thought the ceremony had a lot of class," the Cincinnati centre said. "They could've dragged it out, but it was short and sweet and I know myself, I was proud to be there for the occasion."

Pocklington was enthusiastic about the signing.

"Wayne Gretzky is the greatest young player in the world right now," he said. "One day, he'll likely be the oldest. Edmonton fans deserve the best and in Wayne Gretzky I feel that's what they're getting."

Bullets Score, Kings Get More

By The Associated Press

After you score 128 points and lose by 14, after three players combine for 105 points against your team, after two of your most potent weapons are held to a combined 20 points, you say things like:

"They cause us problems."

"The only way to beat them is to outscore them."

"We didn't play good enough defence to win this game."

Those gems of wisdom came from Washington Bullets coach Dick Motta after his team had dropped a 142-128 National Basketball Association decision Friday night to Kansas City Kings in a battle of divisional leaders.

The NBA schedule Friday night also matched the other two division leaders. San Antonio Spurs, on top of the Central Division, whipped the Pacific Divison-leading Seattle SuperSonics 125-108.

Elsewhere, New Jersey Nets topped New Orleans Jazz 110-104, Indiana Pacers downed Boston Celtics 119-106, San Diego Clippers defeated Chicago Bulls 107-91, Denver Nuggets beat Los Angeles Lakers 119-107, Phoenix Suns edged New York Knicks 108-107 and Philadelphia '76ers dumped Golden State Warriors 105-96.

Otis Birdsong scored 39 points and Phil Ford and Scott Wedman each had 33 as the Kings, leaders in the Midwest Division, rolled up their biggest point total since Jan. 5, 1971, when the franchise was in Cincinnati.

San Antonio never trailed in beating Seattle behind George Gervin's 34 points. James Silas and Larry Kenon each added 20 points for San Antonio, and centre Billy Paultz scored 18. Seattle closed to within two points midway in the third period, but the Spurs rallied to lead by as many as 21 points in the fourth quarter.

Rookies Lift Canucks

Times News Services

Rookies Thomas Gradin and Stan Smyl provided the offensive punch Friday night as Vancouver Canucks ended a five-game National Hockey League winless streak with a 4-1 victory over St. Louis Blues.

Gradin, the 22-year-old centremen from Sweden, scored the winning goal on a deflection late in the second period and also added two assists as the Canucks continued their mastery over Smythe Division opponents.

Victory was the ninth in 14 meetings with divison opponents, and lifted Vancouver to within two points of Chicago Black Hawks, who blanked the Canucks 5-0 Wednesday night. The Hawks have three gmaes in hand on Vancouver.

In the other game Friday, Atlanta Flames broke a six-game Toronto winning streak, defeating the Leafs 4-2 in Atlanta.

Ron Sedlbauer and Jere Gillis also scored for the Canucks, while Inge Hammarstrom connected for his third goal of the season for the Blues, the worst team in the league.

Vancouver was missing several key players with injuries, including veteran centremen Pit Martin and Don Lever and defenceman Jack McIllhargey, but got some inspired play from several youngsters brought up from Dallas of the Central Hockey League.

Sedlbauer, playing at centre for the first time in his NHL career, opened the scoring in the first period on a power play, taking a perfect pass from Gradin in the slot and firing a quick wrist shot past Phil Myre's glove hand.

Hammarstrom beat Vancouver goalie Glen Hanlon with a slapshot from the top of the face-off circle early in the second period, but Gradin restored the one-goal lead at 19:15, deflecting in Gassoff's shot from the slot.

Smyl, the pugnacious right winger, outmuscled St. Louis defenceman Barry Gibbs for the puck behind the net and got the puck to Gassoff, whose backhander went off Gradin's stick for his 14th goal.

Gillis, with his ninth goal of the season, and Smyl, with his seventh, beat Myre with long slap shots in the final period.

It was the first goal as a professional at the Pacific Coliseum for Smyl, who played several games here while a junior with New Westminster Bruins.

In Atlanta, Red Laurence scored midway through the third period to break a 2-2 tie and the Flames went on to defeat Toronto.

DAVE PARKER ENTERS RICE AND ROSE REALM

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Dave Parker has entered baseball's big money realm of Rice and Rose, and now Pittsburgh Pirates await production to match his paycheques.

"I have big plans for the coming season," Parker said Friday afer announcing he had agreed to a five-year pact. "I'd like to win the triple crown and possibly play in the World Series."

Terms weren't disclosed, but it is estimated the total package is worth $4 million to $5 million.

"It's not a policy for us to let that be known, but I'm very content," said the 27-year-old Parker, winner of two conseccutive National League batting titles and the league's most-valuable-player last season.

The six-foot-five, 230-pound right fielder had said he wanted a contract that ranked with the best.

That included the reported $5.4-million, seven-year pact the Boston Red Sox signed this month with Jim Rice and Pete Rose's reported $3.2-million, four-year contract with Philadelphia.

"We won't announce specific terms," said club president Dan Galbreath. "We are not headline seekers."

Nonetheless, there's no doubt the Pirates expect big things from Parker in their bid to regain the National League East title and revive attendance.

"I honestly believe he is the best all-around player in the game today," said Galbreath.

Parker had one year left on a contract that paid $225,000 yearly. The new pact takes effect immediately.

Parker had said that if no agreement was reached by Feb. 1, he would play next season with Pittsburgh and enter the free-agent market.

Roscoe Tanner Trips McEnroe

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Top-seeded Jimmy Connors easily stroked through Geoff Masters of Australia 6-3, 6-3, and ninth-seeded Roscoe Tanner upset third-seeded John McEnroe 7-6, 6-2 Friday night in the quarter-final round of $250,000 United States pro indoor tennis championships.

That set up a semi-final round match today between last year's finalists in the Philadelphia tournament.

Connors, 26, beat Tanner here in 1978 for the $40,000 first prize.

Tanner won a tie-breaker to take the first set from the favored McEnroe, then broke through the brash young player's service in the second game of the second set and held service to run out his victory.

Tanner, 27, won the tie-breaker 7-3, his winning point coming on a backhand passing shot in a volley following his serve.

Vikings Romp Past Huskies; Vikettes Fall

SASKATOON — University of Victoria Vikings had no trouble in consolidating their hold on first place in the Canada West University Athletic Association men's basketball league Friday night as they cruised to a 114-68 victory over the Saskatchewan Huskies.

The Vikettes weren't as fortunate, however, losing an overtime duel to the Huskiettes 64-62.

It was the 10th victory in 11 starts for the Vikings. The Huskies are mired deep in the league basement with a 1-10 record. For the Vikettes, their record now is 9-4 while the Huskiettes are 7-6.

Reni Dolcetti paced the Vikings with 20 points while Chris Hebb, Ted Anderson and Robbie Parris each scored 16. Vikings led 58-40 at the half.

Bruce Hamilton scored 29 points for the Huskies and Clair Campbell was next in line with 12.

Gerald Kazanowski had eight rebounds to lead the Vikings in that department.

Luanne Hebb was outstanding for the Vikettes with 27 points while clubmate Susan Shaw had 14.

The Huskiettes led 30-25 at halftime and Victoria fought back to earn a 56-56 tie at the end of regulation time.

Nancy Brentnall paced the Huskiettes with 28 points while Sheila Brennan added 21.

Scott Stevenson scored 20 points to lead Calgary Dinosaurs to a 68-63 win over UBC Thunderbirds at Vancouver.

Geoff Thompson added 10 points for the winners who led 34-30 at halftime. Ian MacKinnon scored 17 points and Bob Forsyth added 14 for UBC.

Calgary Dinnies shot only 22 per cent from the field but managed to take enough shots to defeat the Thunderettes 66-40.

The win was the 12th in 13 games for the Dinnies, the top-ranked collegiate team in Canada, while the Thunderettes lost their 13th consecutive game.

Laura Buehning and Holly Jackson each scored 18 points for Calgary.

Margo McCullough led UBC with 16 points.

Skillings Squad Lone South Island Winner

LAKE COWICHAN — The Steve Skillings rink from Victoria Curling Club was the only winner from the South Island in the first round of the Vancpuver Island men's Consols curling playoff here Friday night.

Skillings defeated Steve Williams of Duncan in a battle between the two youngest rinks in the eight-rink competition, 8-5.

Bob Gallaugher of Playland lost an extra-end battle to Ivan Carlisle of Port Alberni 7-6, Keith Dagg of Victoria Club gave up six points in the last three ends as veteran Glen Harper of Duncan scored a 9-6 victory and Jack Anderson of Juan de Fuca went down to George Ziolkowski of Campbell River, 7-5.

Skillings scored a big three in the ninth with an inturn double against Williams after Williams had made a similar clutch double with his final stone to force Skillings to make the key shot.

On the eighth end, Williams asked for a hog-line judge but no infraction was called.

Carlisle scored three in the 10th end on a last-rock takeout to get even with Gallaugher who had led all the way. Carlisle then stole a single on the extra end for the victory.

Dagg led Harper 6-3 after seven ends, but Harper, who twice has been to the Brier, rallied with two on the eighth, stole a pair on the ninth and won the game when Dagg was light with an attempted draw to the button on last rock in the 10th.

Key end for Ziolkowski was the sixth when he scored three to take a 5-3 lead over Anderson in a tight, well-played match.

Anderson came back with a single on the seventh and then stole a single on the eighth to tie the score. Ziolkowski got a pair on the ninth and ran Anderson out of rocks on the 10th

Skillings met Carlisle and Harper met Ziolkowski in today's "A" event semi-finals at 2 p.m. In other games, Williams was against Gallaugher and Anderson against Dagg.

The "A" final for one of the Island berths will be played at 8 p.m. tonight.

Play was delayed for about 90 minutes due to a power failure about an hour after the start and with the games mostly in the fourth end.

An emergency hydro crew was called from Duncan and power was restored soon after its arrival. It is believed a blown fuse caused the outage.

Curlers said the ice was not seriously affected and the temperature drop was only half a degree. Play did not finish until about 1 a.m.

Two rinks will qualify from the Island final for the Pacific Coast Curling Association playoffs in Duncan, Feb. 2-4.

Dave Lopes Signs Five-Year Contract

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dave Lopes, Los Angeles Dodgers' second baseman and team captain, has signed a five-year contract with the National League baseball team. Lopes, 32, was already signed for the 1979 season, and his new contract runs through 1984.

It's My Turn, Says Jerry After Five-Under-Par 67

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Jerry McGee has restructured his golfing philosophy.

"I want to win," said McGee, the second-round leader in the $250,000 Andy Williams-San Diego Open golf tournament.

"I have the talent, the desire, everything that is needed to win. Maybe my goals have not been as high as they should have been."

So McGee, who fired a five-under-par 67 Friday, is changing things.

"All my life I've wanted to be a consistent player," he said. "I think I've achieved that. I am a consistent player. But I'm not a winner."

He has won only twice in his 13 years of tour activity, but has been a consistent money-winner, averaging more than $100,000 a year for the last four seasons.

"Now my goals are set a lot higher," McGee said. "I want to win.

"I'm in position to win this golf tournament. That's the only thing that's on my mind. I may have been too complacent, let myself get too lackadaisical before.

"If I can get geared to make the cuts, make the money, then I can get geared to win a golf tournament.

"This week it's my turn. I feel it's my turn to win. And I'm gonna win the golf tournament."

McGee, whose short game has been the bane of his golfing life, had a phenomenal day around the greens in his second-round effort that gave him a 138 total, six shots under par, and a one-stroke lead over first-round leader Tommy Aaron.

"That's the best chipping I've done in my life," said McGee, who missed seven greens, most of them after his approaches hit on, then skipped over, the hard putting surfaces. He saved par on all of them, five times chipping to within tap-in distance and holing putts of four and six feet on the other two.

That performance forced the veteran Aaron to birdie three of his last four holes to finish with a 70 and stay within a stroke of the top.

Bill Kratzert and Gil Morgan, the No. 2 money-winner last season, were another two shots back at 141. Kratzert shot a 68 in the bright, sunny weather and Morgan had a 67.

Jerry Pate, Jim Colbert and Grier Jones followed at 142. Colbert had a 67, Pate 70 and Jones a 71.

Dave Barr of Kelowna, B.C., qualified for the final two rounds after shooting a 74 Friday for a 149 total.

Jim Nelford of Burnaby, B.C., missed the cut with an 80 for a 157 total.

CHOICE OF TIRES LEADS TO UPSET

MONTE CARLO (Reuter) — Frenchman Bernard Darniche, driving a Lancia, put in a stinging performance in the final mountain stage to score an upset win in the 47th Monte Carlo Rally early Friday.

Darniche, in sixth place Thursday, six minutes 27 seconds behind Bjorn Waldegaard in a Ford Escort, won all 10 of the special timed tests overnight to beat the Swede by just six seconds.

Rally veterans said the performance of Darniche and co-driver Alain Mahe was unprecedented.

The event was won and lost in the team's choice of tires for the final stage, run in icy conditions in the French Alps.

Earlier stages of the rally were dominated by a duel between the Escort's of Waldegaard and Finland's Markku Alen, but Alen lost all chance of victory when he was booked by French police on Wednesday night for dangerous driving, and incurred a five-minute penalty.

Waldegaard, with a lead of more than four minutes over his nearest rival, looked odds-on favorite to win his third Monte Carlo rally.

Calculator
Making The Metric System Simple

Metric/Imperial System Conversion Calculator

The Canon Card FC-52 is the perfect convenience accessory in today's international community. With the touch of a button, measurements are instantly and effortlessly converted from the American and British systems to the international metric system. With the same ease, metric measurements can be converted to their American and British equivalents. There are no formulas or equations to memorize — the Card FC-52 does all the work for you and will handle 28 different measurement conversions.

Capable Calculator Functions

The FC-52 has complete calculator functions as well. There is a full 8 digit capacity, an independent memory and keys to handle percentages, add-on/discount figures and sign changes. The square keys are well spaced and have a solid feel to them, to give you positive assurance that each entry is registered.

Thin 3.5mm Body

Liquid crystal display, C-MOS-LSI circuitry and a coin-type lithium battery which provides about 3,000 hours of operation are combined to make a remarkably thin electronic calculator. Though packed with metric conversion and calculation functions, the Card FC-52 is trim enough to be tucked into a shirt pocket or purse.

Instant Metric Conversions

The FC-52 will instantly convert inches, square inches, cubic inches, feet, square feet, cubic feet, miles, ounces, pounds, U.S. fluid ounces, U.S. gallons, British fluid ounces and British gallons to or from their metric equivalents. The Card FC-52 will also convert Fahrenheit temperatures to or from centigrade temperatures. Simply indicate the units to be converted and the direction of conversion and the FC-52 will give you the accurate results immediately. As a further convenience, you can carry out routine calculations in one measurement system and convert the results as a part of the process.

Read Places 13th

GARMISCH-PARTENKIRCHEN (Reuter) — Austrian Peter Wirnsberger won a men's World Cup downhill ski race today, clipping more than five seconds off the course record at this West German resort.

Wirnsberger skied down the icy 3,320-metre course in one minute 57.44 seconds to record his first big World Cup success. His time was well below the former record of 2:02.63 held by Olympic gold-medallist Franz Klammer of Austria.

Uli Spiess took second place for Austria in 1:57.82 and pre-race favorite Herbert Plank of Italy came third in 1:57.85.

Canada's top performer was Ken Read of Calgary who finished 13th. Read covered the course in 1:58.83.

Dave Murray of Abbotsford was disqualified after he and team-mate Steve Podborski of Toronto swapped their starting positions, apparently by mistake.

Podborski fell on the top section of the course but escaped injury.

'Ski Comet' Proud

MELLAU, Austria (AP) — Teen-age newcomer Maria Rosa Quario of Italy edged veteran Annemarie Moser-Proell of Austria in a World Cup ski slalom today.

Quario's victory was the first by an Italian girl in two years. Claudia Giordani was the last winner at Maribor, Yugoslavia, in 1977.

Moser-Proell boosted her leading World Cup total to 196 points.

The second place in the slalom here was Moser-Proell's best result in that type of race this season. Her specialty is the downhill and she won five such races in a row this season.

The 17-year-old Quario came out like a ski comet this season.

"I am madly happy," she said, "I did not expect this victory at all. I am proud, though, that we Italian girls are so strong this season."

Third-placed Perrine Pelen of France, a slalom artist, conceded the superiority of the two other girls in the Mellau slalom.

Quario had runs of 44.60 and 43.39 seconds for a total of 1:27.99, Moser-Proell had runs of 45.37, 43.08 for 1:28.45, Pelen had 45.26, 43.75 for 1:29.

Panthers Rally To Reach Final

COURTENAY — Two Vancouver Island teams will meet in the final of the annual Georges Vanier Towhees' invitational high school boys' basketball tournament tonight.

Parkland Panthers of Victoria came from behind to defeat Burnaby North Vikings 69-66 in one semi-final Friday while the Towhees defeated Princess Margaret Lions of Langley 88-55 in the other game.

Greg Wiltjer scored 26 points for Parkland, including the winning basket in the final minute. Quinn Groenheyde had 17 points and scored the final basket at the buzzer.

Bob Hoepner scored 22 points for the Towhees.

Cowichan Thunderbirds cruised to a 112-70 victory over Campbell River Tyees in consolation play as Gary Stockford scored 34 points. Lord Byng of Vancouver defeated Semiahmoo of White Rock 48-40.

Western Included In 'Speed' Series

Three sites — including Western Speedway — will combine to stage the "Speed Week Northwest" series July 13-22.

The series, announced Friday by Western Speedway manager Tony Mortel, is designed to replace the International Drivers Challenge series. It starts off with two days at Skagit Speedway near Mount Vernon, Wash., then swings to Western for two days and finishes off with two more at Evergreen Speedway in Monroe, Wash.

Mortel also announced a new class of racing this season at Western.

The jalopy class will be aimed at youths and involve cars with an average cost of $350 "to provide a constant supply of drivers willing to move up the racing ladder."

A registration day for the new class will be held at 1 p.m. Feb. 3 at the Ingraham Hotel. Rules will be available and registration with be $5 for crew and car.

—All Three Bids for Winter Games Rejected

The provincial government has rejected all three bids for the 1981 British Columbia winter games, games chairman Ron Butlin has announced.

The bids were received from Prince George, Trail and Kimberley.

Butlin said that because the 1980 winter games were awarded to Kimberley it no longer qualifies for 1981 and Trail is too close to Kimberley. The Prince George bid did not meet all standards.

Butlin said bids for the 1981 winter games will be called again, likely in a few weeks.

CHURCH CHRONICLES

Bible to be shared

The Inter-Faith Committee of the Greater Victoria Council of Churches invites representatives from all congregations, especially from bible groups, to meet in the lounge of First United Church, Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. Rev. H. Gordon Walker will introduce the subject and act as chairman.

The committee wants participants to share Bible experiences, so we may learn from one another. Tell us what your church has done and is doing. How do you use and celebrate the Bible? What are goals for Bible study? How may one organize and conduct Bible groups? What methods are available? What does one do about leadership?

It expects some people will be looking for guidance on how to get a Bible group going in their church. The meeting on Tuesday in First United lounge (932 Balmoral) may provide the help they need.

After pooling experiences and dealing with questions the meeting may consider: "Where do we go from here?" It may want to invite other interested persons and meet together for several weekly learning sessions.

●

Dr. Bob Jones chancellor of the world's largest fundamental Christian university, Bob Jones University, Greenville, S.C.—will hold meetings at Berecah Bible church, 4516 West Saanich, Royal Oak, on Feb. 4 and 5 at 7 p.m. according to Pastor Rev. Foy Spivey.

Jones

The meetings will be of particular interest to young people. From his years of conselling and advising with students in America and foreign lands, Jones knows the problems and pitfalls which youth faces today.

In addition being a university administrator, Jones is a successful evangelist, Shakespearean interpreter, Christian motion-picture actor, author, architect, and art connoisseur.

Bob Jones University stands without apology for old-time religion and the absolute authority of the Bible. Each year more than 5,700 students are enrolled from every state in the union and about 30 foreign countries and territories.

Becarah Bible Church is a relatively new independent congregation, Baptistic in doctrine and has a congregation of 25 to 30 people. Services are at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. Sundays, with Sunday School at 10 a.m.

●

Rev. and Mrs. Carl Klassen will be commissioned for missionary service with the Hawaiian Island mission on Sunday at 6 p.m. This will be held at Parkdale Evangelical Free Church, Tolmie and Jackson.

The Klassens, much beloved in the Victoria area after 10 years pastorship at Parkdale, will be leaving for their new ministry shortly accompanied by their youngest son, Terry. Their many friends at Parkdale and throughout Victoria unite to wish them God's blessing.

Tanner

●

Two prominent members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, the Mormons, will be interviewed on Channel 8's program W5 at 10 p.m. on Sunday. As special guests they will be talking with Donny and Marie Osmond.

Nathan Eldon Tanner is First Councillor in the First Presidency of the Church. Before moving to Salt Lake City he lived in Alberta where he was speaker of the legislature. He also had been Alberta minister of lands and mines.

Teddy Brewerton, recently sustained as a member of the church's First Quorum of Seventy, is also an Albertan and had operated a pharmacy chain in Calgary. He will be moving to Brazil to direct Mormon church affairs there.

Adventists aid Mexico church

Local Seventh-Day Adventist Church members led by Pastor Lynn Baerg will leave Victoria Tuesday to help build a church in Mexico.

The Victoria group and 13 SDA members from the Lower Mainland will arrive at 2 p.m. Wednesday in Guamu Chil, Mexico, to start two weeks of work on a 200-seat church.

The church building consists of concrete blocks and the group of SDA volunteers from here and all over North America will also construct bench pews, desks and other furniture.

Workers will endure primitive conditions in the field during the construction, sleeping in tents without the modern conveniences taken for granted in North America. However, a trailer van will ensure a good food supply service for the volunteer builders.

The effort is part of an SDA program entitled Marantha Flights International. Under the program, a congregation will request help to build a church or school and SDA workers from churches throughout North America will be flown in to assist in the building. In most cases the work is completed in a matter of days.

Kathleen Piper, communications secretary for the SDA Church in Victoria, says the flight and engagement is no "joy ride."

"Every member of the group, whether they are skilled tradesmen or unskilled helpers, ladies and men, will be pulling their weight in erecting the new church in Mexico," Mrs. Piper said.

Mission accomplished, the group is to return Feb. 16 to Victoria.

This past summer, two Victoria men helped build a church in Whitehorse in the Yukon. A father and son team, Charles and Bradley Brousson, made the trip to Whitehorse and donated their labor under the program's auspices.

Burma haven for Buddhism

By DENIS D. GRAY

PAGAN, Burma (AP) — The fervor for Buddhism is on the wane in most of Southeast Asia, but here in Burma the ancient religion thrives.

Although Burma has one of the world's lowest annual per capita incomes, its Buddhist pagodas glitter with gold, diamonds, rubies, sapphires and other precious ornaments donated by the faithful.

When an earthquake in 1975 toppled the ancient temples of Pagan—one of the world's greatest examples of Buddhist culture—the public rushed to give the equivalent of almost $7 million for the restoration.

More than two metric tons of 18-carat gold plates adorn the dome of Rangoon's Sweddagon Pagoda which soars above the capital city in a country with an $850-million foreign debt and a per-capita income of $135 a year.

On religious holidays, and a good number of days in between, families gather at temple compounds to picnic and pray, often watching traditional plays depicting Buddha's life and moral teachings long into the night.

Despite economic austerity, Burma's 150,000 monks never return with empty begging bowls after their daily rounds to receive food offerings from the laity. A Buddhist proverb goes: "When you cook a pot of rice, the top (the choicest part) goes to the monk."

Buddhism in Burma, a country which has cut itself off from most foreign influences, plays the kind of role it used to enjoy in other corners of Southeast Asia, where in the last few years the religion has suffered some of the worst setbacks in its 2,500-year-old history.

Refugees from Cambodia, where the religion was a cornerstone of life since the 13th century, say a radical Communist regime has suppressed worship. Communist leaders in Vietnam and Laos have clamped controls which some experts say could cause Buddhism to wither, if not die.

In Thailand, there are frequent complaints akin to those heard from staunch Christians in the West that modern ways have sapped religion's strength, with a young generation more interested in discos and movies than going to temples.

Some Thai Buddhist teachers have even said that the future of Buddhism lies in the West where its philosophy and meditation practices have attracted a growing number of disciples.

According to the refugees, victorious Communists in Cambodia turned monasteries into granaries, smashed images for use in road repairs, disrobed and killed monks after seizing power in April, 1975.

Although the constitution allows freedom of religion, official pronouncements do little to discredit the refugee stories.

Cambodian leaders have said that "the people"—85 per cent of whom were Buddhists—had found the religion incompatible with a new revolutionary society. And a clause in the 1976 constitution notes that "reactionary religion destructive of Democratic Kampuchea (Cambodia) and the Cambodian people is absolutely forbidden."

Although a Vietnamese-led insurgency recently ousted the repressive Pol Pot regime, the Vietnamese, too, are generally in opposition to the religion.

Vietnam's attacks on Buddhism appear to arise from fears of potential threats to the state and Communist party rather than opposition to religion itself. Refugees and some foreign visitors to Vietnam say church lands have been confiscated, some monasteries closed and that in some areas worship and the ordination of new monks has been restricted. But in general, individual practice is allowed.

In Laos, news reporters recently saw monks in the streets of Vientiane receiving their morning offerings as before, but Buddhist activities are on a far smaller scale. A senior official told the reporters that the government had no plans to abolish monasteries but that with attempts to build a new society the monks might some day have to "join with the masses to build their country."

The group work ethic espoused by all three Communist Indochinese countries goes against the grain of Buddhism, which lauds individual improvement, a live-and-let-live attitude and prohibits monks from most kinds of labor.

Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos all talk about fashioning the "new man"—whose ideals are selfless work for the state and the masses, total loyalty to the party and rewards in the material world. Monks who beg for food and lay people who meditate and stress spiritual goals could be denounced as "parasites."

Little Buddhist opposition has emerged in Communist Indochina.

There is little tradition of militancy in Buddhism, especially in the Ravada School which has dominated in Laos, Cambodia, Thailand, Burma, Sri Lanka (formerly Ceylon) and in the Mekong Delta of southern Vietnam. Buddhism has no solid international organization and only loosely knit national ones, which in the opinion of some scholars makes it less able to resist attack.

Training openings this fall

The School of Campus Evangelism, which trains young Christians to be ministers to students at universities, vocational schools and youth in general, will have vacancies in some courses for the general public this fall.

The ministry, located in the Church of Christ, 3460 Shelbourne, is now accepting applications from interested university and college students.

In its second year, the object of the school is to place trained campus ministers at every university and vocational school in Western Canada.

Emphasis will be on practical training, with assistance in counselling and personal evangelism.

Ron Surry, pastor at the Church of Christ, said the school term runs from Aug. 14 to 30 and on completion of the program, diplomas will be given and help offered in establishing work on the various campuses.

Tuition is free, and room and board will be available on request.

First-year courses open to the public are studies on Isaiah, John, Hebrews, effective youth work, campus evangelism training, effective counselling, and personal evangelism.

Second-semester courses open are Deuteronomy, Romans, Acts, and Revelation.

Anglican membership shows Canada decline

TORONTO (CP) — Membership in the Anglican Church of Canada has dropped below one million for the first time since 1950, the church's national office says.

Statistics for 1977 put membership on parish rolls at 997,371, down from 1,008,929 in 1976.

Donations increased to $64.8 million from $58.2 million in 1976 and the church's 30 dioceses reported a total income of $14.1 million, an increase of almost $1 million.

Figures showed a drop of about 600 in church school enrolment. About 93,400 children were enrolled and were in 31 fewer Sunday schools than in 1976. The number of teachers, however, rose to 13,500 from 12,900.

The number of clergy remained fairly constant although new ordinations increased slightly.

Perspectives

By Rev. J. A. Davidson

Maurice Cranston, an English writer, in a little book on the controversial French philosopher, Jean-Paul Sartre, makes this statement: "Sartre is an atheist who understands man's thirst for God." He adds that Sartre "teaches them that they must learn to live with their thirst forever unsatisfied."

But through the ages millions of persons have learned that there can be some satisfaction for that thirst—and that regular worship in a community of faith is a basic agency of that satisfaction.

During the 1960s and the early 1970s there was, on the whole, a significant drop in church attendance in our society. But there is evidence of modest increases during the past three or four years.

During the 15 of so years following the end of the Second World War the churches enjoyed a boom, although in retrospect we can see it had elements of superficiality in it.

As people became aware of that superficiality they began to drop out. Many came to feel that in conventional religious practices their "thirst for God" was not being satisfied—although only a few would articulate their uneasiness in such terms.

Now people are beginning to return to the church. Perhaps many of them are going to church out of a hopeful uneasiness, a gentle anxiety—in reality, a "thirst for God" and an expectation that in faith there are redeeming, healing resources.

Many, especially the young and the disillusioned, are seeking such resources in new expressions of religion, some based on psychological insights and others on eastern religious traditions.

The churches have no grounds for complacency over the modest increases in attendance at services of worship. But they are challenged to respond to this new concern on the part of many people.

My impression is that the churches which are now showing some growth are the ones that are facing with faith's resources the "thirst for God" and at the same time avoiding the ingrown pietism which results when faith's outreach into the world is neglected.

But many who have tried to find satisfaction in the churches have felt let down: they have come to church thirsting for living waters and have found the pitcher empty. I must admit that I have some sympathy for these people—especially after I have been at a service which had been badly planned and ineptly conducted and left me with a glaze of boredom on my eyeballs. We who lead in worship should keep in mind the old French proverb, "Do not offer sweet liqueurs to the thirsty."

The late Rabbi A. J. Heschel, one of the great Jewish scholars of our time, put a basic issue in religion in this way: "God's existence can never be tested by human thought. All proofs are mere demonstrations of our thirst for Him. Does the thirsty one need proof of his thirst?"

No, the thirsty one does not need proof of his thirst. But he or she can find proof in and through worship, for it is in worship that that thirst is assuaged.

Norway's skiing season peaks at Holmenkollen's global fest

Once the leaves have surrendered and the firewood's been sawed and stacked, there's a beckoning sky and a ski trail out there for the Jack Frost types who glory in the joys of the winter solstice. In Scandinavia, where the ski has been standard winter footwear for more than 4,000 years, the pleasures to be derived from snow and ice are as much a part of the everyday scheme as herring and potatoes.

SO MUCH a part of winter life, skiing in Norway reaches its peak with the annual Holmenkollen Festival. This stellar Oslo event, which takes place March 3-11 this year, brings together the world's finest skiers to compete in downhill, slalom and giant slalom, cross-country races, and ski jumping. The internationally known Holmenkollen ski jumping contest, held on "Holmenkollen Sunday," is normally witnessed by 80,000 spectators headed by the king and the Royal family.

THIS YEAR marks its 100th anniversary, making it one of the world's oldest ski contests. The Holmenkollen ski jumping tower is used only during Holmenkollen week to insure the jumpers of foreign nations equal footing against the home-grown participants.

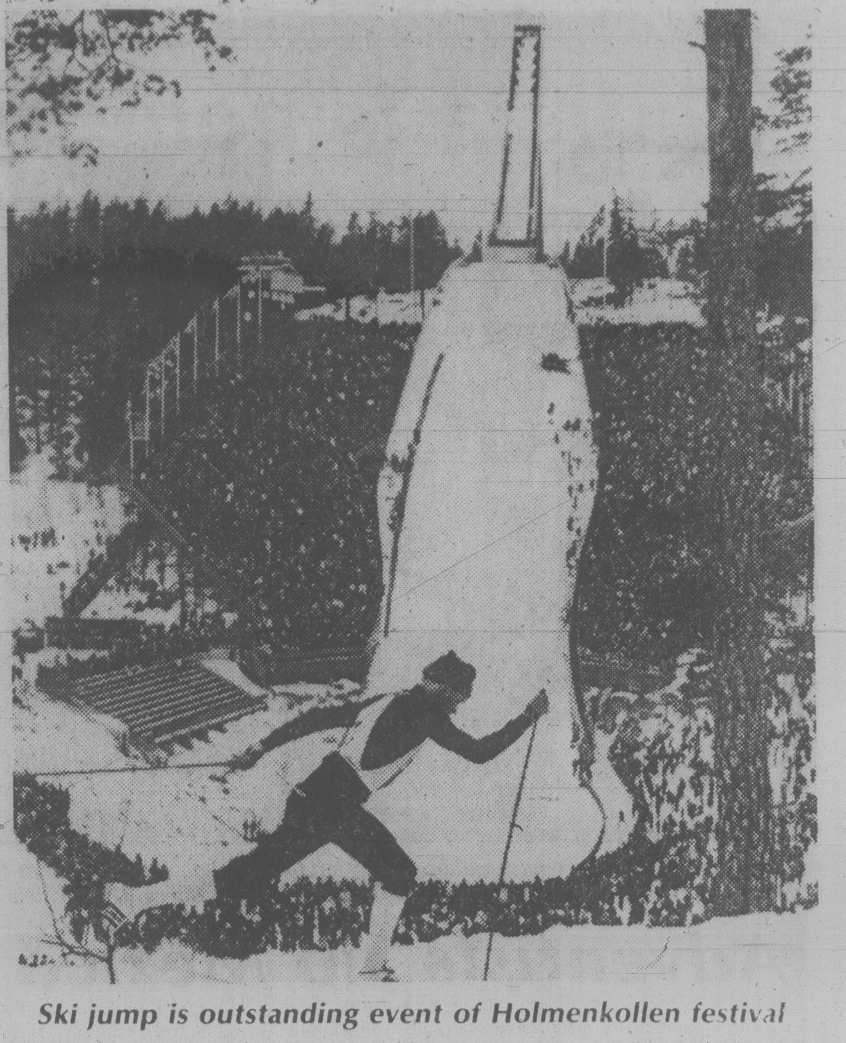
The once-a-year jumping tower, itself 184 feet high, is, at its summit, 1,350 feet above the Oslo fjord.

Holmenkollen Week in Oslo has more going for it than just sensational ski competitions. Oslo's Philharmonic Orchestra gives a series of grand concerts, there are special opera and ballet performances, and the museum, theatre nightclub and restaurant circuit is at its liveliest.

NO SKIER worth his club badge should miss a visit to the unique ski museum in Holmenkollen. It traces 4,000 years of skiing history, and among its artifacts is a ski trip from Ovrebo believed to be some 2,500 years old.

Much of Norway's winter sports activities are centered in Oslo, which can properly be called the Skiing Capital, and in the surrounding woods and hills of Oslomarka. The capital's natural playground contains more than 2,400 kilometres of well maintained ski trails and tracks.

FOR THE night skier Oslo provides, in its Green Belt, lighted tracks on 54 different trails. About 30 minutes by bus or tram from Oslo are the favored alpine centres of Rodkleiva — a short distance from the Holmenkollen ski jump; Kirkerud in Boerum, and Varingskollen. Other niceties built into the program are ski schools, qualified instructors, restaurants, and equipment for hire.



Ski jump is outstanding event of Holmenkollen festival

ALTHOUGH there are over 150 other ski centres in Norway, North American skiers favor three in particular: Lillehammer, Morgedal and Gaustablikk. All three offer excellent cross-country skiing.

Lillehammer, only 192 kilometres from Oslo, has a network of ski trails of over 400 kilometres, many floodlit at night. Gaustablikk and Morgedal, nestled in the heart of the Telemark districk some 320 kilometres from Oslo, can truly be called "the cradle of skiing" for it was here that slalom and the telemark turn was born. Skiing here is skiing in nature's wonderland as the scenery is among the most impressive in Norway.

SWEDEN'S winter sports scene, fervently embraced by the populace, includes, in addition to skiing, skating, pimpling (angling through a hole in a frozen lake), curling, sleigh-riding, and tobogganing. Come the first snowfalls — usually in late November — skiing begins and runs its exhilarating course to wind up in the far north, in Lapland, around the middle of June.

THE BUSIEST ski periods in Scandinavia are February, March and Eastertime, and hotel or chalet reservations are best made early to avoid disappointment.

Sweden's most celebrated winter resorts are Salen, Are-Duven, Storlien, Funasdalen and Vemdalsskalet. The principal resorts nestle in the mountain areas of northwestern Sweden in the provinces of Dalarna, Harjedalen, Jamtland, and Lapland.

Salen is the starting point of the world famous Vasa Race (Vasaloppet), a cross-country marathon that covers 85 kilometres and attracts over 10,000 competitors — sometimes even the King of Sweden. This year the run takes place on March 4. It has become so popular that this year's race was oversubscribed last fall. However, the finish at Mora is an event well worth watching. Mora and the surrounding area also offers excellent cross-country skiing.

Pocket of serenity within vibrant Spain

Galicia is gem beaming off beaten track

By ALFRED JaCOBY

SANTIAGO DE COMPOSTELA, Spain — "Tiene usted," I was asking in high school Spanish long unused, "los libros de el autor Americano, el senor Mark Twain?"

The gray-haired clerk looked at me in dismay, obviously understanding neither my Spanish nor the fact that I collect foreign-language versions of Mark Twain's books.

I asked again, my voice sing-songing into that half-shout that North Americans use with a foreign tongue half-learned:

"Tien USTED los libros de el AUTOR el senor MARK TWAIN, por favor?"

THE YOUNG man standing at my left at the counter turned and spoke in perfect North American English: "I don't think they will have Huckleberry Finn here," he said. "As you can see, it's a religious bookstore."

And so it was, appropriately enough. After all, Santiago de Compostela has been a city devoted to religion since the Middle Ages, when a relic, the body believed to be that of St. James, was discovered by a shepherd boy.

WE DID find a Spanish edition of Huckleberry Finn, by the way. Our bookstore friend, a Puerto Rican reared in Milwaukee and now studying medicine in Spain, took us there.

We had come to Galicia, the unknown Spain, precisely because of such people as our bookstore friend. This four-leafed clover of four provinces in the northwest of Spain — the coastal strip, with one interior province, just above Portugal — has a reputation for friendly and helpful people. It is known, too, for good food, for a special regional cuisine, for low prices, for grand vistas of the sea and of green valleys. And you can stand on the very spot — in the city of Bayona — where Columbus returned after discovering America almost 500 years ago!

"NO, NO, you cannot see Galicia in only two short days," we had been told by a Spanish tourist office expert when planning the trip. "A week, perhaps. A week, yes. No less. And you will not regret the time."

He was right. And, best of all, most of the time we felt as if we were the only tourists in town.

THE REASON, of course, is that it is not on any usual travel route. You have to make an effort. Vacationers without time to cover the comparatively great distances of Spain usually fly into Madrid, tour the surrounding cities and head for the Costa Brava resorts.

Those are delightful sights, of course, but they are not Galicia.

The difficulty in reaching Galicia makes it all the more desirable. Its uncommercialized serenity, its lack of tourist exploitation, become part of its charm.

YOU NEED a car to see Galicia. Only by car can you explore the estuaries and the coastal firths with their cliffs, headlands, coves and little creeks.

The four provinces forming Galicia are Lugo, La Coruna, Pontevedra and Orense. Most visitors start from Santiago de Compostela, the holy city, one of the three places of pilgrimage during the Middle Ages. During the great years, as many as two million pilgrims a year made the journey to this shrine — mostly on foot! They came to see the great cathedral, an awesome example of Romanesque work, with its high altar bearing a silver shrine with a seated statue of St. James completely embellished with precious stones.

FACING THE cathedral is the "Hospital Real," built in 1501-11 as a pilgrim-hostelry and now a luxury hotel, Hostal de los Reyes Catolicos (the Hotel of the Catholic Kings).

The huge wood-panelled bedrooms contain panelled beds, antique furnishings, elegant oak floors. One touch that seems to personify its elegance: Laundry is returned in handwoven baskets lined with an embroidered linen cloth.

LANGUAGE in Galicia is easier than might be imagined. English is understood virtually everywhere. Halting North American efforts at Spanish are accepted — although the locals speak a patois that is more Portuguese than Spanish.

Perhaps because of their isolation, Galicians seem a self-contained, family-centred people.

In the pleasant, long evenings, the streets of the villages and towns (except Vigo, with a population of a half-million, there are no real cities), are crowded with family groups: mother, father, two or three children, strolling along the sidewalks.

THERE ARE noisy bars and cafes in some of the larger areas and the pounding beat of rock music for young dancers — but the usual pace is slow and quite.

For the visitor seeking a pleasant interlude, the pre-dinner stroll (for after all, this is Spain, and dinner will come later, after 9 p.m. or so) is a must in Galicia.

Dollar sting in Europe can be softened

If you, like most of us, like to save a few dollars when you travel, you have probably developed some of your own devices to shave pennies. It is becoming more and more difficult to see Europe on a budget, thanks to our declining dollar, but Europe can still be enjoyed — and at a reasonable price.

With new low, low airfares between North America and Europe, you are saving a bundle before you even leave home. But that doesn't help much if you end up paying a fortune for hotels and rooms on the Continent.

With that in mind, and knowing that many people are planning their European vacations now, here are a few tips I've assembled during numerous trips to Europe.

●If you are using travellers' checks, the best place to cash them is a bank. European banks usually have exchange rates posted; if it isn't on view, that may be an indication that you won't get the best rate going for your dollars. Since there is often a flat rate for cashing checks, whether they're for $20 or $200, it's better to cash substantial amounts. Hotel and shop rates are notoriously not to the tourist's advantage.

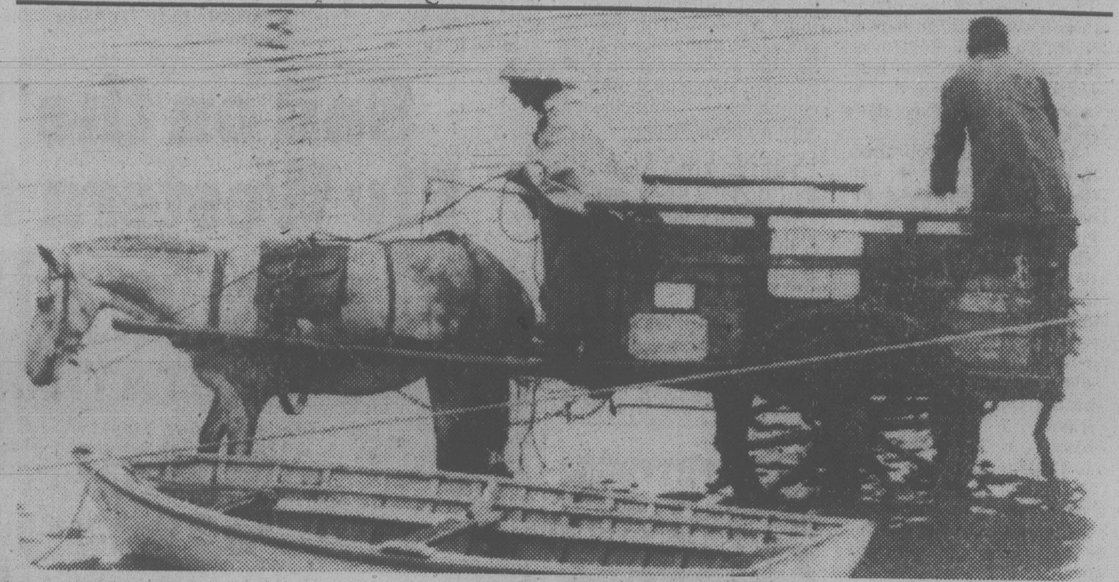
●Although shops may display American Express, Visa, etc., charge card symbols, there may be an additional charge of as much as 5 per cent added to your purchase when it's rung up. Be sure to inquire.

●For really feeling the atmosphere of a country and seeing how the locals live, bed and breakfast "zimmer frei" in Austria and Germany, "chambre libre" in France, "damer en ontbijt in Holland) offer a marvelous opportunity at top value.

●When seeking out restaurants, if you're not looking for something specific, look for posted menus. And note whether there's a fixed price menu, which almost always is exceptional value, three or four courses for roughly the normal charge of the main course only. Check bottom or top of the menu to see if service and value added tax are included.

●A dismayingly accurate rule of thumb can be this: if you can read the menu in English, you're probably not getting maximum value for your food dollars. Often restaurants that cater exclusively for the international tourist set offer neither the best, most typical or best value food.

●Ask the locals. Everyone loves to give advice. Even if your command of the language is minimal, you'll be pointed to a place where you may not speak the dialect but be served food that is delicious.



Draymen at Puerto Montt urge their horses out into chilly waters to unload their cargoes onto small boats for re-loading to deep-water ships.

Beauty erupted in Chile

By JERRY RIFE

A million or more years ago, when the world was young and still unsettled, a number of earthquakes shook the Southern Hemisphere. Thus, myriad lakes and fiord-like estuaries of almost indescribable beauty were born in the land which came to be called Chile.

Centuries later, a community named Puerto Montt flourishes at the edge of the Gulf of Ancud, which leads to the Gulf of Corcovado.

On the streets of Puerto Montt, the faces of the people reflect their varied heritage — German, Italian, Irish, Spanish — mingled with the native Indian.

It is a pleasant place, with a pace conducive to long life, filled with the tasks of a sea-town which is also the jumping-off place for visitors going to enjoy the natural beauties of the Chilean lake country to the east.

Horse-drawn covered wagons share the roads with cars and tourist buses.

You can sit in a floating restaurant and look out over the casually busy waterfront where boats sit stranded on the beach at low tide.

Or you can bargain for blankets, ponchos, shawls, capes, coats, mittens in the local wool market next to the fisherman's wharf.

A pleasant one-hour flight on Lan-Chile Airlines from the capital of Santiago brings you to this peaceful place where hotel accommodations are good and local tourist guides wait to show you the sights.

Untimely stop connected traveller with real France

BY GUS STEVENS

AIX LES BAINS, France — The groaning bus was rounding a tight curve when a rear tire let go with a bang.

The blowout meant trouble for the driver, but for some of us it meant our most pleasant hours in France.

The breakdown happened on the highway between Aix les Bains in the foothills of the French Alps and Geneva, the gleaming city that clings to the western tip of Switzerland, only five kilometres from the French frontier.

As it turned out, the weary tire couldn't have called it quits at a better time. The bus wobbled to the side of the road about a hundred yards from the principal — and just about the only — street of a tiny village.

Perhaps it was not even a village, but merely a collection of houses along the sides of the road. If the place has a name, we never found it.

We piled out on the shoulder of the road and scattered over the countryside. I headed for the little village street and soon found myself alone at one of those rare times when I was completely separated from anyone I knew or ever had seen before.

I had a wonderful feeling of freedom and adventure, being 11,200 kilometres from home and alone in absolutely foreign surroundings. I felt I could just step around the next corner and never again be faced by any of my present responsibilities.

A bakery offered its fragrant wares and, reacting to sweets as the dog did to Pavlov's bell, I walked inside and selected a box filled with pastry to take with me.

It was fun to meet someone who knew not one word of English, a situation rarely encountered in this age of jet tourism with millions of North Americans on the move.

Yet, I seemed to get along fine, the ham actor coming out in my descriptive gestures (smacking of the lips and rubbing of the stomach).

Just down the street was a tiny grocery store. Inside I found, in the French tradition, that at least half of the shelves were devoted to wine — as important to the Gallic taste as salt to ours.

Here I stocked up on several bottles of vin ordinaire and a huge loaf of unwrapped French bread, the kind you see being carried everywhere in France by people on scooters, bicycles and foot.

A half-hour later I headed back toward the bus, pausing along the way to snap what turned out to be good color pictures of a bucket of wine bottles cooling under a tap in the village square.

I was received — along with my wares — as a popular hero by the rest of the group; and before long we were on our way once again. I was happier because I felt that, at least for a brief time, I had been part of the real France.

Legend spun for centuries

Romantic waves wash along Mendocino coast

ON THE GO
With Jerry Hulse

MENDOCINO, Calif., — Same time, next year?

The question has been posed by a generation of couples who contemplate the rerun of a romantic weekend along the storm-tossed Mendocino coast. A special weekend when love endures.

And by no mere coincidence it happens to be the title of a new motion picture that was filmed at Heritage House, Mendocino's most romantic inn.

TO OUTLANDERS, the inns of Mendocino offer warmth and cheer and huge servings of satisfaction. As for the innkeepers, they do their romantic best to keep alive the legend.

A perfectly good example is the Joshua Grindle Inn, a landmark that's exactly 100 years old.

After standing vacant for two-and-a-half years, the Joshua Grindle was bought and restored by Bill and Gwen Jacobson. Since February a year ago, they've served as keepers of this inn.

The five rooms at the Joshua Grindle Inn all have private baths. A collection of clocks tick away the hours in the snug old home with its 18th- and 19th-century wallpaper.

GUESTS are told to forget their cars. Everything is within walking distance — the Art Center, the galleries, the dozens of small shops.

From the parlor at Joshua Grindle there's a view of the village and the bay. And it's here in the evening that Bill and Gwen light the fireplace and pour cream sherry for their guests and serve coffee and desserts. There's a bowl filled with apples and oranges. And if the mood strikes, a piano is available for an impromptu concert.

Rates start at $35 a day and include a breakfast prepared by Gwen of fruit and eggs with coffee cakes, huckleberry muffins, popovers, home-baked bread. Whatever moves her spirit. It's all served on a harvest table in the kitchen.

YOU CAN'T miss the Joshua Grindle. It's the simple white frame cottage on Little Lake Road surrounded by flowers and filled ith good cheer.

A couple of kilometres outside town a 19th-century Victorian farmhouse on California 1 provides other comforts. Glendeven Inn with its six guest rooms (two with private baths) is operated by Janet, 32 and 37-year-old Jan deVries.

Guests may choose from the Garden Room with its hanging planters, the King's Room, the Gold Crest, Mendocino Wood, Bay View and the Garret.

IT GOES without saying that you'll find the Garret in the attic. It has a knockout view of the sea, and guests snooze in a Louis XIV bed.

Scattered throughout Glendeven Inn are antiques collected by the deVrieses. Its entrance faces the ocean with a backdrop of redwood-forested slopes.

For a room with breakfast (eggs, biscuits, muffins or fruit bread) rates run from $32 to $40 per couple.

At Glendeven it is a joy to curl up in a corner with a book. Or to explore the headlands. Or to hike along the beach.

Mendocino was created by New England woodsmen, which accounts for its Down East flavor. They came to log the redwoods and in so doing they built New England-style homes.

THE ENTIRE town occupies a bluff that overlooks the stormy Pacific. Via the inland route from San Francisco (U.S. 101 to Cloverdale and California 128 to the coast) the highway cuts through rolling hills, redwoods, maples, laurel and madrone trees. It crosses salmon rivers and fields of butter-yellow scotch broom, moss roses, wild cracker buds, rhododendrons and azaleas. Weathered fences sag and red barns are a contrast to the wet greenness of the clover fields.

In Mendocino fogs roll in during summertime, and the ocean is too cold — as well as too dangerous — for swimming. Winter storms sweep in from Alaska, piling driftwood along the coast, and far out to sea whistling buoys cry their laments.

IT IS THIS very rawness of land and sea that draws the artist. The artist is aroused by the voice of the wind and the thunder of the sea — this and the village itself.

Thanks to the foresight of residents who had it declared a historical site, Mendocino has changed little.

Its beaches remain littered with logs and other driftwood. Victorian homes, buffeted by years of storms, stand forlornly on the bluffs.

Still, wet or sunny, Mendocino is a welcome change from the cities. Once 16 hotels served lumbermen and fishermen. Now all that remains is the Mendocino Hotel. A hamburger king sank $1.5 million into it recently. Now it's hard to figure if it's a restaurant, a bordello, a bar or hotel.

IT'S ALL this, except for the bordello.

The hotel's walls are flocked and light filters through Tiffany glass.

Logs blaze in the fireplace, creating a coziness for diners seated in the lounge.

Guests have the choice of 26 rooms — 13 with private baths ($42.50), 13 without ($26.50).

They sink into brass and four-poster beds and are lulled to sleep by the sound of the sea.

Because only one hotel existed in Mendocino, residents began turning their homes into inns.

IMMENSELY popular is MacCallum House, built in 1882 by lumberman William H. Kelley as a wedding gift for his daughter Daisy.

Daisy lived in the rambling old mansion until her death at 92. It was a scene of social events and afternoon teas, and Daisy MacCallum reigned as its queen.

In 1974 MacCallum House was bought by San Francisco stockbroker Bill Norris and his wife Sue. With 20 rooms it is Mendocino's largest guest house, crowded with antiques — sleigh beds, steamer trunks and other prized items. In the mansion itself here are no private baths. One shares. Other rooms are scattered among various structures — a barn, a gazebo, the carriage house (formerly the garage), a greenhouse and water tower.

NOW, THERE is something to boast about to the neighbors — how you slept in a water tower. Makes for one-upmanship during the cocktail hour gabfast.

Rooms in the main house range from $34.50 to $45.50. And although I paid $50 for a single (tax included), the shower down the hall spewed only icewater.

When I complained to the proprietress she shrugged. "Water heater must have blown a fuse."

Very well, but what became of the breakfast that was included with the price of the room? "Sorry," said the lady. "No breakfast today. The bakery's closed."

WELL, IN fairness I'm told the dinners served at MacCallum House are good. In fact they've been described as excellent. But I didn't wait around to find out. I had a nagging feeling that the grocery might be closed too. And while I can skip breakfast without any particular fuss, dinner is something else.

Up the coast a few kilometres I discovered an inn built entirely of redwood. Harbor House, on a bluff overlooking a cove of spectacular beauty, provides the loveliest views along the entire Mendocino coast.

DEER GAMBOL through the pastures and gulls wheel overhead.

Rooms in the old mansion and its cottage are heated automatically and each has a private bath. Guests snooze under electric blankets and doze before fireplaces and antique Franklin stoves.

With the concert of the sea, drowsiness comes easily at Harbor House. Rates range from $59 to $75 a day double, breakfast and dinner included.

Finally, there's St. Orres, an inn with a Russian facade, a roaring fireplace and a romantic, candlelit dining room.

PROPRIETORS Richard Wasserman and Eric Black, inspired by the 19th-century buildings left by Russian trappers, created their inn along similar lines.

Rates are $35-$45 a day, including the continental breakfast. Still, in this Russian-styled inn you'd have to do without the songs of the Volga boatmen.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

Judge William Ostler imposed stringent bail conditions on two persons who appeared in provincial court Friday.

Hasan Joe Celebic, 17, of 1414 Hillside, was released on his own recognizance in the sum of $500 but Ostler ordered him to obey a 7 p.m. curfew until the case is completed.

Celebic is charged with theft under $200 and possession of stolen property in connection with a substantial number of quarters allegedly taken Wednesday morning from a parking ticket machine at the Johnson Street city parkade.

Ostler rejected defence lawyer Don Linge's suggestion that the curfew might be lifted if Celebic got a job and had to be out later than 7 p.m.

Not guilty pleas were entered on both charges and May 6 was set for the trial.

Ostler released 66-year-old John Owen Paterson, 240 Cook, on $1,500 recognizance but ordered him not to be in the company of anyone under the age of 17 during his release.

Paterson is charged with two counts of indecent assaults on young girls.

Defence lawyer David Lisson, who requested a no-publication order on the bail hearing, elected trial by judge and jury and a preliminary hearing date of March 14 was set.

★ ★ ★

Ostler suggested to a 37-year-old man he needed counselling himself rather than trying to counsel young people.

Norman Andrew Hinds, 2035 Ardwell in Sidney, pleaded guilty to two counts of contributing to juvenile deliquency by supplying liquor to two 14-year-old girls Sept. 28.

Crown counsel Robert Mulligan said Hinds took the girls to Mount Douglas Park in Saanich where he gave them some wine. One of the girls became ill from the liquor, Mulligan said.

When interviewed by Saanich police Hinds said he was a Big Brother to young people and acted as a counsellor to them.

Hinds told the court he was the author of his own misfortune and said he "always had a big ear," listening to teen-agers' problems.

He said he was having problems of his own during that period, was feeling sorry for himself and had a bottle of Baby Duck wine with him. He said the impact of the incident hit him like a brick wall and that he planned to get involved in a youth centre gymnastics program in his area.

Before passing sentence, Ostler said he was not persuaded Hinds was "as naive as you say you are."

He fined Hinds $50 on each of the two counts and placed him on six months' probation.

★ ★ ★

A man who said he drove at 2 a.m. to be first in line to apply for a job opening he had heard about during a party was fined $150 for driving while under suspension.

Daryl Kenneth McMillan 20, 1134 Wychbury, pleaded guilty.

The prosecutor said McMillan was involved in a single-car accident in the 1100-block Esquimalt in the early hours of Nov. 17. McMillan was located some time later and was charged because his licence had been suspended in September.

★ ★ ★

Fined for drinking-driving offences were: Simon John Faulkner, 26, of 2657 Mount Stephen, $700; and Delwin Cameron Wiebe, 21, of 1734 Davie, $400.

Wiebe was also fined $100 for refusing a breath test demand made by city police.

Jail Term Reduced

A man sentenced last year to four months in jail for assault causing bodily harm was successful this week in having the penalty reduced to one day.

Henri E.D. Bailly appealed his provincial court sentence for the May 8, 1978, offence in an appearance before county court Judge E.J.C. Stewart, who noted the accused had already been three months in custody.

Cell Suicide

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ray Babcock, 38, address unknown, hanged himself with a belt in a cell at the provincial courthouse Thursday while he was awaiting a court appearance.

Enter, the Versatile Wedding Dress

The Emanuels: 'It's like an investment' family

By BERNADINE MORRIS
New York Times

Weddings are back in fashion.

Take it from David and Elizabeth Emanuel. They're not only married, they're building a reputation as designers of wedding dresses. One of their dresses, with a 12-foot train, swept down the aisle at Westminster Abbey.

The couple — Mrs. Emanuel is 25, he is 26 — packed their collection in four huge crates and brought it to New York from London. They took up residence at Henri Bendel to spread the good word about weddings. January is the month local June brides usually start worrying about the dress they will wear.

The designers already have some American clients, such as Evangeline Bruce, the diplomat's wife, and Lynn Wyatt, who is part of the Sakowitz department store family in Houston. Both are pretty knowledgeable about clothes.

The women didn't buy wedding dresses from the Emanuels, but that's part of the story. The styles, with a few adjustments, are as appropriate for dinners and parties as for marching down the aisle. Bianca Jagger wore one to her birthday celebration at Studio 54 and Princess Anne was photographed in one for her official portrait after her baby was born. That shows how versatile the dresses can be.

"The brides are usually quite pleased when we show them the dresses don't have to be put away after they're worn once," Emanuel explained. "They just lower the neckline and remove the petticoats and they have a perfectly useful evening dress. It's like an investment, not an extravagance and they don't have to look ordinary at their wedding."

The Emanuels' clothes are not exactly predictable. Sumptuous, yes. Six layers of net and about 60 yards of fabric for the petticoats alone. Elaborate gathers and ruching for the bodices. Generous appliques of antique lace and antique sequins throughout.

"We make pilgrimages to Paris, where we visit a lady in the flea market for our sequins," Emanuel said. "We saw similar ones in the Ballets Russes costume exhibit here at the Metropolitan Musuem."

The couple's career as designers of fashionable wedding dresses began rather unexpectedly, with one of the styles they presented in the fashion show that marked their graduation two years ago from the Royal College of Art. Mrs. Emanuel's styles were the finale and she, in true fashion show tradition, included a bridal gown. His designs were modelled immediately before hers, and since the two showed everything in white, they seemed like a single segment. That, of course, was the idea.

The couple had met and married at the Harrow School of Art, which they attended before college. They said they believe they are the first married couple to have been accepted by the Royal College, training ground for many young British fashion designers.

Emanuel's style tended to be plain and classic at the time, while his wife concentrated on fantasy dresses.

The bridal gown from the school show was picked up by Bride's magazine, and the couple still receives letters from women asking where they can buy it and if they could get a paper pattern.

In the few months between graduation and the time they showed their first collection of clothes in the shop they opened on Brook Street, near Bond Street in London, they designed a few weddings for friends and friends of friends. Satisfied clients helped spread the word about the young designing couple.

For their first show, they invited buyers from the four London stores to whom they wanted to sell. Three of them bought styles. British Vogue gave them four pages and a Bendel's buyer asked them if they exported any of the clothes.

"I was so naive, I told her no," David recalls. "I had no idea how one went about shipping clothes abroad."

The two have just completed their third collection, and they've learned about export. In addition to simple crepe de chine shirts and pants and jersey vests, they do elaborate silk taffeta and satin evening dresses.

Their bridal gear runs from simple cotton lawns to crinkled chiffons and satins. While they use regulation white and cream colors, they have been doing a lot of shell-ping bridal gowns — they believe the color is flattering.

They've a penchant for ballerina lengths and small waistlines. That's the reason for the elaborately bouffant petticoats.

"The petticoats make a woman's waistline look even tinier," Mrs. Emanual explained.

They do their own headdresses, from Juliet caps to veils, and recommend ballet slippers as footgear.

Prices for the Emanuel wedding dresses start at $500 and go into four figures.

KNIT & CHAT

Shetland Knitters Really Fly

By MAY E. MacLEAN

Knitting and crochet has always been regarded as a feminine accomplishment in the home and in old documents, a bride's ability to knit was often quoted as part of her marriage dowry.

A knitting cup was always drunk at medieval wedding feasts, and the word knit seems to have played a very important part in our language. Up until the end of the 19th Century, one often heard the expression knitting a hedge or to knit a gate. Surgeons talk of knitting a broken bone together.

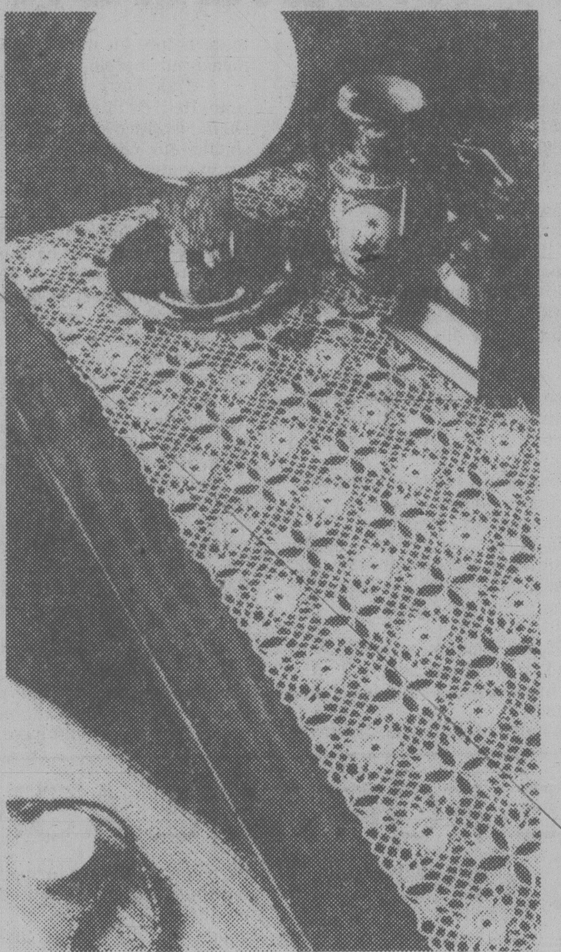
In the Shetland Isles off the north of Scotland, knitting remains an industry. In small communities, situated almost on the edge of civilization, survives a knitting industry such as might have thrived in the Guilds during the Middle Ages.

Children are often given a pair of knitting needles at four years of age, but not for knitting. The child holds her needles as does her mother and pretends to knit beating the needles up and down as though making stitches.

This helps them acquire the rhythm and speed that Shetland knitters are famous for and many have been clocked at over two hundred stitches a minute.

This pace is attained today the same way master knitters of old knitted, with the aid of a knitting stick or sheath. Into this he inserted the end of his right needle and the stick itself into a belt on the right hip.

The Shetland knitter inserts her needle into a knitting pouch, freeing her right hand, which is then held over the extreme point of the right needle, operating the wool with the forefinger while the fingers of both hands play the stitches to and from the needle points, as though playing a musical instrument.



Six rounds will make one crochet motif which can be done at any odd moment and before you know it, there will be sufficient on hand to complete this runner, or for a placemat, even make a tablecloth or a bedspread.

To order leaflet No. 7950, send 75 cents in coin, plus a stamped self-addressed envelope, long one if possible. If you do not have an envelope or stamp, please enclose an extra 25 cents to cover the cost of handling and print your name and address. Send to: May E. Mac Lean, Knit and Chat, 486 Montford Dr., Dollard des Ormeaux, Roxboro, Que., H9G 1M6. Please be sure to state pattern numbers correctly when ordering. Allow two weeks for delivery. All back numbers of my pattern series are available at 75 cents each copy, catalogue of gift and bazaar ideas, 25 cents.

SIMPLE LIFE SUITS HIM

RUSPER, England (CP) — Frank Townsend, 72, owns a 200-acre farm, but lives in a straw hut, draws his water from a stream, snares rabbits and pheasants for food and uses candles for lighting. "I know people think I'm an old fool," he said. "but I'm content. My little house here is as cozy and warm as any brick building."

COLORED HAZARD

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — If you roll old newspapers into logs for your fireplace or wood stove, be sure they do not include pages with color photos. Papers printed with colored ink may release toxic fumes when burned, says Rollin Schnieder, an extension safety specialist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Schnieder also says the tighter the papers are rolled, the longer the burning time.

He says a finished log should be four to five inches in diameter, about the same as a tuna can. In fact, tuna cans with top and bottom removed can be used like napkin rings on both ends of a roll to hold the paper in place while you wire it into logs.

BUDDY SYSTEM

TORONTO (CP) — St. John Ambulance advises travelling with a friend when snowmobiling, skiing, or skating. Use the buddy system to watch for signs of frostbite.

Doing the Town

With DOROTHY FRASER

A bright new look at Charmante's . . .

The workmen had just finished laying the new carpet at Charmante's when we visited there last Monday . . . and by the time you read this, all renovations will have been completed and the whole store given a bright new look which the staff are anxious for you to see and enjoy . . . along with all their lovely new spring clothes! . . . The decor is an elegant cream and beige . . . Several new fitting rooms . . . and everything arranged for your greater shopping pleasure . . . Today we'll just tell you about a few of the new clothes you'll see . . . A nice group for Hobnobber . . . 2-pce. suit in a silk/cotton/polyester blend . . . new shorter jacket trimmed with contrasting colored braid . . . this in an oatmeal shade . . . Same oatmeal color in both overcheck and plain used for a group of separates . . . vests and skirts, the latter with back pleat and leather tie belt . . . checked vest in a loose, buttonless style and a plain one with buttons . . . An Aucki Sanft group includes a cotton and poly suit with a quilted reversible jacket in mint green, tobacco and cadet blue . . . One side of the jacket is checked to match the check blouse . . . There's a dress with unpressed pleated skirt, mandarin neckline and side pockets . . . this is in a pretty parchment shade . . . another dress is a 2-piecer with slim skirt, smock top with reverse tucks at the yoke . . . in either parchment or cadet blue . . . Be sure to pay an early visit to . . . Charmante's, Hillside Shopping Centre, 595-1555.

Unique crewel work kits now available . . .

Too late, alas, for Christmas . . but still lovely gifts for anyone who does crewel work . . . are the Chinese Hen and Cockerel kits now on sale at the Art Gallery's "Gallery Shop", as well as the Yarn Barn on Douglas St., Royal Jubilee Hospital Shop, Windsor Flower and Gift Shop and the Ball and Skein in Parksville . . . These are taken from a pair of old Chinese watercolors in a private collection here . . . and were two of the most popular items in the Pendray Collection . . . Such lovely brilliant colors of red, blue, green and gold! . . which would make up into handsome cushion covers for the woodsy-type living rooms so popular today . . . or delightful pictures for a kitchen wall! . . . Kit, which costs but $19.95 . . . is quite complete, with 50% more wool than needed (just in case you make a mistake in the working) and printed on the best quality linen. Complete stitch directions and diagram are included, along with a needle . . . When we tell you that Peggy Bartholomew made up these kits herself, you'll know just how choice and unique they are . . . Expressly arranged so that if you don't want to bother with a frame or hoops, you can do the crewel work right in your hand! . . . While colorful and charming to look at . . . the work is very easy to do . . . Would be as appropriate for a beginner as for a more experienced needlewoman to tackle . . . And such a nice gift for an invalid! . . . Speaking of gifts, don't forget that the Gallery Shop has all sorts of other wonderful gifts for sale too! . . . The Gallery Shop, Art Gallery of Greater Victoria, 1940 Moss St., 384-7012.

A peek at a first spring shipment . . .

Behind the scenes at Eaton's Signature Shop they were just unpacking a new shipment of spring things when we dropped by last Monday . . . so we got to see them before some of the staff! . . . Some smart little rain jackets . . . bomber style elasticized at the bottom . . . in soft polyester with a slick, shiny look . . . Tomato, charcoal and navy . . . Ideal for wearing to Hawaii or some such place when you don't want to take a coat . . . Some real cute raincoats, too . . . one gathered at the waist with elastic belt running through . . camel and navy. And a wrap raincoat with large patch pockets and shoulder stitching detail, new smaller collar . . . Tomato and camel . . . Noticed that these raincoats have a very good sleeve to fit easily over suits and jackets . . . An attractive ultrasuede outfit by Montroy, which comes in camel, mint and slate blue . . . has a shawl-collared vest with elastic in the waist, checked blouse and skirt with a slit in the back . . . Another pretty ultrasuede in silver green has a straighter skirt with slits on both sides and a loose vest with two pockets . . . Arms are going to be showing a lot this Summer! Don't think we've ever seen so many interesting sleeve treatments . . . There's a pretty flowered black dress with full skirt and wide, short sleeve . . . An apricot and cream floral sheer with V-neck banded with tiny tucks . . short sleeves . . . A white or black crepe dress with gathered skirt and V neck . . . separate scarf . . . very simple and good-looking . . . These things are just the first spring shipment at . . . Eaton's Signature Shop, 382-7141, loc. 242.

Fabrics that sing of spring . . .

If you're creative, clever with a sewing machine and would like to produce your spring wardrobe at a fraction of the cost of ready-to-wear . . . head for Eaton's Fabric Shop and have a look at some of the newly-arrived fabrics for spring! . . . We did, and our only regret is that we can't sew! . . . There's a polyester shantung weave . . . 150 cm (60 in.) wide at $9 per m. that would be extremely versatile . . . ideal for suits and dressy pantsuits, among other things . . . Cream, blue, pink, lilac, peach, mint, black, white and grey . . . Like the luxurious look of ultrasuede without the high price? . . . Then look at the Brigadoon Suede at $10 a meter. It's a machine washable and dryable . . . comes in lovely colors with matching polyester jerseys at $9 per m. New whisper chiffon prints in delicate pastel shades are only $8 a 115 cm.-wide meter . . . Something very new in a lacy look is a dacron fabric called Lacy Knit . . . It's 160 cm wide and is priced at $9 . . . Comes in all the pastel spring colours and would make delightful dressy dresses and blouses . . . It occurred to us that this fabric could also be used with effect for table cloths and dresser scarves because it's a closely-woven lace and is completely washable . . A few pure silks have arrived too . . . Go browse in . . . Eaton's Fabric Shop, 382-7141, loc. 233.

Swing into spring in an Amalfi sandal . . .

Munday's have just recently received a shipment of Amalfi sandals . . . nice spring-like shoes in a lot of new patterns and colors well-calculated to complement your new spring clothes! . . . There are a few with cork-wrapped wedges finished with a high polish . . . One of these named "Malore", with a bias strap, comes in white or natural with dark brown inking on the straps . . . "Puff" is another . . . Padded solid vamp . . . in natural and tobacco . . . And "De Maria" has a perforated leather vamp and pretty T-strap . . . In hemp or white . . . All have padded insoles and are very lightweight . . . "Mianca" is a dainty shoe with a higher wrapped cork heel . . . "Texas" is an up-dated version of one of last year's most popular patterns . . . White, navy, putty and black patent in these and sizes 14 to 11, AAA, AA and B . . . City sandals are a little more tailored and mostly have stacked heels and mock welt treatment . . . "Facoce", in tan or natural, with brown inking, has three straps over the vamp . . . "Bisesto" has a perforated vamp and wishbone strap . . . Hemp or navy . . . On a lower heel there's "Ocari" . . . natural calf solid vamp with instep strap . . . "Gihirba" has an almost flat heel . . . little cut-out slits on a solid vamp and "Bisso", on a mid-heel, comes in white, navy, red, green, putty calf and black patent . . . Sizes 4-12 in these and A to C widths in the white ones . . . AA and B in the other colors . . . Prices are $58 to $70 at . . . Munday's, 1203 Douglas St., 383-2211.

Blouses with a difference . . .

We thought we'd seen all there was to see in the way of new blouses, but not so . . . Gibson's have some that are subtley different! For one thing, they have striped blouses in all the new ultrasuede shades . . . French blue, absinthe green, cream, tisane, grey, camel, navy, white . . . combined in various ways and in straight or wavy stripes . . . One style with small collar, narrow cuff and narrow tie around the neck. Another with a little yoke and bow tie at the soft neckline . . . In plains, there are mandarin neck blouses with a difference too . . . One style with extended mandarin collar and the new roll sleeves with tabs, comes in tomato red and camel . . . And one in camel with a yoked mandarin neck . . . Among these beauties you'll find just what you need to complete your ultrasuede outfit . . . Then there's the crip look in beautiful pure silk . . . A luscious cream silk blouse with breast pockets . . . Also in chocolate brown and dove grey . . . Another style in pinky beige has a fold-over mandarin collar . . . So that makes three styles of mandarin . . . extended, fold-over and yoked! . . . We saw a very pretty new suit . . grey flannel blazer and soft glen check vest, skirt and scarf . . . the skirt with European pleat front and back . . . (The dove grey crisp silk blouse would look elegant with this!) Noticed a few ultrasuede unlined wrap coats in colors that made us drool . . . African violet! . . . French blue! . . . Apricot! . . . Gibson's, 708 View St., 384-5913.

Touring Europe in style . . .

We've just been through the new 1979 Global and Cosmos tours of Europe brochures which Paulin's received last week and believe us, it's enough to start the old adrenalin flowing! . . . There's an unbelievable choice of tours out of London to every part of the continent . . . at a range of prices which should suit every travel budget . . . Global have two types of tours . . . "Showcase" which is absolutely deluxe in every way . . . and "Viewfinder" which also has super itineraries but the hotels aren't quite as grand, so costs are considerably lower . . . Travel is by motor coach, train, ship combinations . . . and tour costs are just about all-inclusive . . . There are qualified tour conductors and guides . . . and you get to see far more than you could possibly do on your own, in comfort and without hassle . . . Want to cruise on the Rhine? . . . Explore Scandinavia? . . . Take in the glories of Greece? . . . See the Kremlin . . . Thrill to the sights and scents of mysterious Morocco . . . Visit just about any country you can name? . . . You'll find there are tours of various time durations out of London . . . Or maybe you'd rather confine yourself this trip to seeing Britain thoroughly? You can do that too . . . One thing you should do, though, is let Paulin's book you on the tour of your choice just as soon as possible because all these tours are highly popular with people from everywhere . . . Paulin Travel, 532 Broughton St., 382-9168.

How do you decide which is the creamiest, richest ice cream when you don't know the brand names? Pick out the same size carton in two different brands. The heaviest one should have less air, more milk solids, a creamier texture and richer flavor.

When Mom has no draperies to spare for that first apartment, the cheapest and quickest way to cover the windows is to add pleater tape along the length (not width) of a sheet or two. Even old white cotton sheets — never used because they need ironing — will do. If you have the sheets, pleater tape (about 50 cents a yard) and pleater pins (about $1.70 a box) are all you need to buy. The only hemming is across the sheet bottom.

See that your patio pots aren't sitting directly on cement or brick, which can plug the bottom drain hole and cause root rot. Flat stones or small pieces of wood will raise the pots for proper draining.

Foam Insulation No.1

By A. J. HAND

Back in 1977 when I wrote my book Home Energy How-To I recommended urea-formaldehyde foam (U-F foam) as the best possible material for insulating the walls of existing homes. The reasons: Good R-value (about 20 for a typical frame wall) and good fire resistance.

Since that time, however, there have been some bad reports on U-F. Formaldehyde odors, shrinkage and poor distribution in wall cavities, and peeling house paint are the most common complaints. None of these complaints has changed my mind, however. I still feel U-F is a fine insulating material. The problems are the fault of the installers, not the foam.

U-F foam is fairly touchy stuff. The chemicals that make it up must be mixed in the proper proportions at the proper temperature. The installer who guns the U-F into your walls must be trained and skilled.

What does all this mean to you? It means that if you plan to have U-F foam gunned into your walls, you should take the following precautions:

—Make sure the installer is qualified to do the job. The big foam makers such as Rapco, Borden and Aerolite train and certify their installers. Then they recheck them periodically, and issue dated certification badges.

—Don't have any foam gunned into ceilings or attics. It is not intended for these areas; it may shrink excessively, or break down, or fill your home with formaldehyde fumes.

—Make sure the instaler tests the density of the foam before he starts work. To do this he weighs a measured sample.

—Make sure he also checks for proper setting time. He'll do this by gunning a blob of the stuff, then slicing it with a knife or trowel until it cuts cleanly. It should cut cleanly within 20 to 60 seconds after being gunned.

—Make sure the foam is gunned at the proper temperature. Chemicals should reach the gun at a temperature between 55 and 86 degrees. Your wall cavities should also be the right temperature (between 23 and 86 degrees). Except in very cold winter weather, the lower temperature limit should present no problem. Heat escaping from your home will keep the cavity above 23. But the wall in the direct summer sun can easily go over the 86 degree upper limit, especially a dark-colored wall.

Solution? Start the foaming on the north and west walls in the morning, then do the east and finally the south walls in the afternoon. This keeps the work out of the direct sun.

—Don't let the installer cut corners on preparation. The foam is shot into your wall cavities through holes drilled in your house. For proper gunning, there should be two holes per stud space as shown in the sketch. If the instaler tries to get by with a single hole per stud space, the foam will probably not fill the stud space completely. You'll be stuck with gaps of uninsulated wall.

This exact thing has happened to two of my friends. In both cases, however, they called the installers back and the problem was corrected. But if you follow the cautions above when your home is foamed, you should have no problems to correct.

Do you know what cirrus clouds look like or can you tell when the sky is covered with small cumulus clouds?

The Cloud Chart pictures 35 different cloud formations and help you to recognize them. You will also learn how clouds are formed and that they are classified into three main classes: high clouds, middle clouds and low clouds.

High clouds, which are from 9 to 15 km above the surface of the earth, are almost always composed of ice crystals. However, some consist of supercooled water drops.

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: I borrowed $200 from a friend 14 years ago. Nothing was said about interest at the time.

I am able to pay the money back now. My friend says I owe her interest because if I had borrowed from the bank I would have had to pay interest. But, Abby, it wasn't a bank I borrowed that money from, it was from my friend.

What do you say?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Since no mention was made about the interest when you borrowed the money, pay her $200 and call it square. (P.S. I should think your friend would be glad to see any money at all after 14 years.)

DEAR ABBY: There are organizations to protect women from sexual harassment on the job, but who protects us from our husbands' employers?

My husband quit his job and moved us from one side of the continent to the other. And, accepting a work load that nearly put him in the cardiac ward, he went to work for an Australian businessman who promised us a share in the profits.

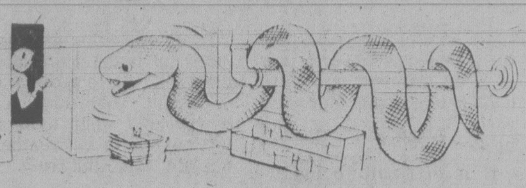
This Australian was unable to drive, so my husband invited him to stay in our home on his frequent business trips. On these occasions, he made overtures to me, which I declined as diplomaticaly as possible without insulting him outright. Not easily discouraged, he persisted until I openly avoided him. At that point, he fired my husband.

My husband thinks that with the business firmly established and profits booming, the Australian figued he could hire a new manager with whom he did not have to share profits.

I suspect the man felt rejected and sought retaliation. What do you think is right? LADY IN DISTRESS

DEAR LADY: You could both be right. Only the cad from Down Under knows. (P.S. The next time your husband makes a deal, remind him to get it in writing.)

Boa's Hug Can be Breathtaking



by Dr. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: I am inheriting (sort of) an eight-and-a-half foot (by last measurement) boa constrictor. I have heard these snakes are actually pretty delicate and have to be handled pretty carefully. What's the scoop on this? — R. F.

DEAR R. F.: There is considerable merit in handling a large boa carefully, particularly — in some cases — for the handler . . . the embrace of a reptile this size can be pretty breathtaking, especially when it flips a couple of quick coils around one's neck. . . .

Boas may break up, so to speak, with improper handling, particularly if the head is handled roughly. The neckbone connection to the skull is the weak spot for snakes. Dislocation or fracture can occur.

★ ★ ★

DEAR DR. MILLER: Last night I caught our puppy chewing on a crocus bulb. I took it away from but he still spit up a lot and vomited some. Of course, I could tell it didn't agree with him, but is this bulb really dangerous? — C. H.

DEAR C. H.: Yes, Colchicum Autumnale, the autumn crocus, particularly the bulb, is toxic and not only causes burning in the throat and stomach but may cause damage to, or even failure of, the kidneys.

★ ★ ★

DEAR DR. MILLER: Pretty Boys' beak is growing around and under and sticking into his throat. He's in good spirits but I am sure it's annoying him. Cuttlebone doesn't help. When this happens to a parakeet, what do you do? — C. T.

DEAR C. T.: You have the beak trimmed back to its proper length — and quickly. Neglecting an overgrown beak can lead eventually to starvation as the bird can no longer crack its seed properly. Even if it still managed to eat, the poor bird would, at least, be stabbing itself in the throat daily, a pastim both painful and dangerous.

★ ★ ★

DEAR DR. MILLER: My question concerns a mother cat who loves her babies and has lots of milk. Is it necessary to wean her kittens at four weeks of age? — A. M.

DEAR A. M.: If Mama is in the mood to carry on and isn't down to skin (milk) and bones herself, then you can let her make the decision on when. (It may be sooner than you think.) In any event, the kittens, at a month of age, should be acquiring a taste for other food than milk.

Buzzers Warn Of Crib Death

BOSTON (AP) — Crib death, a mysterious ailment that kills infants in their sleep, is being prevented with electronic monitors that sound screeching alarms when a child stops breathing, doctors say.

The alarms are an almost-foolproof way to prevent crib death in babies who are known to be susceptible to the ailment, the researchers said, based on five years of testing.

Although the devices do not restore the child's breathing, the alarm gives parents time to rush to the infant and shake the baby until he starts breathing again.

Doctors at Massachusetts General Hospital have provided the devices to the parents of 260 babies. Sixty per cent of the infants had major episodes of breathing difficulty while hooked to the montors.

Four children died during the first three years of the test, but the researchers concluded this was because the alarms were not loud enough. The buzzers since have been turned up to the pitch and volume of home smoke alarms, and no children have died.

Crib death, which is also called sudden infant death syndrome, claims the lives of 10,000 seemingly healthy babies in the United States each year. It is the single biggest killer of children between the ages of two weeks and one year.

Victims usually die in their sleep without crying out or struggling. Doctors believe many simply stop breathing.

In the warning system, a sleeping baby wears a belt that is attached by a cord to an electronic box about the size of a stereo receiver. If he stops breathing for more than 20 seconds, a 70-decible alarm goes off.

The alarm sounds until a parent turns it off, but parents are urged to reach the struggling infant within 10 seconds. Sometimes babies are limp and blue by the time help arrives.

If the baby does not start breathing again, the parents are told to shake him gently, and follow with more vigorous jostling if necessary. If shaking fails, the parents are told to try mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.

A remaining problem is determining which babies should wear the monitors. Doctors usually do not know a baby is in danger of crib death unless the infant has been rescued from a near-fatal attack.

In the tests at Massachusetts General, the children studied either had near-fatal attacks or there was a family history of infant breathing difficulties or crib death.

POTATO SAVES STEW

In a stew because you've overseasoned a hearty winter dish? Slice a potato into thick slices an drop them into the soup or stew. After simmering an hour, the potato will absorb some of the salt. Remove the potato, and throw it out, not the dinner.

Sharp, Clean Tools a Joy to Use

No amount of money can buy happiness and a contented mind, but we can find both in the garden if we have on hand, in good condition, the things we need for the work we wish to accomplish.

In the past 30 years I have visited many local gardens. Occasionally I have asked for a shovel, a hoe or a pair of hand pruners, and have been handed tools that were rusty, mud caked, or with broken handles.

It is difficult to understand how the owners could do a good job with such implements, or whether they realized the extra amount of labor spent on using such tools.

I came to the conclusion that many of the complaints about gardening being hard work and a mental strain were due to the condition of the tools with which gardeners attempt to work.

It is during the winter evenings we have the time to look over our gardening tools, clean them, and put them into good shape for spring.

While the short handled spade is considered the best tool for turning the soil, the majority of gardeners use the long handled shovel.

There are three digging tools in my collection; A "lady's" long handled square nosed spade, good for small holes, post holes, and laying drains; a D-handled square nosed spade, and a long handled pointed-nose shovel. There are certain jobs best suited to each of these digging tools, and using the right tool makes the work pleasant and easy.

Not being blessed with hands the size of "bear paws", all handles are reduced in diameter with a wood-rasp and sandpaper, and lengths are shortened to suit my height, both of which lessen strain and tension when working.

Partly hidden by a shrub is a washtub filled with water, and a small scrub brush and cloth hang from wire hooks attached to branches. All tools are washed and dried before being put away. No tools are left out to deteriorate or rust.

In the tool shed is some old engine oil and a 2-inch paint brush. During damp weather each tool is oiled after use to prevent rusting.

Why go to this trouble? Because a smooth shiny blade releases its load of soil freely, whereas a rusty or dirty blade becomes clogged and difficult to use. The effort needed to keep tools clean is far less than needed to do work with dirty tools. Clean tools give pleasure.

To reduce the manual labor in digging, the spade or shovel must be sharp. A nicked blade, with thin portions turned over along the edge, has to push the soil aside instead of cutting like a knife. A flat file by the side of the can of engine oil is frequently used to touch up the blades and remove nicks.

Broken handles are more often due to deterioration of the wood than to heavy work or strain. Deterioration is more rapid when tools are left outside in all weathers, hot sun, rain, and frost.

Handles will last as long as the metal parts if given a coat of good grade enamel each year for protection. Winter evenings are well spent doing the painting carefully and thoroughly. A bright yellow color is best because it shows well against foliage green or dark soil.

Hoes of any shape are tools needing sharp clean blades for ease of working, and painted handles to prevent wood rot, and make their presence obvious when lying on the soil. Digging forks should have clean sharp tines.

Cultivators and rakes need tines and teeth that are clean and shiny to do their job properly with little manual effort, and painted handles for protection and ease of locating.

As with spade and shovels, all these tools should be washed clean after each use, dried well with a cloth, and oiled during periods of dampness.

Small hand tools need the same care and attention; washing, drying, oiling, and sharpening, and painted handles to make them visible when laid aside.

Long and short handled pruners, hand secateurs, grass shears, and pruning saws all depend on sharp clean blades or teeth to make clean cuts that will heal quickly before disease spores enter the wounds.

Not every home gardener knows how to sharpen these tools. It is not difficult once shown the proper way, but care must be taken not to change the shape of the blade or the bevel of the cutting edge. The shape of saw teeth must also be carefully preserved.

Never put sheers away with blades closed. Each blade is slightly curved throughout its length to keep the cutting edges tight for making a clean cut. If the blades are left closed for periods of time the curve gradually straightens and the blades spread when making a cut and the twigs are wedged between without being cut.

A blacksmith can draw the temper, recurve the blades, and retemper them, but most gardeners put up with the inconvenience, damage the plants with tears instead of clean cuts, and complain about the condition of the tool. Or a good pair of shears is thrown away, new ones bought, and the same condition returns after a year or two.

Sharpening and cleaning is another job for winter evenings if you have the right files and the know-how, otherwise it would be wise to have a professional do the job while the tools are not needed. Whatever the cost, in your time, or in cash, it will be offset by the joy of using tools that work perfectly, and by the satisfaction of knowing the work is done well.

Tools properly cared for should be properly stored, preferably hanging from wooden pegs to protect sharpened edges. When the place for each tool is marked on a basement, garage, or tool shed wall, it is easy to see if any tool has been missed when a work spell ends. If a tool is borrowed by a friend or neighbor, put a tag on its peg with the borrower's name; it saves a lot of time and worry.

I learned the value of caring for tools when operating a nursery. Only when the boss makes a firm rule that all tools shall be clean, sharpened if necessary, and hanging in their storage place before the staff leaves, can business costs be kept to a minimum and work done efficiently. The same applies in the home garden.

Money can buy new tools, but not happiness in gardening. Happiness comes from the pleasure and relaxation of mind and body when using tools that have been properly cared for. They give big results from little effort.

WEEK'S WORK

Sow seeds of snapdragons and lobelias, both slow growing in early stages, but will come along in greenhouse or sunroom at above freezing temperature. Also sow pansy seed inside. Young plants of all these are set out by end of April to early May to bloom all season until October.

Also sow indoors, seed of early cauliflower, leaks, onions.

Prune Cydonia Chaenomeles — Flowering Quince). Thin out crossing branches and shorten newer side growths. Notice flower buds on old wood.

Young Poplars can be pruned now to control size and shape.

In unheated porch or greenhouse, sow few endive, Early Simpson lettuce and Cos lettuce (Romaine) to prick out into four-inch flats. These will soon make tasty saladings with full overhead light and careful watering and ventilation. Pot up a clump of chives and sow two or three seeds of parsley in a pot.

TOWN OF SIDNEY
ZONING BYLAWS
NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

Notice is hereby given that all persons who deem themselves to be affected by the proposed amendment to the Zoning Bylaw No. 345, 1969, will be afforded an opportunity to be heard on the matters contained therein before the Council of the Town of Sidney at a Public Hearing to be held in the Council Chambers, Town Hall, 2440 Sidney Avenue, Sidney, B.C., on Monday, February 5th, 1979, at 7:30 p.m.

A copy of the proposed bylaw may be inspected at the Town Hall, Sidney, B.C., from Monday to Friday between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

The effect of this bylaw will be to amend the Zoning Bylaw to:

(a) Provide that off-street parking in the Commercial and Industrial Zones must be installed on the site of the development.

(b) Delete certain clauses pertaining to condominium development.

(c) Provide for metric conversion.

Dated at Sidney this 24th day of January, 1979.

NO SYMPATHY FOR BANK

WINNIPEG (CP) — A 20-year-old man who spent about $2,600 erroneously credited to his bank account in 1975 received an absolute discharge Friday.

"I'm not at all sympathetic to the bank frankly; my sympathies lie with the accused," County Court Judge Patrick Ferg said in handing down the sentence.

The bank made the error in November, 1975, when it closed a prominent Winnipeg lawyer's account and reassigned the number to the man, then 17 years old. His chequing account at the Toronto Dominion Bank branch contained $2.21. He received a statement saying his account held $2,997 and subsequently received further payments.

The man was arrested in February, 1976, after having withdrawn about $3,700 and having spent about $2,600. He spent 2½ months in jail.

Judge Ferg acquitted the man in October, 1977, saying the Crown had failed to prove the man intended to steal the money. The Manitoba court of appeal later overturned the acquittal, substituted a conviction, and then returned the case to Judge Ferg for sentencing.

Hate Messages Face Test

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Human Rights Commission is planning to test its authority for the first time against pre-recorded telephone hate messages.

The commission has announced plans to appoint a tribunal to make a judgment on complaints about so-called "white power messages" made available by the Western Guard Party in Toronto.

Commission authorities said Friday that a hearing by a three-member tribunal, expected this May, will provide the first interpretation of the new law against telephone hate messages.

In addition, the issue could prompt a lively debate on free speech, primarily because the law itself was opposed in Parliament as a threat to free communication.

One group which opposed the law from the beginning was the Canadian Civil Liberties association. It still holds that view.

"The risk of this kind of legislation is that it will catch within its net people who were not the intended targets," Alan Borovoy, the association's general counsel said in an interview.

The human rights tribunal's job will be to decide whether a Western Guard message, which can be heard by dialling a Toronto telephone number, "is likely to expose a person or persons to hatred or contempt" because of their race, religion, origin, color or other prohibited ground of discrimination.

Commisson authorities indicate that identification of Jews in the messages has prompted complaints.

But the commission will not clearly spell out what the grounds for complaint are because the issue is sensitive and no one wants to jeopardize the tribunal hearing.

A blanket policy of confidentiality also prohibits commission staff from identifying which groups and individuals have lodged formal and informal complaints.

Celebrities for Pledges In Bowl for Millions

Two sports celebrities will be on hand when the Big Brothers-Big Sisters of Victoria take part for the first time in the national Bowl for Millions campaign from Feb. 10-17.

Dave Cutler of the Edmonton Eskimos and Joyce Yakubowich, Victoria track star, will be among those bowling for pledges at the Town and Country lanes from 2 to 6 p.m. on Celebrity Day, Fab. 17.

In the 10 years he's been with the Eskimos, Cutler has become a leading point scorer. He held the Canadian Football League's scoring record in 1978 and was a member of that year's Canadian All-Star Team.

A native Victorian, he now lives with his family at Ardrossan, Alta.

Yakubowich captured the Canadian 400-metre record in 1971 and took part in the 1972 and 1976 Olympics.

Victoria residents wishing to make pledges on either Cutler or Yakubowich can place them at the Big Brothers-Big Sisters office at Room 303, 620 View.

Among others bowling for pledges on Celebrity Day will be Chief Constable Bob Miles of Central Saanich, Staff-Sgt. Al Tomlins of the RCMP's Colwood detachment and Staff-Sgt. George Whittaker of the RCMP's Sidney detachment.

During the week members of local bowling clubs will bowl for pledges during regular league games.

People wishing to pick up pledge sheets can do so on Monday at the View Street office.

Apart from raising money, spokesman Jane Anderson said the campaign will focus public attention on the need for more Big Brothers in Victoria.

She says there are 40 boys aged eight to 12 on the waiting list, all from single-family homes, who are waiting for a Big Brother to help round out their lives.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Sunday, January 28
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Emphasis on decisions, getting support of those whose opinions mean the most to you. Cancer, Capricorn and Aquarius figure in scenario. You will be "involved". You also are in excellent position to raise funds.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Door opens, trap is released, you locate escape hatch. Gemini, Sagittarius figure prominently. Accent on career, reputation, honor, elements of luck and increased popularity. You now are able to make room for yourself at top.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Study details connected with language-travel project. Roadblock is removed. You can open lines of communication. Aquarian figures prominently. Individual who "reluctantly" admires you may make special accommodation.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You're able to dig beneath superficialities — you come up with true story and could strike pay dirt. Gemini, Sagittarius figure prominently. Be ready for quick changes, special instructions. Relationship becomes "serious".

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Go slow, be diplomatic, check legalities. Money, partnership and marital status claim spotlight. Taurus, Libra, Scorpio figure in scenario. Family member confides problem. Be receptive, sympathetic. Then harmony reigns and happiness will make comeback.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You misplace something essential — unless you take special care around machinery. Avoid taking too much for granted. Calculate "law of averages". See place, situations, people in realistic light. Co-worker has a fantasy, not a viable concept.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Get into production! Invest in your own project. Older individual, possibly a Capricorn, intends to back you. Emphasis on change, children, creativity, intensified relationship. You'll be under pressure — and you'll love it.

SCORPIO (Oct.23-Nov. 21): You conclude a transaction which could provide future security. Cancer, Aries figure prominently. In matters of speculation, stay with number 9. Finish rather than start — get finger on pulse of public. You'll be asked to assume added duties.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): New approach, different ideas, original ideas and sibling rivalry play key roles. Relatives, short trips, new contact make this an exciting scenario. You perceive potential. You'll be at right place at right time.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Emphasis on financial status, valuables, personal possessions, lost-and-found activity. Cancer person could play key role. Another Capricorn also is in picture. The money angle is strong. You'll profit!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Cycle high — get going, be a self-starter. Make appeals, demands. Be conspicious by your prescence — wear bright colors. Popularity increases as you display versatility, humor. Horizons expand. You're going places!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Check "secrets". Someone may have told you something in confidence which is already on the public record. Protect yourself from foolish assertions, ridicule. Aquarius, Taurus, Scorpio could figure prominently.

IF JANUARY 28 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are original, creative, independent and "sexy". Leo, Aquarius persons play important roles in your life. July will be your most significant month of 1979, a year featuring fresh concepts, new contacts, individual efforts which pay off, a romance which will heat up your life. You are unorthodox, inventive, somewhat selfish, affectionate, self-indulgent, spoiled by members of the opposite sex. You are determined, stubborn and immovable once you decide on a definite course of action. You do plenty of socializing in February, could travel and you'll be in better financial shape.

Astrological Forecast for Monday, January 29
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): If versatile, you "learn secrets." Key now is to make inquiries, to give full play to intellectual curiosity. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius persons figure prominently. You're on brink of discovery — keep the faith!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A friend, who feels "trapped," will tell you all about it. Be sympathetic without becoming inextricably involved. Aid only those who show willingness to help themselves. Accent on fulfillment, fine print, details.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Utilize your best talents, natural abilities — dig deep, analyze, find reasons for recent happenings. Another Gemini — and a Sagittarian — could figure prominently. One "at top" is willing to make room for you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Good lunar aspect coincides now with added knowledge, special correspondence, travel plans. Family reunion — or special occasion — could be featured. Avoid direct confrontations. Do your research, arrange material, be strong within.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Obtain valid hint from Cancer message. See clearly, heed inner voice, avoid self-deception. One you care for comes up with unrealistic scheme. Be tactful but firm. The answer, at least for now, must be, "No"!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Accent on messages, summons, legal paraphernalia. Capricorn, Cancer persons figure in scenario. Bring priorities into focus — realign sights. Goal is slightly to the side, not necessarily straight up or ahead. You'll understand!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Get house in order, streamline procedures, improve basic services. Aries is a part of your personal scenario. Accent on employment, dependents, vitality and nutritional needs. Views are vindicated via special communication.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Get to heart of matters, let feelings speak, imprint style. You make splendid, new contact; creative juices are activated. Leo, Aquarius figure prominently. Strive for greater say in determining your own destiny.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You have right to be secure — stand up and insist on credit due, on necessary compensation, reward. Finish project. Shake off unnecessary burden. Aries, Libra figure prominently. You could "locate secret" of universal appeal.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Emphasis on short trip, visiting relative, building on solid base. Cancer native could play key role. Calls, messages require personal scrutiny. Avoid scattering forces. Ask questions — answers will be obtained.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Accent on cost, savings, percentages, interest on loans and payments. Break from tradition could be in offing — have courage to go to the edge. Cycle is such that you'll win and profit. Know it, be confident and act in a precise, masterful, dynamic manner. Tall order — but you can do it!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Cycle high — make personal appearances, know that you can get job done. Be analytical. Find reasons, gain knowledge and do something about it. Make personal appearances, be direct and creative. Active Gemini plays key role.

IF JANUARY 29 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are teacher, psychologist, a temperamental, sensitive, considerate, moody individual. Aquarius, Cancer, Leo persons could play significant roles in your life. June should be your most important month of 1979, a year featuring consolidation, a more conservative course, security, commitment to another individual in partnership, prayer or marriage. Financial picture should be brighter. Emotions could run rampant, but you will regain sense of direction. In March, you make changes, write, travel, write and love. In April, you redecorate or actually change residence. In May, you learn who cares about you — as contrasted to who could care less.

Test-Tube Scotch a Breakthrough?

BRIGHTON, England (AP) — After test-tube babies, the next scientific breakthrough in understanding the mysteries of life may be test-tube scotch whisky.

"I would be the last to suggest that there is anything wrong with the traditional product," says John Flower, a University of Sussex researcher who has been experimenting with a mini-distillery in his lab for two years.

On the other hand, the 500-year-old art of making scotch "is far from understood," he says. And science loves to unravel a mystery — especially one that brings in more than $1.3 billion a year in export earnings.

To the scientist, scotch is an intriguing mixture of ethanol, fatty acids, esters, carbonyl, phenol and sulphur compounds.

Flower and his partner, Simon Forge, whose other liquid interest is marine engineering, are trying to find out whether there is a more efficient way to carry out the first of two distillation processes used in the manufacture of scotch.

"We have some almost definitive experiments," says Flower. "The amount of alcohol coming off peaks after about an hour, but the current practice is to go on distilling until there's no alcohol left. It may well be more economic to cut it off at some point."

Flower admits he occasionally dips a finger in his brew for a taste check.

"It's got the scotch flavor, but a little bit fiery," he says. "The hard Sussex tap water doesn't help. God knows what would happen to somebody if he drank it."

Closeted Girl's Mom Jailed

COMPTON, Calif. (AP) — The parents of a nine-year-old girl, who was forced to spend much of her life in a closet in her own filth, were sentenced to prison terms Friday for mistreating the child.

Superior Court Judge Kenneth Gale sentenced Alice Hernandez, 32, of Paramount, to three years in state prison, the maximum sentence, and her common-law husband, 34-year-old Daniel Holmes, to three years on probation with several conditions, one of them that he must spend a year in the county jail.

The two were convicted last month of child endangering for the concealment and deprivation of their daughter Rebecca, who was the size of a one-year-old weighing 24 pounds when authorities found her last April.

The condition of Rebecca—who has been placed in a foster home where she has gained 12 pounds—was the subject of a major debate in the trial.

Miss Hernandez claimed her daughter suffered birth defects and was kept at home because Rebecca "was her cross to bear," argued Deputy Public Defender Damon Swank.

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO CBers IN BRITISH COLUMBIA AND THE YUKON

We're computerizing CB licensing to serve you better

In the interest of more efficient handling of the 80,000 new and renewal General Radio Service (CB) licence applications processed annually by the Pacific region of the Department of Communications, we're converting to a computerized, mail-in licensing system.

Effective February 1st, 1979, CBers residing in British Columbia and the Yukon only will no longer apply to DOC offices for their radio licences. Instead, completed application forms and cheques should be mailed directly to the national GRS licensing centre in Ottawa, at this address:

Department of Communications
GRS Licensing Centre (General)
Postal Station D
Box 2798
Ottawa, Ontario
K1P 6H4

Application forms and pamphlets containing complete information will be available at most stores selling CB equipment, as well as from district offices of the department and many GRS clubs.

Licence renewal notices will continue to be mailed out automatically to current licensees. Renewal fees and invoices should be mailed to the address on the notice.

SARA GADDES WINS UVic PLAY CONTEST

Alan Hughes and prize-winning author scan script.

Among a series of one-act plays to be offered as the first 1979 productions at UVic's Phoenix Theatre, is the winning piece from the theatre department's first student playwriting competition.

There will be six plays presented in pairs throughout the month of February. The first program will open Wednesday and run through Saturday, Feb. 3. The plays are It's Called the Sugar Plum, by Israel Horovitz, directed by Kerry Hackett, and Canadian Gothic by Joanna Glass, directed by Jane Logie.

The winning play will appear in the final group. The intriguing title is A Duck in the Chicken House, and the author is Sara Gaddes, a 22-year-old UVic graduate in creative writing. She is the daughter of Dr. William Gaddes, distinguished UVic psychology professor who retired last year. Her mother, Biddy, has been strongly identified with many Victoria theatre organizations as a costume designer.

There were 16 entries in the competition, which was originated by Dr. Alan Hughes of the theatre department. He says he is impressed with the response to the competition and hopes it can become an annual event.

"It's one way of making sure that good student plays get produced," he says.

Sara describes the play as a "dark contemporary comedy set in British Columbia." She will work with Hughes, who is directing it, through the entire production, from the auditioning process to opening night which will be Feb. 28.

A Duck in the Chicken House will be the second play on a program that includes The Golden Fleece by A. R. Gurney Jr., directed by Chris Sears. Performances will be Feb. 28 to March 3.

The second program of one-acts takes place Feb. 14 to 17. It will consist of Harold Pinter's A Slight Ache, directed by Victor Bohlmann, and Out at Sea by Slavomir Mrozek with Marcus Campbell directing.

Ticket reservations and information can be obtained by phoning the Phoenix Theatre, 477-4821

Composer Dies

BEDFORD, Ohio (AP) — Memorial services are scheduled Sunday for Edward Robinson, 72, a Cleveland high school drop out who was a widely-known composer and pianist.

Egg Play Has Belfry A-Bustling

A great concentration of energies can be observed at The Belfry Theatre these days as a talented cast and production team under the direction of Don Shipley, prepares for opening night, Thursday, of the Belfry season's second production — A Day in the Death of Joe Egg.

Peter Nichols' play, acclaimed for its sensitivity and humor, is the distillation of his own experience as the father of a handicapped child. Rather than dwell on the depressing clinical aspects of the predicament of cerebral palsy, Nichols has chosen to concentrate on the parents of Joe, Brian and Sheila, a lower-middle class couple in London.

Realizing that Sheila has become house-bound with the care of Joe, friend Freddy pushes her into taking drama classes to relieve her boredom. This leads to suspicions of infidelity, hilarious dialogue exchange and a reverse of domestic roles.

To help compensate for their stricken daughter, Sheila has filled their flat with all manner of lively moving things — birds, guinea pigs, plants, cats and even some fleas. The couple's well-meaning but meddlesome friends and relatives drop into this menagerie to do their part in charting the course of Joe Egg and her neurotic parents.

Nichols has created out of tragic circumstances a work bristling with life and humor. His dialogue is rapid and often witty, keeping audiences laughing even while they are subliminally gaining insight and factual information concerning a tragic plight.

Roles of the parents in the Belfry production are being taken by Seattle's Denis Arndt and Victoria's fine actress Sylvia Hatchman. Ingrid Blekys and Terence Durrant play the interfering friends, with Margaret Barton as the grandmother and 10 year-old Jill Carfra as Joe.

The play will run at The Belfry, 1291 Gladstone, from Thursday through Feb. 17, except Mondays, starting at 8 p.m. Tickets are now on sale at The Belfry, McPherson Playhouse, Hillside Ticket Centre and University Ticket Centre. Reservations can be made by calling The Belfry, 385-6815.

Stiltskins Back!

The most famous gnome created by the Brothers Grimm, is undoubtedly Rumplestiltskin. On Saturday, Feb.3, and for several succeeding Saturday afternoons, he will bring 2,500 years of gold-spinning experience to McPherson Playhouse, courtesy of Four Seasons Musical Theatre.

Rumple Stiltskin is a musical for children of all ages which had its premiere in Victoria 10 years ago under the same director, Peter Mannering. Words and music are by CBC writer Ron Chudley (author of Bastion's After Abraham) in collaboration with Diane Stapley, a featured actress on CBC's Beachcombers. Following the Victoria production there were several successful productions in Toronto and from coast to coast.

David Underwood plays Rumple and Wrinkle is Don House. Vonne Sherman will be seen as Queen of Miscellania, Steve Moysey as her son, Prince Sidney; Ray Middleton as the miller and Marilyn Wallis as the miller's daughter.

Robert Holliston is the musical director and choreography is by Jennifer Corwin.

Show time is 2 p.m. and tickets are now available.

UVic Hall and Sonatas Delightful Combination

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

Beethoven's Archduke Trio and other works by Beethoven and Bartok are on the menu Sunday afternoon and Monday evening at University of Victoria's Music Building recital hall. The artists comprising the faculty ensemble are Paul Kling, violin, Robin Wood, piano, Richard Ely, horn, Ethan Sloane, clarinet, and Linda Hougland-Daniels, cello.

The pleasures of this comfortable and delightfully intimate recital hall were displayed to advantage, this week, when Daniels and Wood performed a fine sonata program. The superior acoustics did honor to the warmly translucent sound of Ms. Daniels' 17th century Cremona cello.

The program began in the 18th century with a little known elegantly melodic work by Andrea Caporale, and in its course shadowed the 20th century through a delectable Debussy Sonate. The two artists performed with a mutuality of insight and feeling that bespoke the ideal chamber players, technically assured, poetically aware and minutely sensitive, each to the other.

There was a bit of perceptable nervousness on the part of the cellist at the beginning of the program, but it was a frailty that had almost entirely evaporated by the time the duo was well into a finely detailed rendering of the Beethoven C Major Sonata for Cello and Piano.

As for the Debussy, it was evocative and subtle with an exquisite overlay of nuance between cello and piano. The concluding challenge of the brilliant Chopin Sonata, Opus 65 and the legato lyricism of The Swan from Saint Saens' Carnival of Animals, (the latter an encore) confirmed and illuminated the cellist's sensitive bowing and left hand agility and Wood's virtuosic-elegiac treatment at the piano.

For those who have not so far enjoyed the amenities of the recital hall, the faculty chamber concerts Sunday at 2:30 p.m. and Monday at 8 p.m. will provide an abundance of enjoyable listening.

* * *

Wednesday in the coming week will divide opera lovers from piano concerto aficionados. On that night Victoria Conservatory of Music is presenting an evening at the opera, featuring the conservatory opera department. The UVic recital hall will be hosting the University of Victoria Orchestra with solo artist pianist Carla Dodek, one of three winners in UVic School of Music's concerto competition.

The opera program will take place at Craigdarroch Castle and the program will include a complete short opera by Samuel Barber entitled A Hand of Bridge, a scene from Gounod's Faust, and duets from La Traviata, Marriage of Figaro, Rigoletto and The Merry Wives of Windsor.

The musical director is Selena James. Peter Mannering is staging the opera and excerpts.

The free concert at UVic will feature Carla in Schumann's Concerto in A Minor with the orchestra conducted by George Corwin. The program will also include Richard Strauss's Serenade Opus 7, and Apollon Musaget by Stravinsky.

Miss Dodek is a third year performance major currently studying under Robin Wood at UVic. She was selected from more than 150 students who participated in the competition.

The opera trend in Victoria continues through the next few weeks. Among interesting events to come is the premiere of a new Canadian opera written by a Victoria composer, and the first full completely mounted production of a Gilbert and Sullivan work to be seen here for a number of years.

When Arthur Sullivan was knighted by Queen Victoria (Gilbert's satirical writings caused him to be forever ignored in the honors list) she commanded him to "write a grand opera."

The result was The Yeoman of the Guard. Sullivan gloried in the opportunity to write some of his loveliest music, but Gilbert chafed throughout the undertaking and in the end this was the opera that split and terminated the partnership. Nevertheless, Yeoman has always been regarded as Gilbert and Sullivan's greatest work.

Much of its score is based on haunting Tudor folk melodies and the story parallels "opera seria" in that the hero, Colonel Fairfax, is a prisoner in the Tower in the reign of Henry VIII, about to be beheaded on a trumped up charge that will see his lands confiscated to an enemy. The heroine is a wandering minstrel girl, surpassingly lovely and betrothed to a companion, the jester, Jack Point.

The Pacific Opera will stage Yeoman at McPherson Playhouse Feb. 22 to 25. And if the company doesn't sound familiar, Pacific Opera is the new name of Vancouver Island Opera, which found that a confusion of identity existed between it and the Victoria Operatic Society. However, staging the Gilbert and Sullivan work does not represent a change in character. It's merely an interim change-of-pace after the extensive challenge of Bartered Bride and before the next major opus is undertaken.

The new operatic work will be seen in early March and is by David McIntyre, a graduate student of UVic's School of Music, which is presenting the premiere. It's a short work entitled Humulus the Mute.

Be terrific!

During Lunch And Free

Free lunchtime events at McPherson Playhouse next week will begin Tuesday with a concert by mezzo soprano Elizabeth Zunti accompanied at the piano by Malcolm Woodland.

On Wednesday, the series of films dealing with the many faces of Quebec will concentrate on Quebec food and cooking. Title of the National Film Board documentary is La Gastronomie.

Thursday's special is a performance by Spectrum Dance Circus.

All events begin at 12:15 p.m. and occupy approximately a half-hour. Box lunches are available in the theatre at a nominal charge.

Bastion Offers Black's Magic For Shakespearean Favorite

It's probably the best known of Shakespeare's comedies, the most frequently produced and one of the most often quoted. But the magic of Twelfth Night, the fun, the rosy romanticism and the endearing qualities of its characters never fail to charm.

The Bastion Theatre production, due to open Friday at McPherson Playhouse, is particularly blessed by the directorial hand of one of Canada's most experienced and talented stagers of Shakespearean plays, Malcolm Black. This Twelfth Night is Black's 10th major Shakespeare production.

The directing-acting team works best when there are strong lines of communication among its members and when the confidence born of understanding each other's viewpoints, is present. The fact, therefore, that Black has worked with many of this cast previously is another promising aspect of the undertaking.

For Black, managing director of Theatre New Brunswick, this will be his second production for Bastion Theatre. Last season he was director of the controversial but highly praised production of Comedians. Whether one liked the play or not, it was superbly presented and bore the stamp of true dramaric wit and intelligence.

Barrie Baldaro who is playing Sir Toby Belch in TWelfth Night, was seen in the role of Sammy Samuels in Comedians. Another actor from that cast is Roland Hewgill who has the richly comic (and a touch pathetic) role of Malvolio. Several others in the big cast have worked in other plays in other cities with Black.

Twelfth Night will run at the McPherson until Feb.17. There will be no performances on Feb.5, 11 and 12 but matinee performances are scheduled for Sunday Feb.4 and Wednesday Feb.7 at 2 p.m. Tickets are now on sale.

TO SHOW ALL BARD'S WORKS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Details were announced this week for the airing of one of the largest-scope series ever for U.S. television, the complete dramatic works of William Shakespeare.

The series will open Feb. 14 with Julius Caesar. Then will come As You Like It, Romeo and Juliet, Richard II, Measure for Measure and Henry VIII.

The entire series to be carried by public broadcasting will be presented over the next six years. Sponsors say this marks the first time all 37 of Shakespeare's dramatic works have been produced on either film or videotape.

In most U.S. cities, the plays will air on alternate Wednesdays at 8 p.m. EST but some stations may choose to carry them at a different time.

The series was co-produced by BBC-TV and Time-Life Television and adapted for American audiences by WNET-TV, New York. The series was supported by grants from Exxon Corp., Metropolitan Life Insurance Co, and Morgan Guaranty Trust Co.

Among the performers who will appear this year are Sir John Gielgud, Derek Jacobi, Dame Wendy Hiller and Claire Bloom. In subsequent years there will be starring roles by Anthony Quayle, Ian Richardson and other well-kown British performers.

The schedule for the first year was announced at the Folger Shakespeare Library by representatives of the sponsors, the Public Broadcasting Service and individual public television stations.

Theatrical Lion Says He's Still Self-Conscious

By MARTHA COHN

TORONTO (CP) — Does it not seem strange that one of the most famous actors of the British stage is self-conscious?

Nevertheless, in his autobiography, Early Stages, Sir John Gielgud says of himself that his three besetting sins are impetuosity, self-consciousness and a lack of interest in anything not immediately concerned with the theatre.

And in a recent interview while he was in Toronto performing in the play Half-Life, Gielgud confessed: "I'm very self-conscious with all sorts of people — and usually with people I most want to impress. And I can't frighten ones I most want to intimidate.

"I'm also fearfully indiscrete in a perfectly honest way. I'm not malicious, but I can be quite bitchy — I'm sometimes quite ashamed of my garrulity.

"I always try to talk very honestly and tell the truth. But I found out the mystery of the theatre has gone because you're brought a bit too close to the public."

Why would a self-conscious person tackle theatre life? In Gielgud's case it undoubtedly had something to do with being related through his mother to the famous acting family, the Terrys. From childhood the theatre fascinated him.

When he was first learning to act he was told he walked "like a cat with rickets."

"I was horrified, and for years I thought it was ruining all my performances," says Gielgud. He worked hard at overcoming his gait, but still is accused occasionally of acting from the waist up.

However, his good points such as his magnificent voice, elegance, intelligence, wit and superb sense of style, far outweigh the bad.

Those attributes have been put to the test in such challenging roles as King Lear, Macbeth, Romeo, Hamlet, John Worthing in The Importance of Being Earnest and Col. Vershinin in The Three Sisters.

He made theatrical history in 1934 with his own production of Hamlet — it ran for 155 performances followed by a tour of the chief cities of Britain.. He followed that with his production of Romeo and Juliet, which broke all records.

During the first six weeks of the run of 186 performances, Gielgud gave the part of Romeo to another young actor, Laurence Olivier, and played the part of Mercutio.

GIELGUD
. . . indiscreet, too

Gielgud, 74, says: "I see no great letup in the future. I'm ready for anything really that comes along, provided I can do something with it. On the other hand, I like to be offered something out of my sphere. But I think I know my limits."

In Half-Life Gielgud portrays a famous archeologist in his mid-70s whose work has been shown by the latest scientific methods to be based on false premises. The shock of this discovery leads him to question his whole life, and this is done during an afternoon of conversation with an odd mixture of old friends and enemies.

The archeologist is preoccupied with old age and dying. Gielgud is indomitably looking ahead, but he says: "It's rather hard not to be sad some of the time — you lose so many friends, and some of them don't even die but have dreadful illnesses. One feels so helpless.

"But of course one has certain privileges. People open doors for you, you don't feel quite so on parade as you did as a young man, people expect you to run down and understand when you are tired."

DECISION

Ottawa, January 18, 1979

Following a Public Hearing commencing October 24, 1978, in Vancouver, British Columbia, the Canadian Radio-Television and Telecommunications Commission announces the following decision effective forthwith.

Decision CRTC 79-46
SAANICH, BRITISH COLUMBIA—780908000
Davin Enterprises Ltd.

Application for authority to change the subscriber fees from those presently authorized by the commission for Saanich, British Columbia as follows:

Fees	Present Maximum Fees	Proposed Maximum Fees
Installation fee	$15.00	$25.00
Monthly fee	$ 6.00	$ 7.00

Decision: APPROVED

The Commission considers that the increased monthly fee of $7.00 is justified taking into account the low density and small size of the system.

Bianchi: Murder Charge

BELLINGHAM, Wash. (AP) — Before a mob of television cameras and reporters, law enforcement officials announced Friday they had filed first-degree murder charges against Kenneth L. Bianchi in the strangling of two Western Washington University coeds.

Bianchi, who is being investigated in the so-called Hillside Strangler cases in Los Angeles, was being moved into the county jail's isolation section for security reasons, and a gag order was been placed on all proceedings.

Whatcom County Prosecuting Attorney McEachran said local officials are concerned about the publicity and notoriety around the country that has surrounded Bianchi's arrest.

McEachran said he is considering asking that no bail be allowed Bianchi, 27, who is to be arraigned Monday. Under state law, the prosecution will have 30 days in which to decide whether to seek the death penalty.

900 YOUTHS 'MURDERED'

SALISBURY (AP) — The newspaper of black Rhodesian leader Bishop Abel Muzorewa claimed Friday that 900 black Rhodesian youths have been murdered in Zambia by supporters of guerrilla chief Joshua Nkomo.

The paper quoted Taputsa Mutasa as saying the youths were slain three months ago at Mboloma Camp.

3.5M Israelis

TEL AVIV (Reuter) — Israel's total population at the end of 1977 was 3.5 million, including 570,000 Arabs, the bureau of statistics said Friday. The figures did not in-

Canadian in Belgium Jail

MONTREAL (CP) — Two executives connected with one of Montreal's largest shipping companies have been jailed in Antwerp, Belgium, in connection with an alleged fraud of "enormous" proportions, an external affairs official confirmed Friday.

CICL Chase International Canada Ltd. is currently involved in bankruptcy proceedings here. The suit names as defendant a Bermuda-based holding company, Chase International Holdings Ltd.

Chase president Jan Isachsen, a Norwegian citizen, and vice-president Gabriel Khoury, a Canadian citizen from Montreal, were arrested in Antwerp last week, the federal official said.

She added the pair have been refused bail because they are foreigners and bail equal to the amount of the alleged fraud could not be raised. Embassy officials met with Khoury Thursday and have been in contact with his wife in Lausanne, Switzerland.

The charges against the men involve a fraudulent bankruptcy, the official said.

Meanwhile, two ships leased to the holding company by the Finland Steamship Co. Ltd. of Helsinki, have been seized, along with their cargoes, in Antwerp and Montreal.

A petition in bankruptcy was filed against Chase Holdings in Federal Court here Jan. 17 by the Finnish company.

Creditors, including the Port of Montreal, the shipowners and a local stevedoring firm, Logistecs Ltd., are seeking a total of $2.9 million from the company.

Reports here said that last Friday the company's 40 Montreal officeworkers were laid off after being told there was no more work for them and no money to pay their salaries.

The same day Belgian judicial police raided company offices in Antwerp, seized the books and promptly issued arrest warrants for the company officers.

400 STUDENTS GUNNED DOWN?

MONTREAL (CP) — Makombo Bambote, former diplomat for the Central African Empire, has charged 400 students were gunned-down during an anti-government demonstration in the tiny African country on Jan. 19.

In a statement released to the press Friday, Bambote says the students were assassinated during a protest against the regime of Emperor Jean-Bedel Bokassa in the capital city of Bangui.

The statement says the "this spilling of the blood of children" is particularily "revolting".

Weddings

Starchuk — Reimer

St. Aidan's Church was the candlelit setting Dec. 29, 1978, when Rev. Clare Holmes united in marriage Deborah, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Reimer, and Gary Starchuk, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Starchuk, of Vernon.

The petite and radiant bride was exquisitely gowned in Chantilly lace which cascaded in tier upon tier of ruffles from empire waist to hem. The scoop neckline was softened by a gold and pearl necklace, gift from the groom. Her full length veil was held by a small lace cap. She carried a nosegay of red roses and stephanotis. Her matron of honour Mrs. Julie Duddridge, and bridesmaids Miss Joanne Carlton and Mrs. Laura Davis, wore gowns of ruby red, and carried rose and holly trimmed white fur muffs. The groom, best man Dan Parks and ushers Chester Conrad and Vern Davis, wore military dress uniforms. The bride's mother was gowned in turquoise and the groom's mother, in red, to complete the Christmas theme. Both wore white orchid corsages.

At the reception following, Debbie's brother Mike acted as M.C. and her uncle Ben Ethier proposed the toast to the bride. Relatives and friends from the mainland, Alberta, Nova Scotia, Maryland and the Bahamas, came to share the happiness of the young couple who will be residing in Ottawa.

Koslowski — Scarborough

Mrs. Helen Scarborough is pleased to announce the marriage of her daughter Carolyn Phyllis, to Martin Johannas Koslowski, son of Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Koslowski, Victoria, which took place in St. Paul's Cathedral, Kamloops, B.C., on December 28, 1978.

JONES — PACE

Archdeacon Maddock officiated at a double ring ceremony in St. Christopher's Church, Victoria, B.C., on July 8, 1978, where Carolyn Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Pace, and Kelly Vernon Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Jones, exchanged wedding vows.

The bride wore a beautiful gown designed and sewn by herself. It had thin shoulder straps with a gathered bodice and flowing skirt. The gown was made out of sheer material with a satin lining. The headpiece featured a row of roses and held her elbow length veil. She carried a bouquet of baby red roses, baby's breath and fern. Maid of Honour was Heather Jones, and Laura Richardson was bridesmaid. Their dresses had a small daisy pattern with a light green background. They wore yellow daisies in their hair, and carried bouquets of yellow daisies. The groom wore a chocolate brown velvet jacket with a tan vest and pants. Best man was Mike Bennett, and ushers were Rod Glover and Shawn Bennett.

The reception was held at the Red Barn. The bride's uncle Ray Dobell was master of ceremonies. The three-tiered wedding cake was decorated with red roses and on top of the cake was a kissing bride and groom.

The happy couple are now living in Victoria.

♥♥♥

Budd — Clark

The marriage is announced between Caryl Clark and Vic Budd of Nanaimo. The ceremony took place Jan. 20, 1979, in the United Church in Sidney, Rev. Pratt officiating. Lorrie Schley attended as matron of honour, and Bob McGillivary as best man.

SOMEWHERE IN VICTORIA, I am convinced, is the right man for me. We just haven't met yet. He is between 35 and 40, over 5'10", well built, and has travelled. He is versatile, enjous dining out and classical music as much as building campfires in the wilderness. He loves intelligent conversation, has a keen sense of humour, enjoys a comfortable home and the attentions of a very affectionate woman. He seeks a committed partnership, and is sufficiently secure with himself to respect the strength and independence of an outgoing mate. He is attracted to a slim woman with a definite personality and goals of her own. If this piques your curiousity, perhaps you would be interested in meeting an attractve woman of 33, Cancer, divorced, and longing for a worthwhile relationship. Detailed replies only to Victoria Press Box 77.

MATTRESSES

LATEX RUBBER — Mattresses automatically adjust to variations in weight giving even support the full length of the spine. Latex is comfortable, cool, and non-allergenic.

"Q"-FOAM — is highly resilient foam that comes in a variety of density, which enables us to manufacture a mattress to the specifications recommended by many doctors.

We manufacture mattresses in odd shapes and sizes, with box springs to match, available in spring filled or solid base.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably by giving complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. 308 CARDS OF THANKS

WE WOULD LIKE TO EXPRESS our heartfelt thanks to all our relatives and friends for their kind messages, floral offerings and attendance at the service for our dad, the late Alexander Dobbie. Grateful thanks to Dr. J. Fiddess and the nursing staff at The Royal Jubilee Hospital for their kind and comforting care. Special thanks to the pallbearers and members of the Royal Canadian Legion, Pro Patria Branch #31 and to Padre Tony Roberts for his inspiring message of love and faith. You have all helped so much to sustain us through our sad loss.- The Family.

THE FAMILY OF THE LATE Terrance Clifford O'Neill extend our heartfelt thanks to relatives and friends for their many acts of kindness, expressions of sympathy, flowers and donations to the Cancer Society in his memory. Special thanks to Dr. Billung-Meyer, the nurses of both Victoria General and Royal Jubilee Hospitals for their kind professional care. The support and prayers of Rev. Frs. Costello and Hanley as well as the thoughtful efficiency of McCall Bros. will always be appreciated - Dorothy O'Neill and family.

THE FAMILY OF THE LATE Gordon Ash wish to extend their heartfelt thanks and appreciation to all their friends, relatives, the George Wheaton Crew, Canadian Legion Pro Patria Branch and Padre Roberts for their kindness annd thoughtfulness during their recent bereavement of their beloved brother. — Lorna, June, Jackie, Vera annd families.

The family of the late Mrs. Viola Turnbull wish to thank everyone for their kind condolences during their recent bereavement. Special thanks also to Dr. Hosgood, and the staff of the Royal Jubilee and Victoria General Hospitals and James Bay Lodge. The Turnbull Family.

309 IN MEMORIAM

NICHOLSON — In loving memory of my dear husband Harry, a beloved husband, father and grandfather, who passed away Jan. 27th, 1969.
The face I loved is now laid low
His loving voice is still,
The hand so often clasped in mine,
Lies low in death's cold chill
I often sit and think of him when I am all alone;
For memory is the only thing,
That grief can call its own.
— Sadly missed and fondly remembered by his loving wife Mary and family.

RIDDLE - James. In loving memory of my dear Husband, father, grandfather and great grandfather who died Jan. 27th, 1975.
Nothing can ever take away
The love a heart holds dear
Fond memories linger every day
Remembrance keeps him dear.
From your ever loving wife
Phyllis and family.

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD, AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN, AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.
WITH GRATITUTE, SANDS

RIDDLE - In loving memory of my Dad, James Riddle who died suddenly four years ago today.
Gone but never forgotton
Greatly missed
From your daughter Joyce.

PRATT — In memory of Mum, (Isabel) who passed away on Jan. 25, 1977. And to Dad, (James), who passed away on April 23, 1972.
—Always remembered by Jim.

GILHEN - In loving memory of mom (Lily) who passed away Jan. 27th, 1971, and Dad (Ernest) who passed away Feb. 27th, 1970. Forever together. Always remembered. Joan.

MARTIN - In loving memory of our son and brother, Richard, age 19 who left us so suddenly January 27th, 1978. Lovingly remembered by his family.

Vancouver Firm Rockets To Space Signal Success

RICHMOND (CP) — Sophisticated satellite technology has rocketed a Vancouver-area firm from an office in its founder's basement to the high-strata regions of international electronic engineering.

MacDonald, Dettwiler and Associates (MDA) recently signed a $4.5-million contract to supply the Australian government with Landsat, a ground station that produces pictures of the earth's resources from signals it receives from a satellite.

The system will be a more sophisticated version of the $2-million model the company is finishing for the Swedish Space Corp.

The company's involvement with Landsat began several years ago when it supplied components for systems being built by larger firms.

Company scientists then developed their own station and sold it to the Canadian government for $1.5 million, about $3 million less than the going price at the time.

Dave Sloan, the scientist responsible for MDA's original involvement with Landsat, said companies like General Electric and Bendix developed Landsat stations, but stopped after building one.

"With our company, it's been the mainstay of the operation," said Sloan. "We're now working on our sixth and seventh systems, so we understand it much better than they do."

There now are six Landsat stations operating around the world and five more under construction. MDA has contributed at least parts to most of them.

Two of them are in Canada—at Prince Albert, Sask., and Shoe Cove, Nfld., the latter entirely built by MDA.

MDA officials think their company's direction is one that many Canadian companies could wisely follow into the 1980s.

"Canada is going to run out of resources to sell off one day and, unless we have some sort of secondary industry, we'll be in big trouble," said Sloan.

"Technology has special meaning for Canada because we have a lot of capable people."

Sloan said the government should get more involved in research and development, but by using its purchasing power rather than giveaway programs.

The $1.5 million the government paid for MDA's first Landsat station covered development costs and gave the company the credibility to market its product overseas.

The company's current projects include digital data systems and synthetic aperture radar, a system that could increase the efficiency of weather satellites.

A spinoff company, International Mobile Data, has developed data terminals for cars and trucks. One of its systems was installed recently for Vancouver police.

Bulk of the $6 million to $8 million in sales that the company expects in 1979, however, will come from the Landsat stations.

Engineers at work on a Landsat station in Richmond lab

Receiving signals from U.S. satellites and producing images of 160-square-kilometre sections, Landsat claimed to be more efficient than aerial photography in providing scientists with a picture of the earth's resources.

"Technology has special meaning for Canada because we have a lot of capable people.

"We live in the shadow of the United States which means we can take advantage of their supply and expertise, but at the same time we can be lighter on our feet and jump into markets that the U.S. might not pursue for one reason or another."

Sloan said the government should get more involved in research and development, but by using its purchasing power rather than giveaway programs. The $1.5 million the government paid for MDA's first Landsat station paid for development costs and gave the company the credibility to market its product overseas.

"If you're trying to sell to a foreign government, you don't have a chance if you haven't sold to your own government," said MDA general manager Ken Spencer.

"The first contract we got from the Canadian government was a quarter of a million . . . and arising out of that we've done about $15 million."

The company's current projects include digital data systems and synthetic aperture radar, a system that could increase the efficiency of weather satellites.

A spinoff company, International Mobile Data, has developed data terminals for cars and trucks. One of its systems was installed recently for use by Vancouver city police.

Bulk of the $6 million to $8 million in sales that the company expects in 1979, however, will come from the Landsat stations.

Receiving signals from U.S. satellites and producing images of 160-square-kilometre sections, the Landsat technology is claimed to be more efficient than aerial photography in providing scientists with a picture of the earth's resources.

"If the same thing was done with aerial photography, it would require a mosaic of many photos and this mosaicing sometimes hides exactly what the scientists are looking for," explained Sloan.

The scientists are looking for many things—Calgary oil men look for features that hide oil or gas deposits, B.C. foresters can assess forest resources, Prairie farmers can check the health of their crops, transport companies can see the extent of arctic ice.

The two Canadian stations are located at Prince Albert, Sask., and Shoe Cove, Nfld., the latter entirely built by MDA.

Sloan said the company's success bodes well for the West Coast.

"One of the principal motivations of the company was to show that you can do this high-standard work on the West Coast. It doesn't always have to be in Ottawa and Toronto."

A billion dollar addition could raise 500-foot-high Shasta Dam to 700 feet

Novel Water Solution: Building Dam on Dam

By GLADWIN HILL
New York Times

LOS ANGELES — The homeowners' stratagem of adding a room over the porch is considered, on a novel and gigantic scale, by United States' dam builders.

They are mulling the unusual move of building a billion-dollar addition onto the 33-year-old Shasta Dam, one of the country's largest, as a step toward solving California's recurrent water problems.

The 500-foot-high dam, on the Sacramento River near Redding, is a major facility in the Bureau of Reclamation's far-flung Central Valley Project, which supplies irrigation and power to a large section of northern California.

The dam, 3,400 feet across its rim, impounds in Lake Shasta 4.5 million acre-feet of water, normally releasing it at the staggering rate of 79,000 cubic feet a second. An acre-foot is some 325,000 gallons, equal to an acre of water a foot deep.

The 45-square-mile lake is California's biggest reservoir, storing the equivalent of more than one-tenth of the state's annual consumption of water.

Looming less than a decade ahead is a day when, apart from any abnormal dry periods, California's annual water supply budget will be at least two million acre-feet short, chiefly in commitments to convey water to arid southern areas.

Many possibilities for tapping more water from the rushing northern rivers are under consideration. An increasingly plausible one, engineers say, would be to add about 200 feet to the height of Shasta Dam. That would triple its storage capacity to 14 million acre-feet, more than one third of the state's annual consumption, and would increase the reservoir's annual yield of four million acre-feet some 25 per cent.

There have been many instances in the nation of existing dams being in effect enlarged by constructing another dam a short distance downstream, but officials of the Bureau of Reclamation could not recall any precedent for amplifying an existing structure.

"Obviously, it couldn't be done just by tacking 200 feet of concrete onto the top," Jerry King, a Sacramento spokesman for the bureau, commented. "Dams are carefully designed originally as units to meet detailed specifications. Enlarging one would mean you'd have to start with the foundations and beef the whole structure up."

However, according to a newly published preliminary study by the bureau, "raising" the dam would be the less expensive of two leading alternatives, costing $1.4 billion against $2.6 billion to build a supplementary earth-and-rockfill structure at a site downstream.

The study even advances the possibility, by adding 300 feet to the dam's height instead of 200, of increasing the storage capacity more than sixfold, to 27 million acre-feet. But the details of this have not been as fully explored.

The 200-foot addition would double the area of Lake Shasta, to 90 square miles.

The Central Valley Project interlocks at many points with the State Water Project, whose main function is to move northern California water to southern California via the 400-mile-long California Aqueduct. Accordingly, officials of the Bureau of Reclamation have been discussing with state officials the possibility of making the Shasta Dam enlargement a joint project.

The study is only a prospectus. If considered promising, it would be followed by a four-year feasibility study, two years of public review and congressional consideration, four years of design work, six years of construction time, and four years of filling the reservoir to its planned operating level. Actual operation, then, would be at least 20 years away.

London Bridge is Shaky

LONDON (AP) — London's Tower Bridge isn't falling down. But city authorities fear the bad vibrations the 85-year-old Victorian structure is getting from heavy traffic is shaking it apart.

So in a bid to save the twin-towered span across the River Thames they will ban all loaded trucks weighing more than five tons from using it from midnight tonight.

Anthony Rabbit, bridge master of the City of London Authority, estimated that should cut the number of trucks crossing the bridge by 4,000 a day.

But, with chunks of masonry already falling off the stonework under the incessant pounding, authorities say they may have to cut the weight limit for trucks to three tons.

The bridge has become dangerously fragile because of the pounding it gets every day from between 7,000 and 13,000 cars and trucks, said Rabbit.

The bridge, one of London's most-famous landmarks, was built for horse-drawn carriages and pedestrians.

But now its daily clogged with trucks because it lies on one of the main arteries linking the busy English Channel ports with the north.

The span is a twin drawbridge originally designed to open to allow ships to pass. But with docks above the bridge closed, no ships of any size pass any more and the bridge has not been raised for years.

Rabbit took a group of reporters to the top of one of the 50-metre towers that used to house the giant hydraulic engines used to raise the bridge to demonstrate just how much the structure was being battered.

The tower shuddered as trucks rumbled below. Reporters standing astride the two halves of the bridge felt it bounce under their feet from the pounding.

"We've been concerned about the bridge for the last 10 years and we've spent £2.5 million ($5.75 million) on renovating it," Rabbit said.

"Ideally, I'd like to close the bridge to traffic altogether," he said.

ABU DHABI BANK BREAKS PURDAH

By THOMAS KENT

ABU DHABI (AP) — A man cannot put money into the bank on Bin Zayed Street, and a guard will stop him if he tries. The small bank is for women only—and in this Arabian Gulf oil state, one of the United Arab Emirates, their accounts can run to a million dollars and more.

Running a bank for women is no easy job in an Islamic world where women traditionally stay out of public, do not handle money and often know little arithmetic.

Half the bank's 500 customers are illiterate, and many arrive, behind black veils, in the curtained back seats of automobiles.

Once inside the bank, however, the customers can safely remove their veils and learn — often for the first time — the mysteries of interest, time deposits and chequing accounts.

"One of the main reasons we have a ladies' bank is to teach them about banking," says the manager, Salwa Saleh, a Yemeni woman who wears modern western clothing. She spoke with a male reporter in a secluded upper room at the bank, out of the women customers' sight.

"We have no formalities," she said. "We serve the women tea and coffee and we let the customers sit close to us in easy chairs."

The women's bank, a branch of the locally-owned Khalij Commercial Bank, offers chequing accounts and savings accounts at rates of five to eight per cent. If customers cannot read, the bank will write cheques for them.

Women in Abu Dhabi receive their money as gifts from their families, from inheritances or by selling property to make way for roads and other public works. In this booming country, such sales to the government can net more than $500,000 dollars apiece.

Unlike most banks, which rely on loan business, the Khalij branch has only 80 loans outstanding, most of them for small amounts to buy automobiles or furniture. Most customers know too little about money to want big loans or to make investments.

"But eventually, women, too, will realize they have to invest their money and not just keep it," Mrs. Saleh said.

The bank goes after customers aggressively, combating reluctance and fear by visiting prospective depositors at home.

The idea of the bank was approved by Sheikha Fatima, wife of Sheik Zayed Bin Sultan al Nahayan, the ruler of this desert state of 300,000 people. The sheikha has been active in projects to educate Abu Dhabi's women, and her approval of the bank helps protect it from assertions that it undermines Moslem tradition.

Communists Pull Out, Italy Gov't Toppling

ROME (UPI) — Italy's powerful Communist Party has withdrawn its support from the Christian Democratic government, ushering in the nation's 40th leadership crisis since the fall of Benito Mussolini.

The pullout Friday of the Communists, Italy's second largest party, ended two years of co-operation between the largest Communist Party in the west and the ruling Christian Democrats.

The Italian Socialist Party, Italy's third largest party, said it would follow the Communists into opposition, leaving Premier Giulio Andreotti without a majority in parliament.

Politicians said the government would probably resign Monday and the government crisis can be settled only by new elections or giving Communists cabinet posts.

The government crisis was the 40th since the fall of Fascist dictator Benito Mussolini in 1943, and the most serious dilemma for the Christian Democrats in 34 years of rule.

Since the end of the Second World War, the Christian Democrats have been fending off the Communists, who have grown in power. Andreotti's government has depended for survival on Communist support since leftist election gains in 1976.

The latest crisis surfaced at a meeting of the five government coalition parties.

"Our continued presence in the majority supporting this government has become impossible," Communist leader Enrico Berlinguer said in a statement read at the meeting and distributed to reporters.

The uneasy alliance with the Washington-backed Christian Democrats and five other parties began March 16, a few hours after a Red Brigades band kidnapped former Premier Aldo Moro, who was found dead 55 days later.

Moro had been the architect of the new alliance by which the Communists agreed to abstain on some votes in exchange for prior influence on policy decisions.

Canada Abstains On UN $1B Budget

UNITED NATIONS (Reuter) — The United Nations on Friday approved its first $1 billion budget, despite strong objections from the United States and the Soviet Union, its main contributors.

Canada abstained from the budget vote. Its representative Carl Pedersen called the increased budget intolerable.

Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim said about $75 million of a $93-million supplementary appropriation he had requested was to make up for the decline in the U.S. dollar.

Sixty-four countries, about 40 per cent of the membership, voted for the supplement. Britain was the only big power to favor the increase during the budgetary committee vote.

Fifteen states voted against the supplement, 10 abstained and 62 were absent.

U.S. delegate George Saddler, charging that the UN has done too little to absorb inflation and currency changes and that the organization should not be insulated from world economic realities when members are not so insulated.

He said growth could have been controlled if the secretariat, under Waldheim's leadership, did what it was told.

He accused some officials, whom he did not identify, of conniving to undercut a UN intergovernmental watchdog body's demands for fiscal restraint.

The U.S. delegate also complained about the salaries of senior UN officials, which he said are out of line. With salaries up to $100,000 a year and more, many of them receive higher pay than ministers of most member governments.

Bonanza for Young Entrepreneurs

TORONTO (CP) — A small group of young people have given up the security of regular paycheques for the roller-coaster ride of making their own jobs — and some of them are making a bundle.

Living with the threat of total disaster, they have said good-bye to school as contracts and payrolls become the new textbooks.

For Brian Matthews, 19, it was the opportunity to live out the fantasy of working with a freedom he would never get in a nine-to-five job that prompted him to scrap plans for university this year and form a partnership with two friends.

After sitting spellbound through the space-age film Star Wars, Matthews took his savings and spent two weeks working in a makeshift laboratory at his parents' home. He emerged triumphant with his copy of the film's robot R2D2 that since has enchanted both adults and children.

"I built it as my own toy, but people wanted to rent it," Matthews says. "I couldn't because of copyrights, but that started me thinking."

Matthews founded Robo Labs Inc., which since has produced four more robots, including one that delivers instant photographs. A pair of robots rents for $475 a day.

Since the company was formed last summer, Matthews and his friends, Sim and Matthew Brigden, have travelled to New York, Quebec and Edmonton and soon plan to go to Atlanta and Washington.

Their robots appear primarily at trade shows, but they also have performed for rock stars Frank Zappa and The Eagles at backstage parties.

"This has been my dream," Matthews says. "It's a great job. You get to travel, meet crazy people and play with robots."

Sim Brigden, 21, who spent a year at university before entering the project, says:

"There's a challenge to seeing what will happen tomorrow. We're our own bosses."

And Matthew Brigden, 19, says age hasn't hurt them in making their business deals.

"I get dressed up in a business suit and they treat me with respect. Actually, people are impressed with our ages."

Among other young tycoons is David Rothberg, 28, president of David Rothberg Futures Ltd., a commodities brokerage. Last spring, he opted out of the conventional Bay Street brokers' world, setting up business in his office-home in an uptown residential area.

"I'm not a conventional commodities broker," Rothberg says. "You can occasionally find me trading in a bathrobe. I'm not on Bay Street and I don't wear suits every day.

"When you trade with me, you are working with the president. I sell my expertise, my professional advice and sense of responsibility."

David Vyner works every day — morning to night — at his booming Metropolitan Insulation Co., but he doesn't mind the slave hours. Business is so good that he has left on a trip to Florida, to be followed by a ski trip.

In business since May, he already has his own special-edition Corvette, and after his bills are paid and the payroll met for his seven-man crew, he pockets about $1,500 a week.

Vyner started selling insulation last spring when he was a Grade 13 student.

He soon started his own firm, subcontracting initial orders until he had enough money to buy the equipment he needed.

"It's a lot of work," Vyner admits. "There are headaches. I get calls late in the evening and all the troubles are piled on me. It's worth it though — the money is good."

Bill Walker of William B. Walker Enterprises Ltd., has just turned 21. He has nine 20-ton trucks and 15 full-time employees working in his haulage and excavation company.

Walker says his business sense was honed when he was 13 and mowed lawns for a summer job. He hired friends, expanded into the landscaping business, then bought a truck for winter snow removal. Now, seven years later, he has sold most of the landscaping business and employs only skilled professionals.

"I had to get people with skill, pay proper wages and get proper work done," he says. "I really enjoy being my own boss and dealing with large amounts of money."

Walker doesn't regret quitting school. His education has come from the perils of running his own business and taking on bigger and bigger projects.

"Almost all of our work is on highways or big construction jobs — like high-rises — now."

Walker went to banks for lines of credit to run his business and purchased his vehicles through truck manufacturers who provided the loans. Age didn't work against him.

"When you're buying $100,000 worth of equipment, they treat you pretty good."

Tom Heideman, 17, formed Telco Limited last spring to make money by cleaning up construction sites.

"I do it all myself, but if I have a lot of homework after school, I get someone else to help me."

A Grade 12 student who wanted a summer job and created his own because prospects for students looked poor, he made about $7,500 working a few nights a week for eight months.

But Heideman still intends to go to university to study electronics design.

"I've got to get my education first. You don't need brains to do what I do."

Hewison Admitted To Talks

VANCOUVER (CP) — The United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union says that federal Fisheries Minister Romeo LeBlanc has backed down from his earlier announcement that George Hewison, the union's secretary-treasurer, will be excluded from Canada-United States fishery negotiations.

In a news release Friday, the union said LeBlanc has stated he is prepared to accept Hewison as an adviser provided he and the union's other nominees accept the conditions set out in departmental guidelines.

LeBlanc said Dec. 8 that he was barring Hewison from a fishing industry advisory group taking part in the international discussions.

The union said Hewison, reflecting the view of its membership, had criticized Canada's negotiating record with the U.S.

Jack Nichol, union president, has sent a telegram to LeBlanc, notifying him that Hewison and union organizer Frank Cox will represent the union on Canada's advisory group at the next negotiating session Jan. 29 in Seattle, Wash.

Cancerous Dosages In Bacon

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. agriculture department announced preliminary test results show eight U.S. processing plants have produced bacon containing excessive nitrosamines. A recent department report said nitrosamines formed when bacon is fried at high heat "are considered to be carcinogenic (cancer-causing) since laboratory animals administered these compounds develop cancer."

China Frees Soviet Held 27 Years

HONG KONG (AP) — A 65-year-old Soviet citizen, jailed in China for 27 years, walked into Hong Kong and freedom today with tears in his eyes, a U.S. Red Cross official said.

"I'm so happy to be here," he told Wayne Brewer, Tokyo-based regional director of the U.S. Red Cross, after crossing into Hong Kong.

The Red Cross said the Soviet citizen is known by two names, Roman Ebbel and Roman Roman.

Ebbel was working for a U.S. shipping company in Shanghai at the time of his arrest in 1952, Brewer said. The reasons for his arrest and subsequent imprisonment is not clear, Brewer added.

LOS ANGELES — Even Bob Hope had trouble believing it when readers of Seventeen magazine said they admired him more than John Travolta.

"I thought they were putting me on when they told me the results," said Hope. "I mean, can you imagine me being more popular than John Travolta with teen-aged girls? I can't even get my hips out of 'park.' "

Hope was named the most-admired male in a poll of the magazine's readers.

Following him in the top 10 were Travolta, Robert Redford, Burt Reynolds, Bruce Jenner, Steve Martin, Barry Manilow, Kris Kristofferson, John Wayne and Alan Alda.

The most-admired female was Barbra Streisand, followed by Carol Burnett, Olivia Newton-John, Kate Jackson, Cheryl Teigs, Betty Ford, Mary Tyler Moore, Shirley Temple Black, Linda Ronstadt and Jacklyn Smith.

TORONTO — At the tender the age of 89, movie vamp Mae West has lost none of her ability to shock and outrage certain guardians of the public taste.

Two local radio stations have turned down $1,500 worth of advertising because they found a pair of classic double-entendres too risque for the air-waves.

The one-liners, in a 30-second radio spot advertising West's new film with Tony Curtis and Dom DeLuise, Sextette, are delivered in the movie queen's familiar hard-boiled style.

"Is that a gun in your pocket or are you just happy to see me?" she drawls huskily, followed by "I work at Paramount all day and Fox at night."

Gunman Frees 12

TOKYO (UPI) — A tattooed gunman who killed four persons in an aborted bank robbery in Osaka and demanded $250,000 freed 12 hostages today, including one man who was riddled by shotgun fire and had his left ear chopped off.

Police said the gunman, identified as Akiyoshi Umekawa, 30, refused to give himself up despite appeals by his mother, Mrs. Shizuko Umekawa, 73.

He threatened earlier to kill the captives "one by one" unless his demands were met.

Umekawa, armed with a shotgun, tried to rob the Mitsubishi Bank's Kitabatake branch in Osaka.

He seized 37 hostages, including bank employees and customers, and shot and killed two bank clerks and two policemen. He still held 23 persons.

By nightfall the gunman had released eight customers and five bank officials, including two women and three wounded men. A pregnant woman customer was freed shortly after the attempted holdup on Friday and another woman escaped.

5 MILLION CHEER PONTIFF

Turbulent Talks Ahead for Pope

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II opens a Latin American bishops' conference today and some churchmen predict the meeting will be as rocky as the earthquakes that hit Mexico before his arrival.

"Those earthquakes may not have been as much a divine welcome of the Pope's first visit to Mexico as they were a presage of the problems he faces at the conference in Puebla," one prelate said Friday as the pontiff celebrated mass in Mexico City's Metropolitan Cathedral.

An estimated as five million cheering, waving, joyous Mexicans showered the Pope with adulation today as he travelled slowly by motorcade through the heart of the Mexico capital to the national shrine.

At one point, the Pope stopped the motorcade, stepped down from his open vehicle and mingled with the multitude, touching hands, blessing babies and acknowledging the roar of the adoring crowds.

The working sessions of the conference will be conducted in Puebla, 105 kilometres southeast of the capital, where the pontiff will travel Sunday.

Two years in the planning, the conference is billed as the most significant meeting of Latin American churchmen in a decade. It has drawn 250 prelates to plan the future of the church in the turbulent social and political life of Central and South America, home of almost half the world's 750 million Roman Catholics.

John Paul will celebrate mass at the Basilica and deliver a pastoral sermon setting the tone for the conference. It is expected to be his most important encyclical since becoming Pope last October.

Observers predict his toughest task will be to reconcile liberal prelates who want to involve the church more deeply in the social, political and economic problems facing Latin America, and conservatives who would restrict the church's role in sectarian affairs.

Liberals are expected to demand even-greater church involvement with the poor than they did at the last bishops' conference in Medellin, Colombia, in 1968. Observers say they may try to use the current 13-day meeting to push the church into more direct conflict with governments and even the church's own conservative community.

About 60 per cent of the 330 million Roman Catholics in South and Central America live in extreme poverty, and many of them are ruled by the authoritarian military governments that dominate the region.

The poor "have turned to the church as the only institution that can help them," said one prelate.

Mexico enforces sharp church-state separation, a legacy of an anti-clerical revolution in the last century. Since Mexico has no relations with the Vatican, the pope was welcomed unofficially as a "distinguished visitor."

Meat Checks Too Costly - Minister

Agriculture Minister Cyril Shelford said Friday province-wide meat inspection would hurt rather than help the B.C. livestock industry as a recent legislative report suggests.

The Select Standing Committee on Agriculture found filthy conditions in some of the smaller slaughterhouses outside the province's two inspection areas.

The researchers suggested that since large retailers buy only inspected meat, province-wide inspection would lead to more purchases of B.C. livestock.

But Shelford said the prohibitive cost of paying for federal inspectors in isolated areas would either drive the small slaughterhouses out of business or mean the farmer would receive even less for his products.

He said the small producers and slaughterhouses could not possibly break into the supermarket trade.

Safeway, for example, cuts all of its beef in Alberta. Even the B.C. cattle are shipped to Alberta for butchering for Safeway.

Shelford says in his long experience with the industry the small slaughterhouses in the uninspected areas cause no health problems.

He noted all meat inspection was turned over to the federal government in 1977. And it would be too costly to have a federal inspector pay regular visits to every farm or small slaughterhouse that butchered a handful of beef every week.

He said he's never seen any health hazards but if there are any specific companies not operating sanitary operations he would look into it.

"I would hate to see all the small ones get put out of business as a result of the cost of inspection," he said.

Province-wide inspection as the report recommends is a step in the wrong direction as far as the farmer is concerned as well, he added.

The minister said the farmer who takes his beef to be slaughtered sees what condition the slaughterhouse is in.

Shelford said he didn't expect farmers would patronize filthy slaughterhouses.

The legislature's study blamed unsanitary conditions it discovered in some interior meat plants on a lack of government inspection outside the Lower Mainland and Victoria.

Woman Killed In Crash

A city woman is dead and a man partially paralysed in hospital following a three-vehicle collision at Cook and Johnson Friday night.

Dead is Janice Campbell, 18, of 1146 Leonard, who was a passenger in a van driven by Ronald Cheeke, 17, of 1664 Burton.

Another passenger, Norman Liimatta, 18, of 1504 Oakland, is in Victoria General Hospital in stable condition, paralysed on his right side with spinal injuries.

A city police spokesman said the accident occurred at 10:41 p.m. as the van entered the intersection and was hit broadside by two cars.

He said the Campbell girl and two others, Leanna Jane, 17, of 2115 Lorne Terrace, and Kerry O'Gorman, 16, address unavailable, were riding in the back and were hurled to the street.

The latter two escaped injury but the Campbell girl was pinned between a lamp standard and the van. She died moments after police arrived.

Neither Cheeke nor the drivers of the other two vehicles, Christina Lambe, 18, of 5770 Old West Road, and Dawn Miller, 21, of 2079 Crescent, were hurt.

A sixth passenger in the van, Tracy Stavdal, 16, of 2106 Marne, also escaped injury.

The traffic fatality was the first in the city this year but the fourth in the Greater Victoria.

Court Overturns Essay Order

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Supreme Court has ruled that the B.C. Police Commission cannot order a police constable to write a 2,000-word essay on the care and handling of prisoners.

Constable Leslie Mitchell of the Matsqui municipal force was reprimanded and given the essay assignment after a prisoner suffered a broken jaw while he was being processed into jail.

Mr. Justice K. E. Meredeth ruled Thursday that the commission exceeded its power because it ordered the constable to pass the essay through superior officers to the commission.

"There is a hint here that Constable Mitchell is not the only person against whom the discipline is directed," he said. "I suspect that in this case the commission is looking less for a 2,000-word essay than an apology from Constable Mitchell."

The judge said the forced apology was the only way the commission thought Mitchell and others could be taught the lesson, but added he thinks it would do little to educate Mitchell or others who might read it.

Geoffry Mortimer, commission chairman, said the judge has done the commission a favor by clarifying the Police Act.

"Policemen now know that the commission can't give unfair discipline," he said.

"Although I don't think the order was unfair, I can see now that it might have been possible for some vindictive commissioner to hand down very punitive penalties without this definition of our power."

Alberni Socred Used Pull for Grant: Dailly

A Port Alberni woman used her political connections to get a grant from the provincial lottery fund, Eileen Dailly, New Democratic MLA for Burnaby North, charged Friday.

Dailly said the approval of an application for a $9,875 grant submitted by Port Alberni Social Credit Association executive member and radio openline hostess Paula Anderson is another example of the government using the lottery funds for partisan political purposes.

Anderson, in a letter dated Nov. 20 to Grace McCarthy, then provincial secretary, appealed for the funds to buy a 15-passenger van for the Port Alberni Islander Blues, an intermediate B hockey club.

"As a member of the Social Credit constituency executive I would ask that you consider this request for funding as I believe that this is the type of help that wins community support," Anderson said in her letter.

She ended by offering the services of her open line radio show to "help in any way giving public information about your department."

Dailly said she had hoped when Hugh Curtis was appointed provincial secretary the disbursement of lottery funds would not be tainted with partisan politics.

"But events of the past few weeks suggest that Mr. Curtis has chosen to continue the questionable practice of using the funds to help Social Credit candidates at the expense of the Opposition," she said.

Dailly said Curtis has misled the public by suggesting all members of the legislature have been advised of the procedures for seeking lottery fund grants.

"While I have no doubt that the members of Mr. Curtis' party have been advised, other members of the legislature have been led on merry chases when they have sought information," she said.

"Social Credit MLAs are allowed to waltz into the provincial secretary's office anytime they want and leave with grants for footbridges, parking lots and breakwaters."

Curtis was unavailable for comment today.

Millions Demand Khomeini Return

TEHRAN (UPI) — Millions of Iranians marched through Iranian cities today to demand the immediate return of religious leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini. But Premier Shahpour Bakhtiar insisted Khomeini delay his arrival and hinted at an assassination threat.

In the pro-Khomeini demonstrations at least 11 persons were shot dead in the cities of Abadan and Gorgan and scores were wounded but the largest march in Tehran involving more than one million protesters passed peacefully with the army withdrawing most of its troops from the capital to avoid confrontation.

Bakhtiar hinted the ayatollah could face an assassination threat on his return from exile in Paris — especially if government preparations were not complete — when the premier said Khomeini had enemies in Iran and he could not arrive here "just as an ordinary passenger."

In Paris, Khomeini postponed his expected departure because of what Bakhtiar's opponents called the "Friday Massacre" of pro-Khomeini demonstrators by government security forces. At least 28 persons were reported killed Friday and scores wounded.

Airline sources said they had been told the government was prepared to keep Tehran's international airport closed to block Khomeini's return unless the ayatollah reached a compromise with Bakhtiar on the country's future. The airport had been scheduled to reopen Sunday after being closed three days ago by martial law authorities.

In his first public explanation of recent developments in Iran, Bakhtiar told the nation in a broadcast interview that Khomeini, who has been trying to return from 15 years of exile to establish an Islamic state here, can only return at the pleasure of his government.

"In this turbulent situation while irresponsible elements are active, the entry and presence of his eminence should be according to a program," Bakhtiar said in the interview.

In a letter to Khomeini earlier this week Bakhtiar urged him to delay his return by at least three weeks to allow the government to complete preparations for a "proper welcome."

Khomeini rejected Bakhtiar's suggestion although aides in Paris said he had again delayed his departure from tonight to Sunday night.

Modest Pay Boost Due for Grumbling MLAs

New Regulations Expected to Give Them Regular Increases Tied to Cost of Living

By PAUL NICHOLSON
Times Staff

B.C.'s MLAs who haven't had a pay raise in almost seven years — and are starting to grumble about it — can probably look forward to a modest increase this spring.

And from then on, it is likely they will get regular annual raises tied to the Consumer Price Index or another inflationary guide, the current practice in most other provinces.

MLAs receive a salary of $16,000 plus an additional $8,000 tax-free expense money for travel to and from their ridings and to live in Victoria during the session.

By the end of February the Judge Lawrence Eckardt year-long Royal Commission on Electoral Reform will release a five or six-volume report recommending broad changes in the provincial electoral system.

As well as a complete overhaul of the antiquated Provincial Elections Act, the report will revamp the regulations covering MLAs salaries, expenses and pensions.

And while B.C. legislators have generally fallen behind their counterparts in other provinces, Eckardt is, in the words of one of his chief researchers, being very frugal.

"The judge is observing the other provinces, but being terribly mindful of the public purse," said Dale Mearns, a researcher on Eckardt's staff.

But there seems to be little doubt that Eckardt will recommend some kind of bump in pay with regular follow-ups for the members.

In contrast to B.C.'s MLAs' salaries and expense money, Ontario and Quebec members of provincial parliament are better paid and received more lucrative expense allowances.

Ontario MPPs receive $21,000 annually plus $7,500 tax-free expense money. And depending on the location and size of their riding, qualify for up to $2,500 more for charter aircraft. The members also get 12 cents per kilometre gas mileage.

In Quebec, members of the National Assembly receive about $29,500 annually, and again depending on the size and location of their riding can qualify for up to $5,000 travel funds.

(Premier Rene Levesque receives his MNA wage on top of his $41,700 premier's salary bringing his annual income to more than $78,000, almost $25,000 a year more than Premier Bennett.)

In B.C.'s sprawling north, the lack of travel funding has led some members to claim they lose money by being elected to the legislature.

Jack Kempf, the Socred from the remote northern Omineca riding, filed a brief to Eckardt recommending expense allowances be increased by $6,000 a year.

Kempf says he spends between $2,000 and $3,000 over the existing allowance servicing his riding, and on top of that, the rough northern roads wear out a car every two years. And to get to some of the isolated spots, he has to rent a float plane at $185 an hour.

MLAs from around Victoria receive the same expense money, although they have but one residence to maintain and could service their riding by city bus.

A more equitable distributions is a certain recommendation in the pending report.

The Eckardt report, which will also covers such areas as alternate voting methods, voters' eligibility requirements, whether small parties should be granted full party status, guidelines covering the collection and expenditure of campaign funds and whether they should be tax deductible, ~~will be ready~~ for the spring session of the legislature.

That would give the legislature time to adopt changes before the next general election if it finds itself in agreement with the 72-year-old former provincial court judge's recommendations.

Last session Eckardt produced an interim report on constituency boundary changes which the Socred government adopted in its entirety, despite protests from the NDP the new boundaries favor Socred candidates.

The bill added two seats to the existing 55 although a number of ridings held by the NDP were wiped out in the process.

The Royal Commission held 44 pubic hearings and received 187 written briefs and 332 oral submission.

Then members of the research team travelled Canada, analysing salaries and expenses paid other politicians, attending electoral conferences and studying latest electoral changes initiated by other governments including the recent amendments to the national guidelines.

Every Wednesday the research team huddled with Eckardt pouring over latest information as draft reports slowly emerged.

Other than the rewrite of the Provincial Elections Act, the final draft reports are in Eckardt's hands for last-minute changes.

But the revamping of the Elections Act is proving to be an Herculean task for Col. Clive Rippon, the one-time air force pilot and lawyer with the Canadian Forces Judge Advocate General's department in Esquimalt who was enticed out of retirement by Eckardt to lend his legal expertise.

Rippon may be wishing he'd stayed retired.

His is the first extensive review in 25 years of the long, complex act which was originally written at the time of B.C.'s entry into Confederation in 1871 and amended piece-meal every four or five years since then into the patchwork bill it is today.

The new act will recommend that B.C. follow Ottawa and most of the other provinces and end voting eligibility for British subjects after only a year's residency in Canada.

If the act becomes law, only Canadian citizens who have lived in B.C. for six months prior to an election will be allowed to vote.

Eckardt is also looking into the preferential ballot where voters make a second and third choice in case one candidate doesn't emerge as a clear victor.

This was used in B.C. in the early 50s and generally led to confusion although it is supposed to be the truest form of democratic election.

Mumbo-Jumbo, Bafflegab To Be Bounced by Bawlf

B.C.'s civil servants must make themselves easily understood and get correspondence out in jig time under a new policy outlined Friday by Deregulation Minister Sam Bawlf.

His target is the bureaucrat who mumbles when in doubt and obscures the meaning of regulations in bureaucratese.

"My investigation of complaints and concerns expressed by the public indicates that many people are experiencing unnecessary delays, buck-passing and unexplained requirements and action by bureaucracy," said Bawlf.

A policy of his ministry, set up in a cabinet shuffle last month, says all communication, instruction and notices concerning the application of a regulation will be in plain language and replies sent within a time specified by the minister or by law.

The new policy soon will be posted in every government office in the province.

"Regulations are too often written by the legal profession with the legal profession in mind," Bawlf said.

"You give a lawyer a regulation to write, and he'll use a $10 word where he needs a 50-cent word. We've got to get back to basics."

In efforts to cut down on the buck-passing, Bawlf said officials with authority to act or decide under any regulation will be clearly designated.

"There is no question that governments generally in this country are handling too much paper and requiring too much information from individuals," the minister said.

Under the policy, government and officials will only request information required by law.

"I have found instances where overzealous agencies are asking all sorts of questions which are beyond their immediate authority in law. They have just become enamored with collecting more and more information from people."

Bawlf said a small business probably has to fill out as many forms as a large corporation but usually has little income to offset that expense overhead and his ministry is examining that area.

The minister outlined his policy which says every person is entitled to fair, just and reasonable consideration in the application of any regulation; a clear explanation of procedures to be followed; a clear statement of reason and any right of appeal.

He said all officials and agencies have been asked to co-ordinate their activities to minimize public inconvenience.

Bawlf said he will soon eliminate about 80 obsolete pieces of legislation.

He admitted it won't be easy to clean up the fuzzy language used by some veteran civil servants but says he is determined.

"People have a basic right to be able to understand regulations and there is no earthly reason why they can't be writing in understandable language."

He said all government agencies will be instructed to review their practices and dealings with the public to make sure they are complying with the new policy.

Seer Out on Limb On Sick Tree Vibes

British psychic Simon Alexander would like to see at least a one-day seminar on clairvoyance included in the training program of all police personnel.

If that achieved nothing else, he says, it might save the officers concerned some embarrassment if they ever had to call in a clairvoyant to help them solve a murder case or find a multiple rapist.

Alexander, who will give Victorians a demonstration of his talents at The Empress on Thursday, has worked with a number of police departments including Britain's New Scotland Yard.

But wherever he goes offering his free services to fight crime he comes up against rather sheepish, embarrassed-looking police officers.

One English bobby even booked a private consultation wearing a "civvy" raincoat.

"But his thick blue trousers and great big boots were a dead giveaway," the psychic recalled.

Alexander, 35, a supremely self-assured, nattily-dressed person with a definite showbiz flair, has had his own television talk show in Britain, a syndicated radio show and newspaper column.

In addition to helping police — he claims his sensitivity to vibrations helped track down a notorious criminal called the Cambridge Rapist — he is retained as a consultant by various business groups.

He claims an 87 per cent accuracy rate, including such notable highlights as the exact day of the Richard Burton-Liz Taylor breakup, a romance between Liza Minelli and Peter Sellers, and the date of Richard Nixon's resignation.

ALEXANDER

Does Victoria give off any vibes?

"An image of trees dying flashed into my mind. I think you may have a disease of some kind which will kill off a lot of trees."

Among his other Canadian predictions: Joe Clark will narrowly oust Pierre Trudeau in a late winter election, and a sex scandal involving important public figures will rock Ottawa.

Alexander's show in the Crystal Ballroom at The Empress starts at 8 p.m. Thursday.

100-year-old Joe Hill has spent more than 40 winters here even though he's from the 'banana belt' of the Prairies

He Knows Way to Real Banana Belt

max low

While the sun, though watery, peeps through and we harbor thoughts of spring, our neighbors not too far to the east are still harboring two or three feet of snow in their yards.

Take Estevan. Now there's a place some proud Saskatchewan folk will tell you is on the "banana belt of the Prairies."

But Joseph Hill doesn't believe it and neither does his daughter Vera.

And Joe should know because he has farmed near there since the turn of the century and has been escaping the snow by wintering in Victoria for more than 40 years, the last 34 of them in a row.

"They say it's mild back home but it's often around minus 15 to minus 20 and it can get down to 45 below in a severe winter," says Vera Hill.

And so, rather than stay around and risk getting caught in a severe one, Joe Hill started coming west for the winters, at first with his wife Caroline and after she died with his daughter, in 1928. He has been in Victoria each winter since 1945 but every March 1 packs up and heads back to the farm.

"For many years we stayed at the Douglas Hotel and at that time there were 30 or 40 people who came out from the Prairies each winter," says Vera. "It was like a big happy family."

Last winter and again this time the Hills have stayed at the Yates Hotel, though Vera says they miss the crowd that used to come to the Douglas.

"Of course, they didn't all live as long as my Dad," she adds.

She's right. For Joe Hill is 100. He was born on Nov. 19, 1878, at historic old Moortown Farm in the village of Knowstone in North Devon.

"That was Lorna Doone country," he relates as he sits in his hotel room reminiscing about his school days and the time he sold his prized Exmoor pony so he'd have enough money to come to Canada.

That was 1898. He'd decided he wanted to homestead and found his ideal piece of land in Canada but right near the border with the U.S. close to the twin towns of Portal in North Dakota and North Portal in Saskatchewan.

"Our town was in Ripley's Believe It Or Not because at one time it had the only international golf course in the world," says Vera. "On the first hole you teed off in North Dakota and sank your putt in Saskatchewan!"

That feat was less tricky, though, than Joe Hill getting his permit to homestead. When he got to the land registry office he was told that, at 19, he was too young.

"But the man there said he'd see I got that land when I was 21," Joe says. "And on my birthday there I was on the doorstep of the registry office and I was the proud owner of a quarter section."

Those first 160 acres have been added to over the years and today the Hill farm has 800 acres of cultivated land and 400 acres of pasture where shorthorn cattle and Yorkshire pigs are raised. But Joe is still on the same spot that he first chose to homestead.

He has worked hard all his life, says his daughter, remembering how they had to depend on horses for power.

"We had to raise our own colts and break them in so we'd have good harness horses," she says. "And there's more work to that than tractors."

Even today Joe finds it hard to give up work and when it's fine you'll find him out there in the garden, though Vera says his eyesight is failing and she fears he whips out more carrots than weeds.

But why all these years has this hardy farmer made the trek — at first by train, then by bus and more recently by plane — to Victoria each winter and back each spring? Why not just retire here like so many do?

The answer is simple.

"He just likes being around the farm in the summertime," Vera says. "We don't care for the city in the summer. On the farm there are lots of lovely trees and Dad likes to sit in the sun."

"Besides, you can't keep me away from the pigpen when the pigs are making money," Joe adds with a chuckle.

And will he keep on coming west?

"Well, I'm a little over 100, you know," he says. "And I can't expect to be tramping up and down the old railway or the flying field forever . . .

". . . But, yes I'll be back next winter, God willing."

HOLMES TO HEAD HEART CAMPAIGN

George F. Holmes has been named local chairman of the B.C. Heart Foundation's fund campaign in February.

In announcing the 14-day residential canvass Feb. 14-28, the B.C. Telephone customer service manager for Vancouver Island said the their available time during the two-week drive.

The foundation has set a V.I. objective of $250,000. The provincial target is $1.35 million.

Last year in Victoria alone, the foundation said, cardiovascular disease caused 719 deaths. Provincially, strokes and heart disease claimed 43 per cent of all deaths.

Greater Victoria target is $200,000.

"Heart disease affects one out of four of the adult population and we need continuing support for education and research programs," he said.

Some 1,500 volunteers, some making it a family affair, will canvass the city in

More than $700,000 was allotted to B.C. heart research in 1978, and this year the commitment is raised to $1.17 million, some of which will go to Royal Jubilee Hospital where research is being done by Dr. Richard T. Brownlee.

If that achieved nothing else, he says, it might save the officers concerned some embarrassment if they ever had to call in a clairvoyant to help them solve a murder case or find a multiple rapist.

Alexander, who will give Victorians a demonstration of his talents at The Empress on Thursday, has worked with a number of police departments including Britain's New Scotland Yard.

But wherever he goes offering his free services to fight crime he comes up against rather sheepish, embarrassed-looking police officers.

One English bobby even booked a private consultation wearing a "civvy" raincoat.

"But his thick blue trousers and great big boots were a dead giveaway," the psychic recalled.

Alexander, 35, a supremely self-assured, nattily-dressed person with a definite showbiz flair, has had his own television talk show in Britain, a syndicated radio show and newspaper column.

In addition to helping police — he claims his sensitivity to vibrations helped track down a notorious criminal called the Cambridge Rapist — he is retained as a consultant by various business groups.

He claims an 87 per cent accuracy rate, including such notable highlights as the exact day of the Richard Burton-Liz Taylor breakup, a romance between Liza Minelli and Peter Sellers, and the date of Richard Nixon's resignation.

Does Victoria give off any vibes?

"An image of trees dying flashed into my mind. I think you may have a disease of some kind which will kill off a lot of trees."

Among his other Canadian predictions: Joe Clark will narrowly oust Pierre Trudeau in a late winter election, and a sex scandal involving important public figures will rock Ottawa.

Alexander's show in the Crystal Ballroom at The Empress starts at 8 p.m. Thursday.

100-year-old Joe Hill has spent more than 40 winters here even though he's from the 'banana belt' of the Prairies

He Knows Way to Real Banana Belt

While the sun, though watery, peeps through and we harbor thoughts of spring, our neighbors not too far to the east are still harboring two or three feet of snow in their yards.

Take Estevan. Now there's a place some proud Saskatchewan folk will tell you is on the "banana belt of the Prairies."

But Joseph Hill doesn't believe it and neither does his daughter Vera.

And Joe should know because he has farmed near there since the turn of the century and has been escaping the snow by wintering in Victoria for more than 40 years, the last 34 of them in a row.

"They say it's mild back home but it's often around minus 15 to minus 20 and it can get down to 45 below in a severe winter," says Vera Hill.

And so, rather than stay around and risk getting caught in a severe one, Joe Hill started coming west for the winters, at first with his wife Caroline and after she died with his daughter, in 1928. He has been in Victoria each winter since 1945 but every March 1 packs up and heads back to the farm.

"For many years we stayed at the Douglas Hotel and at that time there were 30 or 40 people who came out from the Prairies each winter," says Vera. "It was like a big happy family."

Last winter and again this time the Hills have stayed at the Yates Hotel, though Vera says they miss the crowd that used to come to the Douglas.

"Of course, they didn't all live as long as my Dad," she adds.

She's right. For Joe Hill is 100. He was born on Nov. 19, 1878, at historic old Moortown Farm in the village of Knowstone in North Devon.

"That was Lorna Doone country," he relates as he sits in his hotel room reminiscing about his school days and the time he sold his prized Exmoor pony so he'd have enough money to come to Canada.

That was 1898. He'd decided he wanted to homestead and found his ideal piece of land in Canada but right near the border with the U.S. close to the twin towns of Portal in North Dakota and North Portal in Saskatchewan.

"Our town was in Ripley's Believe It Or Not because at one time it had the only international golf course in the world," says Vera. "On the first hole you teed off in North Dakota and sank your putt in Saskatchewan!"

That feat was less tricky, though, than Joe Hill getting his permit to homestead. When he got to the land registry office he was told that, at 19, he was too young.

"But the man there said he'd see I got that land when I was 21," Joe says. "And on my birthday there I was on the doorstep of the registry office and I was the proud owner of a quarter section."

Those first 160 acres have been added to over the years and today the Hill farm has 800 acres of cultivated land and 400 acres of pasture where shorthorn cattle and Yorkshire pigs are raised. But Joe is still on the same spot that he first chose to homestead.

He has worked hard all his life, says his daughter, remembering how they had to depend on horses for power.

"We had to raise our own colts and break them in so we'd have good harness horses," she says. "And there's more work to that than tractors."

Even today Joe finds it hard to give up work and when it's fine you'll find him out there in the garden, though Vera says his eyesight is failing and she fears he whips out more carrots than weeds.

But why all these years has this hardy farmer made the trek — at first by train, then by bus and more recently by plane — to Victoria each winter and back each spring? Why not just retire here like so many do?

The answer is simple.

"He just likes being around the farm in the summertime," Vera says. "We don't care for the city in the summer. On the farm there are lots of lovely trees and Dad likes to sit in the sun."

"Besides, you can't keep me away from the pigpen when the pigs are making money," Joe adds with a chuckle.

And will he keep on coming west?

"Well, I'm a little over 100, you know," he says. "And I can't expect to be tramping up and down the old railway or the flying field forever . . .

". . . But, yes I'll be back next winter, God willing."

HOLMES TO HEAD HEART CAMPAIGN

George F. Holmes has been named local chairman of the B.C. Heart Foundation's fund campaign in February.

In announcing the 14-day residential canvass Feb. 14-28, the B.C. Telephone customer service manager for Vancouver Island said the Greater Victoria target is $200,000.

"Heart disease affects one out of four of the adult population and we need continuing support for education and research programs," he said.

Some 1,500 volunteers, some making it a family affair, will canvass the city in their available time during the two-week drive.

The foundation has set a V.I. objective of $250,000. The provincial target is $1.35 million.

Last year in Victoria alone, the foundation said, cardiovascular disease caused 719 deaths. Provincially, strokes and heart disease claimed 43 per cent of all deaths.

More than $700,000 was allotted to B.C. heart research in 1978, and this year the commitment is raised to $1.17 million, some of which will go to Royal Jubilee Hospital where research is being done by Dr. Richard T. Brownlee.
